ONLY AT BARBERS

Mountaineer Outlaw
Tells Governor If
His Beard Is Clipped

FUN WATCHING CROWD

The "wild man" captured yesterday at Quakertown, was taken to Doylestown this morning and placed in jail there in charge of vagrancy, and now the duty task of determining whether he is a genuine "wild man," or just an ordinary wanderer rests upon the shoulders of the legal authorities of Bucks county.

An attempt will be made to identify the man who twenty-two years ago in Haycock Mountain, six miles from Quakertown, killed a constable and another man in driving off a horse.

The first action that the District Attorney will attempt will be to shear his beard, a foot long, and his hair, of gray hair, so that his features may be compared with a photograph of a murderer taken twenty-four years ago.

"Is Hard Man to Shave?"
No such action the "wild man" who has his name as Roy Hecks, makes no objection.

"I've been growing this beard for twenty years," the "wild man" said when he turned over to Sheriff Harry Hunsberger at Doylestown. "I am a member of a church which is opposed to shaving."

He denies vigorously that he is a member of the outlaw mountaineer, and he is so sure that he would not desert a child. He told an exceedingly long story of his past life when asked to go to the jail at Doylestown this morning.

"I was born in Homer, Ill.," he said, "and was never in the East until 1912. My father was James Newton Hecks and my grandfather was a minister in Quakertown for forty years. I attended a preparatory school for a year and then went to railroad school."

"In 1902 I had an arm cut off when working as a brakeman and then went to New Orleans in 1904 for the first time, and then went to Quakertown, Pa., and returned to Quakertown only a few days ago."

"Still Think He Is 'Outlaw'?"
Despite his story there are many who think the jail at Quakertown last night who say they see a strong resemblance between the "wild man" and the outlaw. These old residents of the vicinity of Haycock Mountain were ushered into the jail at a time last night. The "wild man" watched the curious crowds and asked Chief Rhodes if the townspeople had been invited to the town hall at his strangeness or to give him a chance to marvel at their.

"Everywhere I stop they pinch me," he said. "I'm used to it. If they try to cut off my beard I'll send a telegram to Governor Sproul, and they can take a lot of things away from me now, but he still has the right to wear his hair and beard the way he wants to."

FLEE FLAMES IN NIGHT
East Cambria Street Tailor and Family Routed From Beds
Fire discovered at 1 o'clock this morning in the tailor shop of Samuel Levin, 201 East Cambria street, caused the precipitate flight of Levin, his wife, and their two children, Samuel, eleven years old, and Bertha, eight. The family was asleep on the third floor when aroused, and escaped to the ground by the back stairs, clad only in night garments. The firemen succeeded in confining the flames to a closet on the second floor. Damage is estimated at $200.

JOHNSON WILL VOID IF COUNCIL ACTS
Eminent Attorney Says Orphan's Court Can't Bar Condemnation of Mansion

FORCES ART INTO MUSEUM
If Council should pass the ordinance providing for the opening of Naudain street through the John G. Johnson mansion, making that place useless as an exhibition place for the famous art collection, there would be no question of contempt of court involved, according to an eminent lawyer, who was one of those representing the city in the long proceedings before the Orphan's Court.

In this case the city's right to open the street would be supreme, he said, over the mandates and the power of the Orphan's Court to enforce provisions of the Johnson will.

"This ordinance is a complete surprise to me," said Mr. Johnson, who sat as master in the proceedings before the Orphan's Court by which it was sought to have the paintings exhibited in a building on the Parkway. "I do not see how the bill would affect the status of the bequest. No property privately owned is exempt from condemnation by the city for public improvements."

Mr. Todd then said he did not care to discuss the case or the procedure in case the city goes through with its plan and brings the question of exhibiting the paintings elsewhere to the Orphan's Court.

Maurice B. Saul, one of the executors of the Johnson will, said he would not comment upon the bill or ordinance until he had examined it carefully and consulted with officers of the Pennsylvania Company, trustee under the Johnson will.

"If Naudain street is opened as proposed, would it be possible to attempt to retain the Johnson collection in the remaining property?" Mr. Saul was asked.

"It would not seem so, but I do not wish to make any statement. I know more of the matter. As I understand it, the proposal is a direct move to make the old Johnson mansion useless."

