Largest Prohibition Catch Made Near Town of Richland

AND WOMAN HELD

A huge home distillery, the largest found by prohibition agents in south Jersey and perhaps the largest ever taken in the State, having a combined capacity of 600 gallons, was seized by prohibition agents late yesterday in the heart of a dense woods between Richland and Beuna.

It was a sort of moonshine still de luxe, and was steaming away at full blast when the prohibitionists made the attack yesterday. The alleged owners, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholo Luccei, arrested at the time of the riad, are in the jail at Balem.

According to Agents Baxter and Kennedy, of the dry enforcement staff at Trenton, who made the raid, the owners fived in Causien, where they found a market for the bootleg rum. They commuted to the 'distillery" so to speak, and in making the trips drove in a new and handsome Fiat automobile.

The equipment and appliances were of the most up-to-date type. Included the things that the agents got were one 200-gallon still, two 150-gallon still's, one 100-gallon still, forty-five barrels of mash, one barrel of whisky, five five-gallon jugs of alcohol, 1500 ounds of sugar, 1000 pounds of wheat and rye, one new motortruck, and a truckload of other equipment. The big touring car of the owners was also

The still was located in the center of a wild wooded section, far removed from civilization. The nearest town is Richland, which is a small ham'et, almost two miles distant. The agents had watchers posted for several weeks before they were able to locate exactly where the still was located.

The section is known as Deer Woods, which got its name from the hunting it provides, as it has been only the haunts.

which got its name from the hunting it provides, as it has been only the haunts, of wild animals. When the agents made the attack they found Mr. and Mrs. Lucei on the premises and placed both under arrest. They said that there was a third man, who had been hired to watch the place during the absence of the owners, but he escaped when the agents came.

of the owners, but he escaped when the agents came.

The stills were capable of turning out hundreds of gallons of moonshine in a week, and, according to the agents, it was the huge supply of the moonshine that was being released in Camden that made them search for a large distillery somewhere in the South Jersey woods.

SAY U. S. WOMEN WILL NOT FALL FOR HENNA BATHS

Fad Adopted in London Won't Go Here, Beauty Experts Declare

American women are not going to fall for the henna bath, which is the latest split that London women have taken in fashlons, say Philadelphia beauty ex-

The idea if tinting the skin with henna is a fad like colored wigs, and will last just as long as they did, said one beauty parlor director. "American women, if they use artiscial applications to their skins, apply those which give the appearance of a clear, fresh complexion—they will not take to imitating muddy skins," said "We never heard of it before," they

FIVE BUILDINGS BURN

Sawdust Products Co. Plant Suffers Loss of $5000

Five one-stary buildings of the Saw-dust Products Company, Nineteenth and Clearfield streets, were destroyed by fire early this morning. Four cars loaded with sawdust on the siding were shifted out of danger. The loss is estimated at $5000.

The fire was discovered by the night watchman at the Storage Battery Company. Nineteenth street and Allegheny avenue, who turned in an alarm. Only heroic work on the part of the fire-men saved the adjoining buildings of the Coleman-Shoemaker Company. The fire is thought to have originated from sparks of a passing engine on the Nor-ristown branch of the Philadelphia and Reading Railway.
