

MOVIEGRAMS OF THE WEEK

Charlie Chaplin at Stanton Next Week; Constance Talmadge Also—"The Golem" at Stanton—Other Picture News

Next week's film crop is impossible of classification and comparison. There are seven new pictures, and they are as totally dissimilar as types in the subway.

Moving conspicuously and grotesquely through the crowd of newcomers is an artist who likes to buffoon, or else a clown who sometimes achieves art—Charles Chaplin—whose latest comedy will be shown at the Stanton.

His familiar antics will be contrasted with the vastly different methods of Constance Talmadge, whose "Woman's Place" will be shown at the same house.

Other individual figures who stand shoulder to shoulder with the great Charlot and who promise to dominate the films in which they appear are Paul Wegener, the continental star, who appears as the gigantic stone image who comes to life in "The Golem," at the Stanton; and the young actress who reverts to his earlier style, and as the stern, blighted New England farmer in "Hail the Woman" at the Aldine.

The Arcadia has Betty Compson in the role of star attraction in "For Those Who Love," the Victoria has Bert Lytell in "The Right That Failed," a story of the prize-winning, the Arcadia has Betty Compson in the role of star attraction in "For Those Who Love," the Victoria has Bert Lytell in "The Right That Failed," a story of the prize-winning,

FOR the fan who runs as he reads the high-lights of the week are: "The Golem," "Hail the Woman," "For Those Who Love," and "The Right That Failed." "The Golem" (next week) and "Polly of the Palaces," with Constance Talmadge.

WHILE rumors are flying around that Mr. Chaplin intends to film "The Tramp" in Philadelphia, it is hardly probable that he will do so. He is already in the city, but it is hardly probable that he will do so. He is already in the city, but it is hardly probable that he will do so.

Perhaps to show Sister Norma that she isn't the only one alive, Constance Talmadge follows her sister to the Stanton within two weeks.

NEW PHOTOPLAYS STANTON—"The Right That Failed," a story of the prize-winning, the Victoria has Bert Lytell in "The Right That Failed," a story of the prize-winning, the Victoria has Bert Lytell in "The Right That Failed," a story of the prize-winning,

STARS APPEARING ON LOCAL SCREENS NEXT WEEK

Grid of star portraits with names and titles: Bert Lytell, Elaine Hammerstein, Betty Compson, Charlie Chaplin, Chas. Meredith and Florence Vidor, Gessue Hayakawa, Mabel Julienne Scott, Vivian Martin, Norma Talmadge, and Jessue Hayakawa.

THE CRITIC TALKS TO MUSIC LOVERS

THIS year, for the first time since the close of the music season of 1913-14, the Philadelphia Orchestra will play a "concert program," and if the vote which is polled is sufficiently large and all representative, it should furnish some very interesting material as to the changes in the taste of the orchestra-attending public of the city.

THE next season there will be no request programs, owing to the illness of Fritz Schell, which resulted in his death near the close of the season. In 1907-1908 the program was "Sakuntala," "The Pathétique," and the Vespers and Liebestod from "Tristan."

UNDER any circumstances, the results of the vote will be both interesting and instructive, not only to the members of the orchestra association, but to every one who is really interested in the musical welfare of the city.

THE program of the Philadelphia Orchestra from the time of the first one until they were discontinued was the unbroken series of "concert programs" of every season except one, when the composer was chosen. The vote program was always larger than that of the other members, showing that after all, the interest of the public was in the symphony, as it should be, rather than in the request program.

WITH the season of 1904-05 began the custom of publishing the vote in the programs. The winning compositions were the Pathétique, the "Tannhäuser" overture and the "Midsummer Night's Dream." The vote in 1905-06 was for the "Pathétique," the "Tannhäuser" overture and the "Midsummer Night's Dream."

