Y. M. H. A. PLANS DRIVE TO INCREASE MEMBERSHIP

$125,000 Will Be Needed Here Annually, Officers Estimate

With the erection of the new home of the Young Men's Hebrew Association on the site recently purchased at Broad and Pine streets, it is estimated that at least $125,000 will be needed annually to cover the expenditures of the organization. For this reason the officers are planning to increase the membership.

The new building will contain a modern gymnasium and swimming pool, with a running track, spectators' gallery, handball courts, class and club rooms, recreation parlors, community meeting rooms, game and billiard rooms, a large auditorium and balcony, a roof garden and a restaurant.

The local organization claims to be the first Y. M. H. A. in the country; also this is contested by the Y. M. H. A. of New York City. Both associations organized at approximately the same time, and each claims to have been founded a few days before the other.

Who Names Cigars? : —By J. P. McEVOY

THIS earnest seeker after knowledge wishes to know who chooses the names and pictures that appear on our cigar boxes?

And why are they so chosen? Why, for instance, do they name a cigar Henry VIII? So far as I have been able to learn after a careful reading of Wells' Outline and Fox's Book of Martyrs, Henry never cared for any cigars and knew little if anything about brands made in Havana.

And why pick on Dante for a name? Because it tastes like his best seller? He certainly doesn't look like a contented cigar smoker. That gloomy face would make a better argument for the anti's.

And why Van Dyck? And Rembrandt? Why not Michel Angelo?

EVEN more baffling are the great unknowns. La Palina, who is she? Cyrilla, what did she ever do? Cornona Cornona, never heard of her. Could it be possible she was a cigar fiend? And was that her maiden name?

Undoubtedly now that the ladies are taking up the wicked weed we will soon have an epidemic of female names and faces on our cigar boxes.

The faces, at least, would be an improvement. Certainly the birds who have been picked to decorate the present day containers were not chosen for their looks.

YES, it will be only a short time until we have cigars and cigarettes named after leading actresses and other prominent women. The Ina Claire Perfectos; the Ann Penningtons, club Shape, the Bon Ton Cigar, Poiret Wrapper, and, in years to come, when the tumult and the shouting have died and time has covered with its mantle of charity the disturbances of today, cigarette manufacturers will be naming their best brands the Lucy Page Gaston and will get up containers showing the lady lithographed in four colors and, on the covers, smoking one of them with evident rapture.

At that she will be a decided improvement over Henry VIII.
