T HEAR that two of the Wurts girls. L Eleaner and Posie, are going abroad this summer with their aunt, Mrs. Ed-mund McCullough. They went over a couple of years ago for the summer and had a perfectly beautiful time. Speaking of the Wurtses, there's to be a debutante in that family next winter. a debutante in that family next winter, rou know, and a mighty attractive one, too—Elizabeth Willson, whose mother was Dorothy Wurts, a sister of Mr. Robert Wurts and Mr. Stewart Wurts and of Mrs. Tom Tunis and Mrs. Perot Bissell. Elizabeth is a daughter of the late Dr. Robert N. Willson and a granddaughter of the late Judge Willson and of Dr. Charles Wurts, who lived for many years at the northwest corner of Seventeenth and Walnut streets. where the Estey Building is now situwhere the Estey Sunding is now atta-ated. Elizabeth's mother made her debut from that house, as did her two aunts, Mrs. Tunis and Mrs. Bissell. Elizabeth is very pretty, with a lovely glowing color and clear skin and soft brown hair. She has two delicious deep dimples and a very charming manner.

Unless Mrs. Willson changes her plans Ellisabeth will be introduced at a tea in November from her home, 1708 Locust street. They expect to spend the summer in Europe.

TIMMY was weeping sadly, freely and with great abandon. Nothing could with great abandon. Nothing could divert him; he wept, he wailed. Finally Aunt Dee, whom he loved devotedly, came in to see the family. "Now at last." thought Sister, whose unwitting throwing away of a treasured flower had been the cause of the grief. "Now at last he'll stop." "Come, dearie, and talk to Aunt Dee," called the charming sunt. "I tan't," sobbed Jimmie. "Why, yes, darling, you can; come to his own Aunt Dee, and tell her about it." "I tan't," insisted this young apostle of efficiency, 'I'm busy cwying." efficiency, 'I'm busy cwying. NANCY WYNNE.
