WALNUT'S BIG SIX QUERIES
1. When Mr. Coles went to Washington before the meeting of the December Grand Jury, did he discuss the McConnell case with anyone?

2. If he did, who was it?
3. If he did not, why did he insist upon the return that the evidence should be withheld from the Grand Jury?

4. How did the Attorney General learn that an investigation involving McConnell was under consideration in the District Attorney's office?

5. Why did the Attorney General's office trust entirely to the District Attorney's judgment in all matters to be presented to the March Grand Jury but not to those of McConnell and his associates?

6. Is the Attorney General's introduction of the McConnell case in his department from a declaration of duty or does he have any special obligations as a member of the Grand Jury?

LESLEY'S PLAN COOL TO MACKAY

Pittsburgh Leader Here for 'Harmony' Signs Talk With Spruill and Vero

OFFER ALTER OR BARCOCK AS COMPROMISE CHOICE
'Peace Talk' of Westerners is Surprise to Well-Laid Plans of Philadelphia Men

A delegation of Pittsburgh politicians, headed by Senator Max Lesley, arrived in the city today and, contrary to all expectations, they brought with them a wily ally for the gubernatorial boom of Harry A. Mackay.

Incidentally, they conveyed authoritative word from the western end of the State that John A. Bell, the multimillionaire, will be a candidate in the primaries for the United States Senate against Major David A. Reed, the Mellon-Oliver-Grundy candidate.

But the thing that took the local leaders off their feet, when they talked with the Pittsburgh men in the Bellevue Hotel, was that the westerners did not warm up at all when they were asked what they thought of Mr. Mackay, chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Board, for Governor.

It had been generally supposed that because the Vero organization had agreed to support Bell to succeed Senator Crow, his Pittsburgh friends would turn in for Mackay, the Vero choice. But instead of giving loud cheers for Mackay they began to talk "harmony."

In short, they manifested a desire to turn in for some one besides Mackay. Are Contending With Vero

Senator Lesley and his friends, who included former Mayor Babcock and Armstrong, of Pittsburgh; Edward McKenna, the delinquent tax collector of Pittsburgh, and State Representative George S. School, are conferring with Governor Spruill and Senator Vero.

Their main object here is to push a harmony program. They don't expect to get very far with it. In fact, Senator Lesley and the others, it is understood, are inclined to have an open primary. They believe the time has passed when a harmony plan can be put over. Just the same, they are talking harmony and booming harmony candidates.

The chief of their harmony selections is George E. Alter, Attorney General under Governor Spruill and a friend of Governor S. Oliver, one of the Mellon-Oliver-Grundy alliance. The Governor has also been boosting Alter as a harmony candidate. The Pittsburgh leaders say that Alter will not run unless he has to; unless, that is, he is being urged by real democracy. They believe that if Alter could be persuaded to run, he would head off the candidacy of John S. Fisher, State banking commissioner, which is settling away to a running start.

Other harmony selections in the Pittsburgh stable are Judges Quigley, of Center County and Keller, of Lancaster County. Not only are the Pittsburghers, but they are also having a good time. All of which led politicians to remark once more that the situation was all shot to pieces.

Senator Lesley, on his arrival, and before making any announcement, Senator Vero, started in on W. Harry Baker with his harmony program. Baker is

EDUCATOR SCORES MODERN COLLEGIAN

'Egotistical and Agnostic,' Rev. Dr. Green Tells M. E. Conference

DATE-CHANGING PLAN LOSES

The modern college man was branded as "Jack-ass-fool" by Dr. Francis Green, formerly professor of English at the West Chester Normal School and now head of Pennington Seminary, in an address at today's session of the 1921 annual Philadelphia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The conference is being held in the Wharton Memorial Church, at Fifty-fourth and Catharine streets.

Dr. Green spoke at the morning session on modern school tendencies. "Some people are inclined to believe that the modern college man is an egotistical fellow," said Dr. Green. "I hear others complain that he is inclined to be agnostic. To my mind both these diagnoses are wrong. The modern college man is neither egotistical nor agnostic. He may coin a word, he is 'Jack-ass-fool'."

Dr. Green spoke of the work being done among the boys at the Pennington Seminary. He declared that every effort is made here to see to it that all the students are real Christians.