From Manicure to Actress Helen Eley, who has one of the principal roles in "The Midnight Rounders," the cameo review which the Shuberts are bringing to the Chestnut Opera House as their vaudeville attraction next week, was formerly a manicure in the Bellevue-Stratford here. She attracted the attention of Marie Dress-

FORREST MATINEE TODAY "JINGLE BOOKS" TO ALL THE CHILDREN. NEXT WEEK LAST WEEK CHARLES DILLINGHAM Presents

FRED STONE IN THE "BEST OF ALL FRED STONE SHOWS" "TIP-TOP" Monday Night—Souvenir Albums of the Entire "Tip-Top" Company Given to Everybody Present

GARRICK Matinee Today LAST WEEKS THE GIRL THAT EVERYBODY LOVES! The Obri Girl (MAY'S MUSICAL SISTERS)

BROAD Merchant of Venice Tonight—JULIUS CAESAR LAST WEEK ROBERT B. MANTELL AND GENEVIEVE HAMPER Monday... KING LEAR Thursday... AS YOU LIKE IT Tuesday... HAMLET Friday... MACBETH Wed. Mat. Merchant of Venice Sat. Mat. JULIUS CAESAR Wed. Night... RICHELIEU Sat. Night... RICHARD III

ELsie FERGUSON in "THE VARYING SHORE" FOR BENEFIT AT THE BROAD, FORREST AND GARRICK THEATRES

GRAND STRAND MONDAY, TUESDAY & WEDNESDAY BETTY COMPSON The Law and the Woman WILL ROGERS and LILA LEE in "ONE GEORGIA DAY" 69 STREET THEATRE OPPOSITE TERMINAL Locust Sessue HAYAKAWA in "FIVE DAYS TO LIVE" Thursday, Friday and Saturday MABEL NORMAND in "THE WIFE OF A JAPANESE" Rudolph Valentino in Balzac's Story of the Conflict of Love "THE CONQUERING POWER" Thursday, Friday and Saturday WILLIAM DE MILLE'S PRODUCTION "MISS LULU BETH"

RIVOLI 5212 & SANSON STS. F. G. NIXON-NIRDLINGER, Manager ALL NEXT WEEK—AT 1:30 AND 8:15 TO 11 P. M. TOM WISE RIGGS & WITCHE DOUGLAS LEAVITT & RUTH MARYLOCKWOOD HERSCHEL HENLERE Presenting "MADAME SKIDDIKADINK" in "PIANOPLAGE" MEEHAN'S CANINES Celebrated Leaping Hounds AESOP'S FABLES TOPICS OF THE DAY PATHE NEWS Extra Added Attraction! AND Philadelphia's Own Favorite! RUTH ROYE COMPLETION OF SYNOPSIS IN HER NEWEST SCENE, "THE PHOENIX" (Except Saturday and Holiday) 1000 Jefferson Road, 2nd Floor, Philadelphia

ONLY a few people would adopt a middle course in regard to foreign film features there would be a lot more sense displayed on the subject. There is one class of films that naturally "rate low" because they are foreign, and there is another group, a larger number of the critical brotherhood belong to it, who think that every film importation is of necessity a thousand miles better than anything made close to home in Long Island or Jersey.

As a matter of fact, there have been some atrociously bad foreign films shown around here, some of which looked as if they might have been made in the year of the fall of the Roman Empire, with some of the characters out of Dr. Caligari's Cabinet as a cast.

Though the story itself is weirdly beautiful and unusual, and the settings made to even more so. Scenes in the Ghetto of Prague, sun-drenched alley-ways, dimly lit courts, glimpses of fantastic sky over medieval gates.

OLD friends in both characters and situations will be greeted once again in the film of the Aldine, "Hail the Woman" is Thomas H. Ince's first production in some time, and it has the merit of one of the best recent ones lately arrayed on the screen.

More interesting than this plot resume is the news that in addition to that steering actor Robbins, who should be starred by himself, there is to be in "Puttendall Wilson" and "The Consul," the cast includes Midge Bellamy, one of the latest season stars; Florence Turner, Lloyd Hughes, Gertrude Tarr, Vernon Dent, Edward Martindel, Charles Meredith and Marjorie Brand-

It is just as interesting, too, to the average fan to know what good things are in the offing, so the following films are mentioned as possible attractions: "The Consul," "The Lotus Eater," "The Doctor," and "The Lone That Had No Turning."

It is just as interesting, too, to the average fan to know what good things are in the offing, so the following films are mentioned as possible attractions: "The Consul," "The Lotus Eater," "The Doctor," and "The Lone That Had No Turning."

It is just as interesting, too, to the average fan to know what good things are in the offing, so the following films are mentioned as possible attractions: "The Consul," "The Lotus Eater," "The Doctor," and "The Lone That Had No Turning."