Letters to the Editor

"When Rogues Fall Out." Etc. To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger: Sir—While reading the numerous articles and editorials regarding the political situation in Pennsylvania and the lack of harmony among the so-called "leaders," the truth in the above quotation is emphasized, and one is impressed with the idea that this is an excellent time for the independent voters who constitute a large percentage of the rank and file of the Republican Party, to embrace a long-looked-for opportunity to take the nominal power, unadvisedly, from the hands of the unscrupulous as leaders and exercise that power themselves, thus demonstrating that they are not only real Republicans, but also real Americans.

There is one man in the race for the nomination whose name is well known throughout the State and upon whom all eyes are turned, and that is Mr. Gifford Pinchot, and his record of past performances is a sufficient guaranty for the future. As National Forester, he was tried and not found wanting. His ability was more attractive than political preference, and when the test came he chose the former. There is no man in the State better equipped for the job than Mr. Pinchot, and, besides he has no boss, no entangling alliance with any political gang, and he has a past record that is absolutely beyond question.

If the people of Pennsylvania really desire a Governor who shall owe to them and not to any political faction, they should elect Mr. Pinchot. He is a man of high character, and his record of past performances is a sufficient guaranty for the future. As National Forester, he was tried and not found wanting. His ability was more attractive than political preference, and when the test came he chose the former.

It seems inconceivable that any considerable number of citizens of Pennsylvania should not be glad of the opportunity to strike an effective blow at the domination of State affairs. If we are what the name of our party signifies and believe in the doctrine of self-government, it is our duty to do so. It is our duty to do so. It is our duty to do so.

It is our duty to do so. It is our duty to do so. It is our duty to do so. It is our duty to do so. It is our duty to do so. It is our duty to do so. It is our duty to do so. It is our duty to do so. It is our duty to do so.

WHAT TO TALK. Talk happiness. The world is sad enough. Without your words, no path is wholly rough. Look for the places that are smooth and clear. And speak of those to rest the weary ear of earth, as hurt by one continuous strain of human discontent and grief and pain.

Talk faith. The world is better off without your uttered ignorance and morbid doubt. If you have faith in God or man or self, say so; if not, push back upon the cheer of silence all your thoughts till faith shall come. No one will grieve because your lips are dumb.

Talk health. The dreary never-ending tale of morbid maladies is worn and stale. You are clean, not infected, nor diseased. By keeping on the march, you are clean. Say you are well, or all is well with you. And you will hear your words and make them true.

THE SIN OF OMISSION. By Margaret Sangster. It is the thing you leave undone. That gives you a bit of heartache. At the setting of the sun. The angels will be looking for you. The flowers will not be so bright. Are your hands empty about at night?

Years for Wartime Bands

By J. P. McEvoy

ALMOST we would undertake another war to bring back the brave bands that used to march triumphantly through the streets, even half hour before the sun had set, and the windows were dark and the windows were dark and the windows were dark.

The Church and Your Health

When church-going falls off, nerves come in. This is more than a coincidence.

Late sleeping, loafing at home are not restful as they seem. Chauncey M. Depew used to gain rest when tired by making speeches, bringing a different set of brain cells in use.

Going to church does this for you. It is a change in mind. When you go to church and forget yourself and think of Divinity you are changed.
