

CAMDEN BUSINESS IMPROVING SLOWLY
 Revival Not Yet Uniform, but Indications Point to Steady Broadening
BANKS SHOW GOOD GAINS

Business conditions in Camden are on the mend. The revival has not attained uniformity, but the change has been encouraging in certain lines, with indications of a further broadening. An official of the Esterbrook Steel Pen Manufacturing Company said yesterday that thus far this year the volume of business exceeded that of the same period last year. The growth, while not large, was the direct result of an increased demand from all sections of the country, and not because of any special buying, he said. "Our products are used in all parts of the United States, and in foreign countries," the Esterbrook Company's representative said, "and we believe our business reflects the trend of trade conditions generally. This being so, I take it that other lines of industry are picking up."

Shipbuilding continues quiet, but in the opinion of an official of the New York Shipbuilding Corporation, it will gather impetus when the railroad management are in a position to spend more liberally for equipment. This will mean the letting of contracts for vessels of special design and construction. Work of this type is going on now, though in a small way.

The president of a large bank asserted that if the monetary turnover is being circulated and that it is finding its way to the business men of Camden. "Our deposits," he added, "are creeping steadily ahead, showing that money is being circulated and that it is finding its way to the business men of Camden."

Arrested in recent raids made by Federal prohibition agents in Camden, six of thirty-four saloonkeepers were yesterday held under $500 each after hearings before United States Commissioner Joline in Camden. For a time it was thought the hearings would not take place because of the absence of Roy Coy, a Federal agent, who was detained at Newark on official business.

Without water since April 10, twenty residents of Bloomfield Park, Merchantville, through counsel, yesterday asked Public Utility Commissioner Bacharach in Camden to compel the Merchantville Water Company to turn on the supply of water. The petitioners declared that the water company and Cummings Brothers, developers of Bloomfield Park, are engaged in a quarrel over the payment of $750 for water supplied to the houses in the new tract. Because Cummings Brothers refused to pay the water bill the supply was cut off, leaving the residents without a supply of water. Commissioner Bacharach instructed an inspector for the commission to investigate the matter.
