

FRANCE RESTRICTS GENOA DELEGATES

Shearing of Envoys' Power May Elicit Protest From Russia

ALLIED PREMIERS TO MEET

By the Associated Press Paris, April 6.—Prime Minister Lloyd George, who will arrive in Paris tomorrow afternoon on his way to Genoa, will have a talk with Premier Poincare and discuss the Genoa gathering, the German attitude on the reparations issue, and the inter-allied debts.

The French delegates are going to the Genoa conference without full powers. Poincare's final instructions to them are to develop from reports of the allied premiers, when they met in Cannes and decided to call the conference, insisted that the Russian Soviet delegates be not in turn with M. Poincare. The Russian delegation, however, it is declared, would be justified in taking exception to the presence of the delegation of an important State without full powers.

The ruling is interpreted by a portion of the press as reducing the French delegates to the role of observers, which it is declared, is not in turn with M. Poincare's increased enthusiasm for the economic conference and his expressed desire to co-operate heartily in making it a success.

It is explained by persons close to the French delegation that he was obliged to make such a reservation regarding the powers of the French delegation because of the sensitiveness of Parliament, which sharply criticized the preceding Cabinet for binding France on important questions, such as reparations, without consulting the Chamber of Deputies.

The necessity for ratification by Parliament of any decisions taken at Genoa is generally accepted. Political circles are still skeptical of the Poincare conference in spite of the fact that the French delegation will not be a change of more than a "tower of Babel."

Genoa, April 6.—(By A. P.)—Foreign Minister Schanzer has urged the chief delegates of the allied Powers to be here by Sunday for a meeting preliminary to the conference which opens Monday. M. Schanzer acted on the suggestion of David Lloyd George, British Prime Minister.

Premier Poincare will attend the conference for about a week, after which he will return to Rome, leaving M. Schanzer to direct the work of the session.

The Russian Soviet delegation has arrived in Italy and is being escorted to Rapallo, by a specially detailed detective force. The Russians were met at the frontier by M. Vorovsky, Russian representative in Italy, and Count Ricotti, Secretary to the Foreign Ministry. The latter greeted them in the name of the Italian Government and informed them that diplomatic immunity and privileges would be extended to them during their entire sojourn in Italy.

It is expected the conference will last about two months. It will be inaugurated by Premier Poincare, who will give the greetings of Italy to the foreign delegations and outline the object of the conference. The program of the meeting will be set forth in a speech by M. Schanzer.

King of Serbia Ill

Belgrade, April 5.—King Alexander has been confined to his room since Tuesday. The nature of his illness has not been given out.

GEORGE A. ALTER, State Attorney General, who may be decided on by the organization as compromise candidate for Governor.

Frantic Bosses Center on Alter

Standing in the office of Senator Vane this morning, Mr. Mackey lent a dramatic, possibly a melodramatic, favor to the already complicated situation, by declaring that he would not withdraw unless Fisher did likewise.

Mackey Promises Surprise "I didn't ask these people," declared Mackey, referring to the Vares, "to be for me. Later on, I may issue a statement telling you what I have done, and asked me to run. It will be an interesting statement. If the others, including Fisher, retire, then I will also, but if Fisher does not withdraw, I will not."

Mr. Mackey said this would be his position no matter if the others yielded to Alter. Mackey is beginning to give the leaders some concern. At first it was generally agreed that, notwithstanding his declaration, he would quickly step out of the picture when he got the tip from Senator Vane.

There is a fear, however, that such leaders as William Flinn will try to keep Mackey in the field with the object of aiding Pinchot. If Mackey should continue as a candidate in the face of an organization compromise on Alter, his candidacy would tend to help the independent candidate.

This view has some weight in organization circles for the reason that many of those who are for Mackey, such as Flinn, E. A. Van Valkenburg and others, would at once turn in for Pinchot if Mackey were thrown down as the organization candidate.

Alter is at Harrisburg today. The leaders are in touch with him and other strategic points throughout the State, by long-distance telephone. H. G. Layton, of the Fisher headquarters, went to Harrisburg today with the fifth batch of petitions for Mr. Fisher.

"Altogether," said Layton, "petitions from sixty out of the sixty-seven counties, carrying about 60,000 signatures, have or will be filed for Fisher. Nomination petitions for Biddleman will be filed today. Biddleman's supporters say that about 100,000 signatures have been obtained, but that only 30,000 will be filed. Pinchot is in Williamsport today.