Dr. J. H. Morgan, president of Dickinson College, another college head, who spoke at the morning conference, said that at his college last year there were more students in the theological school than in any other Methodist institution.

Maryland Governor Praised

By resolution of the conference, a resolution of thanks was telegraphed to the Governor of Maryland, in praise of his sturdy stand on the enforcement of the liquor amendment.

The Rev. Dr. John G. Wilson, district superintendent, proposed that in future the annual conference be held in April instead of March. The reason given by Dr. Wilson was that it would be more convenient for many ministers to attend if the Easter services were observed in the same month.

Bishop Berry, who presided today, negated this plan, saying he was convinced the present plan of meeting the annual conference in March was the best. The matter will be taken up at the next conference. It was decided to stick to the existing arrangement.

Girl Perusing Thrilling Love Tale Starts Fire in Her Home

UPSETS CANDLE AS SHE READS EXCITING NOVEL

A young woman, who is twenty years old and prettier than a picture, was reading a thrilling tale of love and adventure by candlelight. As the story became more intense, she moved voluntarily as she turned the page. The candle, she says, was on a saucer beside her, and it upset, igniting the bedding and mattress.

Mary, who came in and her uncle, Charles Sweeney, with whom she lives, ran into the room. Mr. Sweeney took the girl to the bathroom and with himself, picked up the blanket and hurried it through the window, then turned in an alarm of fire.

The damage was done, and the flames were extinguished quickly. Mary escaped so much as a scorching, and she saved the novel from the flames.

DANISH PRINCE TO WED

Heir to Throne Reported Engaged to Greek Princess

Copenhagen, March 24.—(By A. P.)—The engagement of Prince Frederik of Denmark to Princess Olga, eldest daughter of Prince Nicholas of Greece, announced on March 23, came as a great surprise here, even to King Christian and Queen Alexandra. How much so can be judged from the fact that a supposed picture of the prospective bride printed in the Danish newspaper, and authorized by the Court Chamberlain, turned out to be not that of Princess Olga, but of another Greek Princess.

It seems to have been a case of love at first sight, for the correspondent has been given to understand that the Crown Prince proposed marriage the second time he met Princess Olga at Cannes. The Prince is twenty-three years old and the Princess eighteen.

SENATE REJECTS TREATY CHANGES

Ratification Forecast as Qualifying Declarations Are Beat in Rapid Succession

ARTICLE I APPROVED ON ROLL CALL, 74 TO 15

O. O. P. Irreconcilables Join Democratic Foes of Four-Power Pacific Pact

By the Associated Press

Washington, March 24.—A long succession of proposed amendments and reservations to the Four-Power Pacific Treaty were voted down one after another by the Senate today as it approached a final roll call on ratification.

The first qualifying declaration to be defeated was an amendment by Senator Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas, which would have pledged the treaty signatories against "any secret treaty, arrangement or understanding, with any other Power or Powers during the life of this treaty."

The vote was 82 to 61. Six Democratic Senators—Dial, South Carolina; Myers, Montana; Pomerene, Ohio; Ransdell, Louisiana; Underwood, Alabama; and Williams, Mississippi, voted against the amendment, and four Republicans—Senators France, Maryland; Johnson, California; La Follette, Wisconsin; and Borah, Idaho, supported it.

Article I Approved

No further amendments were offered to Article I of the treaty and on a roll call the article was approved in committee of the whole, 74 to 15. Opposition leaders said the division did not represent the strength that would be shown on final ratification, since many Senators based their opposition on other sections of the treaty.

Those who voted against Article I were Senators Ashurst, Arizona; Culler, Texas; Gerry, R. I.; Harris, Ga.; King, Utah; Reed, Missouri; Robinson, Ark.; Sheppard, Texas; Shields, Tenn.; and Williams, Mississippi. Democrats, and Borah, Idaho; France, Md.; Johnson, Calif.; and La Follette, Wis.—Republicans.

Senator Robinson then offered and the Senate rejected an amendment to Article II pledging the signatories against aggression against any outside Power and giving outside Powers the right to sit in conference affecting their interests. The vote on this amendment was 35 to 63. The only Republicans supporting it were Senators Borah, France, Johnson, and La Follette, and the only Democrats opposing it were Senators Pomerene, Ransdell, Underwood and Williams.

