CHAPTER IV.

The Giant Builds a Fire TACK and Janet forgot their danger when Giant Cross-Patch went tumhim ker-thump to the ground. The giant looked so comical, sprawling there, gasping for breath, they had to laugh. And so did King Hummer, Prince Flitter-Flash and Judge Owl.
But they shouldn't have waited to laugh. They should have fied before the giant could pick himself up.
Groaning and grunting, the giant rose to his feet. He shook his fist at the bellow tree.

"I'll get you yet, old Owl," he rosred. "I know a way to make you

the hollow tree.

'I'll get you yet, old Owl," he roared. 'I know a way to make you come flying out, and when you come out I'll be ready with my gun. I'll shoot you with one big bullet for keeping me awake all night; I'll shoot you with another big bullet for biting my finger."

That threat sobered Judge Owl in a bury.

"Oh, oh," groaned the Judge. Two bullets—they will finish me twice over."

Jack and Janet also worried. What would the giant do now?

Cross-Patch quickly showed them.
He began to gather dry sticks.

"Oh, ch!" groaned Judge Owl. "He is going to build a fire to cook me and sat me."

eat me."
Perhaps he will eat us, too," whispered Janet to Jack. "He might like us for dessert." But Giant Cross-Patch wasn't building a cooking fire—he was making a hunting fire. He began to arrange the dry wood at the bottom of the hollow

"He is going to smoke us out," whispered Jack. That is just what the giant planned to do. He felt in his pockets for a match. Not a match did he find.
"He can't light a fire without matches," chuckled Jack.
But the giant quickly proved Jack was wrong. He drew a round magnifying glass from his pocket. He held this in such a way that the sun shone through on the sticks. The glass caught the sun's rays and gathered them into the sun's rays and gathered them into one tiny point. That point was very hot. It made the twigs smoke, and of a sudden they burst into flames. The whole pile caught fire.

The smoke passed up the hollow tree

The smoke passed up the hollow tree as through a chimney. It made the hiders cough and choke.

"We must get out of this or we will be smothered," gasped Jack.

But down below the giant was waiting with his gun. He was ready to shoot the minute Judge Owl poked his head outside. Something had to be done, and done in a hurry.

"I'll make the giant look the other way," gasped Jack. "When I do, you must all rush out and hide in the woods."

Jack darted out of the trees. He was so tiny the giant paid no attention to him. Jack, though scared, flew down behind the giant.

The fire flared up, the smoke poured up the tree, Judge Owl coughed loudly.

"Ah!" roared the giant grimly.

"You can smother there or be shot outside. Take your choice."

Just then the giant heard a buzzing close to his ear—a buzzing as of an angry bee. Something hit him on the neck. The giant ducked and dodged. He thought he was going to be stung. He thought he was going to be stung. Buzz-z-z-z: Something touched his cheek. The giant jumped the other way.

As he jumped and dodged he took his eye off the opening in the hollow tree. Out flew Judge Owl and Janet and the fairies. "Hoo! We fooled you!"

oasted Judge Owl. gleefully, as he vanished from sight among the trees.

DINE 35 FT. UNDER GROUND Operating Engineers to Hold Annual

Banquet Amid Dynamos The first banquet ever held in an engine room in this city will take place at 6:30 tonight when the Institution of Operating Engineers will hold its annual dinner thirty-five feet below the surface of Chestnut street, in the engine room of the Widener Building. Building.

George W. Norris, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank: Alba B. Johnson, president of the Chamber of Commerce; H. A. Beale, Jr., president of the Parkesburg Iron Works, and A. E. Chase, assistant engineer of the Delaware River Bridge, will be among the guests of honor at this unusual feast, where the board will be set in the midst of popping valves, spinning fly wheels and whining dynamos.

In spite of the proximity of 2200 horsepower in process of gener-

ENDS LIFE WITH SHOT John S. Gilchrist Kills Himself at

Twentieth and Alter Streets John S. Gilchrist, of 2102 Chris-tian street, was found dead this morning in an alley, at 1932 Alter street, a revolver clutched in his hand and a built wound in his right temple.

Mrs. Gilchrist is prostrated with grief at her home. Friends said the two had been happy together and knew of no reason to prompt her husband to commit suicide.

To Award Browning Medal The tenth meeting of the Browning Society will take place at 8 o'clock tonight in the drawing room of the New Century Club, 124 South Twelfth street. David Wallerstein will read a paper on "The Bacon-Shakespeare Rumbug," and there will be reading by Miss Helena I. Balbirnie, Mrs. M. L. E. Lippincott, Mrs. O. Charles Broderson and Archibald Ralston. Officers will be elected and the Browning Medal awarded.

Asks Dismissal of Bergdoll Claim Dismissal of the $750,000 claims against the Government of Grover C. against the Government of Grover C. Bergdoll, draft evader, on the ground that through loss of citizenship by conviction of deserting from the army he had forfeited all right to prosecute the claim, was asked by Thomas W. Miller, Allen Property Custodian, in a petition fled today in the District of Columbia Supreme Court.