U. S. May Recognize Bolshevik Russia

Goodrich Investigates Conditions Ex-Governor James Goodrich, who has been in Russia for a short time, nominally to supervise American relief there, but really making inquiries looking toward recognition of the Russian Government and its relations with this Government and is understood to have left Moscow on his way back to this country.

The British notice to France with regard to payment of interest on the war debt suggests that at last harmony of action between this country and England with regard to debts has been established. At one time it looked as if Great Britain might lead the way to the cancellation of loans, which would have been embarrassing to the United States.

Now apparently the idea of cancellation is definitely abandoned. France declined to allow reparations to be discussed at Genoa, this country stayed away from Genoa chiefly because it was unwilling to discuss cancellation of the loans to the Allies, and now Great Britain serves notice that she expects payment.

Won't Scale Down Debts For the moment at least the whole idea of restoring Europe by a scaling down of debts, Germany's debt to France and the allied debts to each other and to the United States, seems to be abandoned and Europe is looking to the development of Russia as the way out of its present troubles.

The creditor nations, following the lead of the United States, are all clinging to their portion of creditor nations. The fact also that the United States expects Lloyd George to succeed at Genoa in his Russian policy and will welcome his success there and follow it with quiet recognition of the Soviet Government indicates a general harmony between this country and Great Britain.

It is not known here whether the fear of German penetration of Russia through the Stines interests which prompted the Hughes note declining the invitation to Genoa has been dispelled or not. It has become increasingly apparent that Germany will follow the lead of England in regard to Russia.

One Bandit Shot in Robbery Orgy

Continued from Page One banding over the lock of the garage door. He ran toward them and one leaped behind a telephone pole and drew an automatic. The pistol was not adjusted properly because the magazine fell out as the bandit tried to fire. The three men then ran toward an automobile and Selby opened fire. Zaretsky fell in the street with a bullet in his hip. The others escaped.

"Don't Care," Says Mother As the Lankenau Hospital Zaretsky told police he lived at 7218 Woodland avenue. The grocery store and dwelling of Harry Moskowitz is at that address and Zaretsky's aged mother lives with the grocer and his family.

Mrs. Louis Zaretsky, the mother, wept when told her son had been wounded. But her grief quickly turned to anger. "I don't care," she said. "If he was a good son to me he would make home for me. He never gives me anything for my support. I haven't seen him for several years."

The three bandits in a stolen automobile who were frustrated in two attempts to loot downtown stores, but who finally looted a cigar store at Third and Walnut streets, held up a watchman and escaped by "shooting up" the neighborhood when a crowd collected. The cigars were recovered several hours later and the stolen automobile picked up by Detectives Logan and Burns, of the Twenty-sixth and York streets police station. The men who committed the robbery, discovered in a house on North Opal street by the detectives, ran out the back way and again escaped. They are known, however, as the "Harmony" gang.

Hot Fight Pending in Sixth District

West Philadelphia, the new Sixth Congressional District, will have its first hot political fight in years at the primaries, when four men will seek the Republican nomination for Congress.

T. Henry Walnut, of the Twenty-fourth Ward, former Assistant United States Attorney, has announced his candidacy on an independent "dry" platform.

Another active "dry" opposing him will be Robert Carson, of the Forty-sixth Ward, who was a magistrate for eight years. Mr. Carson has issued a statement declaring he is firmly and unalterably in opposition to any laws which would "neutralize or modify" the Volstead act, and would stand for strict enforcement of the law.

Other candidates are George A. Welsh, an Assistant District Attorney and member of the Board of Education, and John J. Coyle, former State Senator.

Frank M. Ritter, chairman of the Voters' League, has been mentioned as a probable candidate, but he has denied that he will run.

The Democratic candidate will be Mr. Walnut's former associate in the United States Attorney's office, Robert J. Sterrett, who at present is Mr. Walnut's chief of counsel for the Law Enforcement League. "The Mr. Walnut," Mr. Sterrett is pronounced "dry." Last year he opposed Samuel P. Rotan for the District Attorneyship.

Kutz Again in Race

Democrat Reconsiders Withdrawal as Congress Candidate Reading, Pa., April 6.—Ira J. Kutz, who last week withdrew from the Democratic fight for Congress in the interest of harmony, today announced he would file papers. Of the seven original candidates, every one had withdrawn in favor of William C. Croll, when Kutz decided yesterday to get back again. It may mean a general returning to the fight.