SHIFTER PERIL IS NOT FELT HERE
Philadelphia Women Refuse to Be Excited by "Alarm" of New Yorkers Over Secret Order

JUST GOOD FUN, THEY SAY
The "Shifter" Order presents no amazing peril to the welfare of Philadelphia's young women, is the assurance of two women who have seen the workings of the order among girls of the flapper age.

In New York, however, the order is looked upon as a "dirtation peril."
"There is no need for alarm," says Miss Mary Tyler, girls' work secretary of the Y. W. C. A. Miss Tyler comes in contact with all girls in the Philadelphia Y. W. C. A. between the ages of twelve and eighteen—in the high schools and the shops.

"I haven't seen a thing serious about it," she continued, "but have seen a lot of fun had out of it."
Have Lot of Fun
When asked if she thought that girls were spending their money foolishly on initiation fees in the order instead of saving it for serious things, she replied, smilingly, "They don't save their money anyway."

Dr. Laura E. Cornell, dean of the Temple University, says that the order meant "a lot of fun" at the University.
"It came and went like an attack of measles," she said. "It is so silly, I never thought of taking it seriously. As many boys joined here as girls. I did not see any reason to try to suppress it. The initiation exhortations here were chiefly candy."

Gertrude Robinson-Smith, acting for the Vaccination Association, of which she is president, said in New York that her investigations of what she called "the ways and wiles of the Society of Shifters," had shown the organization to be even more reprehensible than had been at first supposed.

New Yorker "Alarmed"
"The prospective member of the Shifters is made to believe that she is asked to join a universal secret society to promote cordiality, particularly between the sexes," said Miss Robinson-Smith. "The society badge serves as an invitation to flirtation and to intimacies that self-respecting girls would ordinarily resent."

"We have learned that among high school students' petting parties have been the general result of Shifter initiations. There is a Shifter dress, we have learned, a black and white creation of a Shifter insignia, which is a turned-back coat, and a peculiar shuffling gait, which calls itself the Shifter walk. To wear a Shifter dress is to invite the attentions of male Shifters."

Here Are "Excerpts"

Nothing had happened at last accounts.

Dr. Balthasar Treats Up Injured Alredale Which Was Paralyzed
A remarkable case of animal surgery has effected a cure in the Veterinary Hospital, 4007 Market street. Sandy, a pure-bred, six-months-old Alredale, has been saved by the expert treatment.

Several days ago Sandy ran away from his master, John W. Scott, 34, 2788 Belmont avenue, and romped across the sidewalk into the roadway, heedless of danger. A car struck the puppy and broke his back, paralyzing his hind legs.

Dr. Harry E. Balthasar was called. For three weeks the puppy was trussed up in a kennel. After he tried to get on his legs the tenth day Dr. Balthasar improvised a "walker," such as is used to teach infants to walk. Sandy now plays with the wooden frame on wheels as if it were another puppy, and Dr. Balthasar believes that his injury soon will be healed.

HITS BISHOP GAILOR FOR VIEWS ON BEER
Rev. Mr. Empringham, Yonkers, Tells Lenten Audience Prelate is Misguided

MOLDS BOOZE IS A NARCOTIC
The views of Bishop Thomas Gailor, presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church, were assailed at noon today by the Rev. James Empringham, of Yonkers, N. Y., speaking at the daily Lenten services in St. Stephen's Church, Fourth street above Chestnut, on "Is Bishop Gailor a Bad Man?"

"By favoring modification of the Eighteenth Amendment so as to permit the use of light wines and beer in the home," said Mr. Empringham, "Bishop Gailor says he is following the example set by Christ and the apostles. As a result of those views he is being constantly attacked by prohibitionists."

"In my opinion," continued Mr. Empringham, "the Bishop is a mistaken man. He has devoted so much time to the study of theology he has not kept pace with modern times." Mr. Empringham differs widely from Bishop Gailor regarding the proposed return of the saloon. He said: "Ninety-two per cent of alcohol was

"After all, this life is but a battle of right versus wrong," said Dr. Tomkins, "and the great moral problem of man today is to know just what is right and what is wrong."
"Man must realize his relation to God, and after that his next step is to realize just what is the proper relation with his everyday associates. Man's relationship to God is only satisfied after his sins have been washed away."
