

Happiness in Every Box

A smile is worth a hundred groans in any market.

—CHARLES LAURENCE

That's why the cheery service in Happiness Stores is making so many friends for good-Happiness Candy. To us you're not a mere person with money to spend. You're a human being who loves to be pleased. So we find it good business to please you with wholesome sweets, sold right.

Happy Thought for Today:
EVANGELINE FRUITS and NUTS $1.00

United Happiness Candy Stores
 15th & Chestnut Sts. 140 N. 32d St.
 146 Germantown Ave. 1001 Market St.
 2028 Germantown Ave.

Phone Poplar 1039

We specialize in tin and slate roofs, spouting, auto repairs, smoke stacks, heating and ventilating systems.

FRANK B. CLAYTON'S SONS
 1277-28-31-33 N. 11th St.

SALESMEN

An unusual opportunity for two aggressive real salesmen with clean records, of dependable ability, to represent firmly established manufacturer specializing in motor truck custom tires of superior quality in extensive use.

For personal interviews, write, giving full particulars, including your phone number. Replies treated confidentially.

B 125, LEADER OFFICE.

46 Standard Make Phonographs

on sale at 50% off list price, priced to our rivals to 20 South 10th Street May 1st.

BLAKE and BURKART
 S. W. Cor. 11th and Walnut

OUR STORE ORDERS

Increase Your Personal Value

Appearances count these days. Our plan enables you to dress well with clothing from the leading retail stores of Philadelphia. You do so in moderate amounts that will not tax your earnings, and thousands have been doing for the past 20 years.

WRITE FOR DETAILS TONIGHT

1872 1822
MARRIOTT BROS.
 1118 CHESTNUT STREET

Books for the Golfer

The skill of the green becomes stronger and stronger as warmer weather approaches. New books on golf will provide refreshment and fun for both the novice and the old hand at the game.

Campion BOOK SELLERS
 1313 Walnut St.

The design different

America's ONLY Knight-Six

Ask us to mail you our booklet—"Why we Believe in the Knight Motor."

R. & V. KNIGHT MOTOR CO., East Moline, Ill.
Batdorf Motor Sales Co.
 2504 N. Broad St. Diamond 1333 Park 4508

TRAPPED BY FIRE, CAMDEN BOY DIES

Smothers When Fire-Fighters Are Unable to Smash Window Bars

SIX FIREMEN ARE OVERCOME

Starving piteously through the iron bars that covered the window of his sleeping room, eleven-year-old Harry Armbruster, Jr., was smothered to death last night while firemen fought to get to him, during the burning of an old bank building at 1009 Broadway, Camden.

Six firemen were injured in the fight to rescue the lad, and all were taken to the Cooper Hospital. They are:

Captain William Price, No. 2 Truck Company.
Fireman John Hunt, No. 8 Engine Company.
Fireman Irwin Bishop, No. 2 Truck Company.
Captain Charles Watkins, No. 7 Engine Company.
Fireman William Merrigan, No. 7 Engine Company.
Fireman William Reynolds, No. 2 Truck Company.

Formerly used as bank building, which was formerly used by the Broadway Trust Company, was destroyed by the fire. The boy's father, Harry Armbruster, owned the building. He used the basement as a law-clearing establishment, and lived above the store. The balance of the two-story brick structure was rented out as offices. The iron bars put in place by the banking company had never been removed.

Armbruster, who is a widower, was preparing to close up the place about 11 o'clock when he smelled smoke. Running to the front of the building he found the stairs in flames. He tried to get up to reach his boy, but could not. By this time the alarm had been turned on and the firemen, seeing the lad with his face pressed against the bars of his room, raised their ladders and tried to get to him. The bars were too strong for them and the effort failed.

Smothered to Death
HARRY ARMBRUSTER, JR.
 Eleven-year-old Camden boy, who lost his life before firemen could reach him

DREAMLAND ADVENTURES

The Bear on Ice
 by DADDY

CHAPTER V.
The Bear Goes Fishing

COLD NOSE, the bear, was astonished when Jack and Janet vanished from his sight. He didn't know the Fairy King and Prince Flitter Flash had dropped magic fairy caps on the children's heads and turned them into flying creatures as tiny as humming birds. The bear only knew that just as he was going to take a hungry bite at Jack's foot, that foot suddenly wasn't there.

The bear looked down to see if Jack and Janet had in some way tumbled out of the tree. He looked up to see if they had arisen into the air. He looked into other trees to see if they had dropped from branch to branch, but he secretly glanced at the fairies or at Jack and Janet gayly dancing in the breeze. He thought they were just ordinary humming birds.

"Wau-ugh! This is strange," grunted the bear. He saw it wasn't any use staying in the tree any longer. He began to climb down.