Hidden Clues May Trap Beck Slayer

Announcement that a charge of manslaughter would be preferred against Day, who is held under bond, unless additional evidence was obtained before Saturday, was made by Mr. Hughes last night. "I will tell the truth the very first chance I get," Day declared in reply to reports that he would decline to testify. The entire military board will fly here Saturday to attend the Coroner's inquest, he said. When the board's investigation is completed a report will be forwarded to the adjutant general of army at Washington.

Fort Sill, Okla., April 6.—(By A. P.)—The killing of Lieutenant Colonel Beck came as a shock here to the men made it plain today that they had it hard to believe the charges against Lieutenant Colonel Beck. "Lieutenant Colonel Beck was one of the finest soldiers I have ever met," said Brigadier General Hinder, commander of Fort Sill, "and as far as I know his character has always been above reproach."

"He never hid from anybody," said Major Paddock. "He faced death as a matter of duty in the air and on the ground too many times to play the role of a coward dog regardless of the position he was found in."

"Knowing Colonel Beck as I did, I can assure you positively he did not jump behind any curtain. It was as plain as day to me that he was not like him to do anything of that kind, even though he were caught in a place. At no time during our stay in the Lay home was any liquor served on our party," Major Paddock declared.

Episcopalians Add 50 Saints to List

The question of prayer for the dead has received much discussion in the Episcopal church, members of which is known as the High Church being, it is said, chiefly in favor of such prayers. The three services of baptism will be changed to one, to be used both in the baptizing of infants and adults and in private baptism.

One of these prayers is: "Be merciful to them, grant them peace and joy; and may the light of Thy presence shine upon them."

As the car got under way two of the bandits began to fire wildly up and down the streets. People dodged in every direction to escape the spattering bullets and the street was cleared quickly. The sergeant came up, but by that time the automobile, going full speed, was out of range. Many people in the crowd, however, had seen the license number on the car, and it was the same as that reported earlier by the two patrolmen.

Streets Become Alive

It was then but a few minutes to 5 o'clock, and there were a good many people on the street, most of them going to the nearby wholesale produce district which is active long before the stores and office buildings of the neighborhood are open.

As they left the store with the cigars and Albert Drehtober, a night watchman at 237 Dock street, passed the store. Two of the bandits drew guns and held the watchman up. They backed him against the wall and made him put up his hands, but did not wait to rob him.

"You keep quiet," they ordered as they jumped into the automobile.

Women, it was said today, gained nearly all of the points they raised in their struggle to have the marriage service changed so as to relieve them from what they believed to be an inferior position, but they failed to induce the commission to strike out the minister's question: "Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?"

This had been objected to by women because, in their opinion, it made it appear that a woman was given away or disposed of as a chattel.

The commission, however, insisted upon retaining this section. As a compromise, the direction that the minister shall receive "the woman from her father's or friend's hands" was stricken out.

Among the special services proposed by the commission is one for the Fourth of July. In this service the prayer will be: "May we possess our liberties in righteousness and peace."

Another change will be prayers for the dead. A number of such prayers are proposed. One of these prayers is: "Be merciful to them, grant them peace and joy; and may the light of Thy presence shine upon them."

Bishop Garland Approves

Suffragan Bishop Garland expressed approval today of the proposed changes. "The purpose," he said, "is to give the woman and the man equality in the marriage service; their promises to be the same."

"I agree to the justice of that. The report of the commission, printed in book form, reached me only the other day and I have not had opportunity to read it carefully. But I believe that the changes will achieve what has been desired and require neither of those ending into matrimony to promise more than the other."

Women leaders in the Episcopal Church were not disposed today to discuss the proposed changes. Mrs. J. Allison Scott said: "Women have no vote on the question of changes in the Book of Common Prayer, therefore little would be accomplished through expressing opinions. There is no woman member of the Commission of Revision. If there were women on it there might be more reason for asking for a woman's opinion."

"Let's get out a poor catalog"

NOBODY in the world ever urged poor printing in so many words.

Yet, every day, some buyer of printing tries to pound some printer down another notch on his price. Every day somebody tries to buy paper for his catalog with the same speculative zeal with which he would try to beat the market on oil stock or wheat futures.

All that amounts to saying, "Let's get out a poor catalog."

When business is dull, you expect more of your printed advertising—your booklets, circulars, catalogs. Warren's Standard Printing Papers, being better paper, will give you better printing.

Your printer will tell you that this is so.
