Nancy Wynne Talks of the Fishtail Dance for Miss Eleanor Hart—Philadelphia Dancing Class Meets at Ritz-Carlton Hotel

THAT was a beautiful dance which Mr. and Mrs. George Harrison Fisher gave at the Ritz-Carlton last night for their granddaughter, Eleanor Hart. Eleanor is a most attractive girl and was quite one of the smartest of the debutantes of the last season. On the Hart side of the family, she is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hart, whose home in town was on the corner of Juniper and Walnut streets for so many years. Mrs. Hart was Miss Mary Meigs, and was, of course, related to that widely connected and well-known family. Mr. Hart was a prominent officer in the First City Troop more than half a century ago. He died about fifteen years since, and Mrs. Hart's death years since.

Mrs. Hart and her daughter, Miss Maidie Hart, and Dr. Charles Hart lived in Ambler in the summer and in town in winter. Since Mrs. Hart's death, however, her children have sold the town house (which was used for some years by the Emergency Aid, you remember, for a sailors and soldiers' clubhouse) and Miss Hart and Dr. Hart are now living in Chestnut Hill all the year round. Dr. Hart, as you know, has been on the committee of the Assembly for some years. There has always been a Hart or a Meigs or a Fisher on that committee.

Eleanor Hart's mother was Miss Anna Fisher, and she is one of our handsomest women, very tall and statuesque, and her hair is like gold. She has beautifully chiseled features and is very charming. Eleanor Hart has bright brown hair and a warm, glowing color. I remember seeing her in a play at Springdale as a contrast to the debuteante who was tall with her feet and ago and was dressed with her feet and ago. She is vivacious and sweet and always dresses in exquisite taste. The dance last night was not very large, some two hundred guests, mostly of the debutante age, and supper was served after midnight.

THE Ritz was gay with parties last evening. There was the meeting of Women Voters of the Glendale district, in Germantown, this afternoon in the Glendale Scout Cabin.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Magee of Oaklawn avenue, Oaklyn, N. J., announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Joyce Magee, to Mr. J. Irvin, Jr., of Collingswood, N. J. The formal announcement was made at a dinner on Sunday evening.

I hear there is to be a big birthday cake and it's going to have lots of surprises, and I am just as excited as I can be about it. Corinne Pauli is chairman of the party.

WHAT an interesting party that "Alice in Wonderland" affair is to be tomorrow night at the Academy of the Fine Arts. You know it's given by the Academy Fellowship and it's to celebrate the Fellowship's twenty-fifth birthday.

Georgiana Brown Harbison is to be Alice. In fact, I saw her in her costume yesterday, and she's quite the best Alice I ever seen—she's tall and slender, and her hair is like gold. She has straight hair and little full-waisted frock, to the innocent, intelligent wonder in her eyes. Miss Violet Oakley as Queen of Hearts has grouped about her in the garden scene Miss Dorothy M. Knaudt and Miss Kaywood, and I understand, Captain Walter Dawson, of the faculty of the University and president of the Water Color Club, is to be King of Hearts.

I hear there is to be a big birthday cake and it's going to have lots of surprises, and I am just as excited as I can be about it. Corinne Pauli is chairman of the party.

I HAVE told you how Dunnah spends much time at night praying for his family and friends. For God to bless his grandmother and to bless his father and mother is a great blessing for a good boy. And then the other day when mother expected him to get up from his prayers he knelt longer and said he "And bless mine own little self Amen."
