CAMDEN DRY RAID HEARINGS DELAYED

Inability of Prosecuting Prohibition Agent to Attend Puts Cases Over to May 17

WORKMAN SEEKS DAMAGES

Inability of a prohibition agent to present yesterday at the office of United States Commissioner Joline, in Camden, necessitated the postponement until May 17 of the hearings of twenty Camden saloonkeepers arrested in the recent raids made by prohibition agents under direction of the Rev. J. H. Adams, assistant state prohibition enforcement officer for New Jersey, Agent La Roy Cox, who made the complaints against the saloonkeepers, was detained in Newark.

John Witt, 1201 1/2 street and Kaighn avenue, Camden, was held under $500 bail after a hearing, when Agent Gravitt testified that on March 20 last he bought three drinks of whisky and a half pint of liquor in his place. Witt denied the charge.

The complaint against Anton Fredrickson and "John Doe," of 101 Kaighn avenue, was dismissed, when it was shown that Fredrickson did not own the place. The "John Doe" complaint was against Jacob Fleck, the present owner, but Commissioner Joline said "John Doe" charges had no standing in his court.

George Parriman, 1243 West Erie avenue, Philadelphia, driver of the automobile in which Samuel Levin, of 1723 West Venango street, this city, was fatally injured on Saturday last on the White Horse Pike, near Elm, N. J., has furnished $1000 bail to Justice of the Peace Boardman, of Elm, Levin, who was riding in the car driven by Parriman, died in Jefferson Hospital, for injuries received when the automobile crashed into a stalled truck operated by Wilbur Horner, of Sharon Hill, Pa.

After the accident Parriman took Levin to the office of a physician in Hammonton. The physician said he was not hurt to any extent and Parriman brought Levin to this city. On the trip Levin became unconscious. He died Sunday in the hospital. Parriman surrendered and furnished bail, pending an investigation by the State police.

One of the happiest women in Camden County, Miss Helen E. Keck, of 25 West Madison avenue, Collingswood, yesterday after several years of effort she was finally admitted to citizenship by Judge Shay after Miss Keck passed the examination in Naturalization Court with flying colors. She was a German and came to this country in 1901.

There were 110 aliens admitted to citizenship before Judge Shay. Several were rejected because they sought exemption during the war as aliens. A number were also rejected because of lack of knowledge.

Suit for $25,000 damages was instituted in the Supreme Court in Camden yesterday by Benjamin F. Campbell, of 447 Cherry street, Camden, against the Pennsylvania Railroad for injury he received on June 13 last, when he was thrown from a suspended bridge span on Pettys Island, opposite Camden. Campbell avers as a result of the accident the hearing of his right ear was destroyed and he had several ribs broken.

Employed in a "wrecking crew" by the railroad, Campbell avers that he was instructed by the foreman in charge of the operation to climb out on a bridge span to balance it. The span tilted and he was thrown several feet to the ground.

Representative Patterson, of Camden, has introduced a bill in Congress calling for an appropriation of $50,000 for the erection of a new postoffice in Haddonfield, Camden County. Representative Patterson and Postmaster Stanley, of Haddonfield, yesterday personally petitioned the Postoffice Department to place its approval on the new building and also asked that additional carriers be allowed in Haddonfield, owing to the great increase in postal business.

ARE HUNCHES SPIRITUAL OR JUST COMMON SENSE?

Miss Gertrude Garnell, Employment Head in Department Store, Clings to Latter Belief—But Another Says It Is Intuition

Since time immemorial there has been in existence that peculiar something called a hunch. Webster defines it as "a strong, intuitive impression that something will happen."

How, races have been won on hunches, households are run, on them, and it would seem that the female of the species is more subject to them than is the male.

Miss Gertrude Garnell, head of the employment department of a large department store, was asked how she felt about a woman's intuition, and was told that F. Fehleman, president of the New York Advertising Club, claims it is guesswork.

"I should be interested in having that word really defined to me in a concrete, definite way. You know, to my way of thinking, it is just plain out-and-out common sense," Miss Garnell said.

Called a Sixth Sense

"If a man displays it, it is labeled such. And yet, if a woman, who is most certainly capable of the same perception, hits upon something, it is attributed to her 'womanly intuition.'"

"Some have called it a 'sixth sense.' I cannot believe that any such thing really exists. Why should I be possessed of the accepted five senses and you of six? If there is such a thing, the psychologists have not as yet come upon it."

"A woman in business learns to make snap judgments the same as a man. If, for instance, she does not like a person, it is not necessarily her instinct warning her, it is really conflicting personalities."

"But as to her ideas being guesswork, I cannot agree with Mr. Fehleman. The more one is brought in contact with people, the more she comes to know them, to get some sort of idea immediately as to what they may be."

But Women Differ

"That is one kind of intuition. The other, which makes one believe that on July 14, 1927, a certain thing will happen, is something which I have never been able to understand."

It is interesting to note that all women do not have the same idea about their hunches. Naturally there would be a difference of opinion about this as well as other subjects, and another woman was found whose ideas were the direct opposite of Miss Garnell's.

Tucked away in one of the quiet streets which go to make up the "Greenwich Village" of Philadelphia, is a tiny shop in which are sold all sorts of fascinating things. Here one finds Miss Gertrude O'Reilly, a firm believer in the existence of intuition. "It would be rather difficult," she said, "to tell you in cold words just how I feel about it, but I think the existence of intuition, or instinct, call it what you will, is something spiritual. It is the same as one's conscience. The voice of God speaks to man through his conscience, and so it does through instinct."

"To my mind, men have it just the same as do women. An unconscionable ruling of the sub-conscious and it is most certainly not guess-work, but the actual existence of a something which is called by many of us a hunch."