Sir Hall Caine Tells Why Sin Is Theme of New Novel

'Master of Man' Based on Real Cases in 'Portfolio of Pain and Tears'—Judge Sits in Sentence on Girl Tried for Their Transgression

By SIR HALL CAINE

Greenha Castle, Isle of Man. I hear with much interest that my story "The Master of Man" is to be published serially in the EVENING PUBLIC LEADER, and I will accept very cheerfully to the request of the editor that I should say a few words to his readers by way of explaining how it came to be written.

No work of imagination that is worthy of the name is built solely, or even mainly, on facts from life, but few that have the merit of reality have not been suggested to their authors by real events. In the case of "The Master of Man," there were at least two series of events which suggested the story as it is written, and I think it perhaps not injurious to intending readers to hear what they were.

A good many years ago an advocate (or solicitor) in the Isle of Man, of the name of St. John, was a man of a most staid and serious character, and a young girl under rather shameful circumstances, and then, when the consequences of their intercourse became certain, caused her to be married to a man of inferior position. Of the subsequent happenings I can only give the version of the few surviving friends of the advocate and of general rumour and report, claiming no absolute authority for them, and trying to avoid such details as might lead to painful and perhaps unnecessary identifications.

When the child was born it was only too plainly apparent to the husband that he could not have been the father of it, and thereupon his relations with his wife became serious and even tragic.

REALISM as well as Romance marks THE MASTER OF MAN, the powerful story of a mutual transgression. By SIR HALL CAINE who, in the accompanying article, analyses the problem in literature of the unmarried mother, who murders her babe and tells of the actual cases on which is based this FRANK AND GRIPPING story, which will begin TOMORROW in EVENING PUBLIC LEADER.

What recriminations ensued and what knowledge of the true parentage was revealed to the husband can be guessed by the result. The child was found drowned in a pond, and its identification was established. Suspicion fell upon the husband, and he fled from the island; but it is significant that no inquest was held upon the body of the child, and therein lay the first of the facts which connected the advocate with the crime.

Between his betrayal of the girl and the crowning of her child he had been appointed by the Crown to the office of Deemster or Judge (the highest office in the island) and therefore, to those who had knowledge of his offense, his position was seen to be one of the utmost peril. If the murderer of the child were brought to trial what would happen to the Judge?

And now I come to merely plausible conjecture on the development of the story.

State Police and County Sheriffs Confer and Map Out Defensive Program

Pittsburgh, March 24.—The announcement of Attorney General Daugherty, that the Federal Government will not tolerate violence to prevent coal production during the approaching national coal strike, was consequent upon persistent reports that the miners were arming in various parts of the bituminous fields.

These reports were carried to Harrisburg and as a result investigations have been instituted by the State police, as well as by county authorities in the districts indicated.

It has been alleged that in Pennsylvania there had been some purchases of arms. That weapons in some cases are in the hands of aliens who are prohibited from carrying arms, but these infractions of the law are comparatively few.

Wherever the discovery has been made, that rifles, and these are the weapons referred to because they can be purchased at a low price, have been brought into a district, the owners have been spotted.

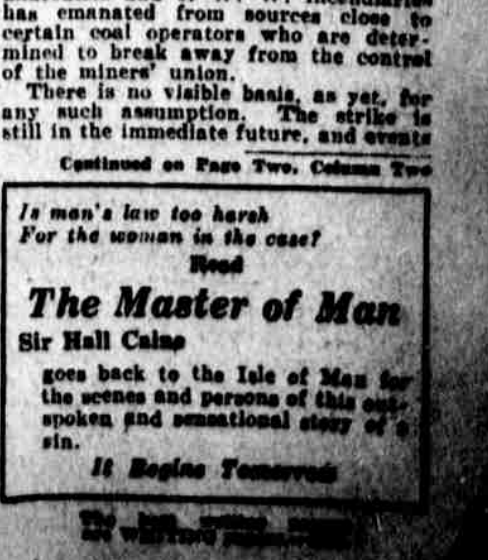

Fear Professional Agitators

Coal operators say that they are less fearful of this condition than they are of professional agitators who are already working in the districts in the interests of the I. W. W. and the Russian Soviet.
