GARLANDS UNITED BY BIRTH OF SON

Eccentric Millionaire's Love Triangle Reported to Have Been Broken Up

WITH WIFE AT HOSPITAL

Boston, April 26.—The birth of a baby boy has reconciled Charles Garland, Socialist, idealist, exponent of free love and all-around eccentric, and his wife, Mary Wrenn Garland. The status of Lillian Conrad, Philadelphia artist, who was one of Garland's "soul wives" in his free-love scheme of things, remains unknown.

Neither Garland nor his wife has made any statement concerning the reconciliation, and the whereabouts of Miss Conrad are unknown.

The one fact that is known is that Garland and his wife have been reunited and that the coming of the little stranger was the cause of the reconciliation.

Garland was present in the Massachusetts General Hospital here when the baby was born. The little one is the second child of the Garlands, the first being a daughter.

Garland is said to have returned to his wife's bedside before the birth, but it was the arrival of the child that brought the fact of the reunion of husband and wife to public attention.

It was more than a year ago that Garland first sprang into the limelight by refusing a million-dollar legacy and undertaking to explain why he did it.

Refused a Million

The explanation was not satisfactory. It did not seem to satisfy any one to whom it was made, and Garland himself did not seem to be satisfied, feeling a sort of futility—a sort of inability to put his own thoughts and feelings into words.

The general idea was that the possession of so much money was wrong and doubly wrong when one had not earned it himself. It was more money than any one needed, and therefore, more than anybody should morally possess. Garland raised the whole general question, old, yet never settled, of morality of wealth. He was called by some a Socialist, by some a philosophical anarchist, by all a sort of crank.

Thousands of persons suggested to Garland that he accept the legacy and spend it in advancing his ideas, whatever they were, or in advancing other schemes for world betterment. But he was obstinate.

Everybody gave up trying to change his mind, and he was pretty thoroughly forgotten.

Then the Triangle

Then he sprang back into the limelight all over again by accepting the legacy and doing so for the amazing reason that he needed it to support his wife and other women who were necessary to make his life complete. One of the women was Lillian Conrad, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Conrad, of 2134 North Uber street, Philadelphia.

This was last January. Miss Conrad had been secretary to Garland's mother. After she left that position Garland had taken her into his own home to live with him and Mrs. Garland in a sort of monogamous system. There were other women living there, but Garland quite frankly wanted others.

After several months Mrs. Garland objected to Miss Conrad's presence and to the whole arrangement. Miss Conrad left and Garland left. Garland said he did not want to leave his wife, and so far as is known, he continued to support her. But she insisted on his living with her alone, and, since they could not agree, he left.

Miss Conrad went to her parents' home. A few weeks afterward Garland and his wife paid a brief visit to Philadelphia. They did not make known the object of this visit. Whether they visited Miss Conrad or her parents is known only to the persons themselves. At any rate, the triangle love nest seemed broken up.

"I have nothing at all to say. So far as we are concerned the matter was closed long ago. It's ridiculous to think we would have anything to say in the matter."

That was the only comment John S. Conrad, father of Miss Lillian Conrad, 2134 North Uber street, would make last night concerning the report that Charles Garland had been reconciled to his wife by the birth of a son at a Boston Hospital.

Miss Conrad, according to a statement of Garland last January, was his "soul twin." She came to the home of her parents, at that time at 1728 North Sycamore street, where she remained incommunicado.

Her father was as adamant last night as he was when the matter was first made public, and the girl could not be seen.

She has been living with her parents, who moved to the Uber street address about a month ago. According to neighbors of the Conrads, the association of Miss Conrad's relations with Garland has ever been discussed by the parents, who are held in the highest regard in the neighborhood. Miss Conrad's father indicated she had no comment to make in the matter.

PERFUMERS PLAN WAR ON TOILET WATER HOCH

Bootleggers to Be Driven Out of Business, Say Manufacturers

New York, April 26.—(By A. P.)—Hoch acids shall not heat their boots at the members of the Manufacturing Perfumers' Association nor try to hide the radiant odors of the synthetic orange blossom or Bronx behind the delicate perfumes properly belonging in ladies' boudoir.

The bootlegger is to be driven out of the toilet-water business. This is the decision of the perfume manufacturers, meeting here in their twenty-eighth annual convention.

Spokesmen declare that hundreds of cases of lovely odors rapidly change hands among certain wholesale drug jobbers who use such transactions to boost their average business figures, and thus increase the amount of liquor they can handle under the Prohibition Act.

As for the perfumer who makes gallons of potent liquors against ounces of toilet water, the association has hung the black flag on such evildoers. All in all, the hoch owls can get little comfort from the perfume manufacturers' attitude on the liquor question. What alcohol they get will perfume a handkerchief, perhaps, but never the breath of a rum hound.

Don't Spoil Your Child's Hair By Washing It

When you wash your child's hair be careful what you use. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Multified coconut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces.

Two or three teaspoonsful of Multified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is all that is required. Simply moisten the hair with water, and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. You can get Multified at any drug store, and a few ounces will last every one in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Multified.—Adv.