Reaching the ground he looked for Jack and Janet. He saw them sitting on a branch to branch slowly and painfully, for he was still stiff from his long nap in the icy cave.

"Wau-ugh! I'm hungry!" grunted the bear. "I guess I'll go fishing."

Jack and Janet were very curious to see how the bear would go fishing. They thought he might use their poles and lines which lay on the ground near the creek.

But the bear didn't fish with a pole and line. He squatted on the bank close to a quiet pool and gazed down into the water. Suddenly he jerked his snout with his long claws, jerking from the pool a startled trout. In a couple of gulps the trout was gone.

That snatch by the bear's paw apparently scared away the other fish, for the bear sat long without getting a chance to catch a second trout. And all the time he grew hungrier.

But now Jack and Janet were alarmed to see another fisherman coming through the woods. They were alarmed because the other fisherman was a boy—a freckled-faced, bare-footed lad, who whistled merrily as he trudged along. The bear might want to eat him.

And that is just what the bear did want to do. Cold Nose looked up when he heard the whistle of the freckled-faced lad. He snuffed the air. This lad would nicely fill the place of the children who had escaped him.

The bear crouched down behind the bushes and waited.

The freckled-faced lad stopped on the other side of the bushes and baited his hook. He had no idea a big, hungry bear was close at hand watching every movement he made.

The freckled-faced lad threw his hook into the creek. There was a swirl of water as a greedy fish grabbed the bait. The freckled-faced lad jerked the line out of the water and the fish flew into the air. The jerk carried the fish over the bushes and right into the face of the bear. Snap! The bear's jaws snapped at the fish, tearing it from the hook.

The freckled-faced lad was astonished when the hook came back over the bushes without the fish. He was as much puzzled over the vanishing of the fish as the bear had been over the vanishing of Jack and Janet.

The lad baited his hook again, and once more threw it into the creek. Another greedy fish grabbed it. Again the boy threw up his pole. The fish came flopping out of the water and flew over the bushes. Once more the jaws of the hungry bear tore the fish from the hook. The empty hook fled back to the wondering freckled-faced lad.

"Jiminy!" cried the lad. "Some one is stealing my fish. I'll give them a thrashing for that."

He started around the bushes. Cold Nose, the bear, grunting from ear to ear, arose on his hind legs to meet the boy.

(Cold Nose thinks he is going to have a meal, but again he is fooled, in a very queer way. Instead of catching the boy he himself is caught, as will be told in the next chapter.)

THE CHORAL SOCIETY CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY

Twenty-five Years of Existence Observed by Concert

The Philadelphia Choral Society last evening observed the twenty-fifth anniversary of its organization by its spring concert at the Academy of Music, before a large and appreciative audience. The chorus was augmented by the Phoenixville Choral Society, which has the Philadelphia society is under the direction of Henry Gordon Thunders, and the combined organizations sang with much spirit and a fine tone quality.

The augmented chorus was assisted by an orchestra of about fifty men, made up of members of the Philadelphia Orchestra, and the program was made up of excerpts of some of the great works which the Choral Society has given during the quarter of a century of its existence. Among the most notable of these were the Sanctus from the B minor Mass of Bach, three excerpts from Handel's "Cantata," three from Mendelssohn's Hymn of Praise, and some of the works of Berlioz, Rossini, Brahms, Gounod and Elgar, the last being the effective capella chorale "Aurora in Summer," from King Olaf.

The soloists were Tekla Farm-McKinzie, soprano, and Edwin Lewis, tenor, both of whom sang duely. After the first number, Edward J. Cartell, on behalf of the society, presented Mr. Thunders with a silver chest filled with gold coins, as a memento of appreciation for the energy and enthusiasm which he has displayed in bringing the society to its present high place in the musical organizations of the State.

WILL AWARD DIPLOMAS

Closing Exercises of Spring Garden Institute Tonight

The closing exercises of the Spring Garden Institute will be held tonight in the institution, at Broad and Spring Garden streets. Addresses will be made by Frederick McOwen, president of the institute, and the Rev. Dr. Andrew Mitchell, of Bryn Mawr.

Prizes, certificates and diplomas will be awarded the students and graduates. Dancing will follow the exercises.

After-Dinner Tricks

GIMBEL CHORUS CONCERT

Good Program Rendered at the Bellevue-Stratford

The spring concert of the Gimbel Choral Society was given at the Bellevue-Stratford last evening, under the leadership of Stanley Muschamp. The chorus is larger than on any previous appearance and sang much better than has at any time yet, there being a far better balance and a more highly developed ensemble. Among the principal numbers performed were the Miller's Wailing of Fanning, "Robin Adair" and "Sylvia," two excellent arrangements by Mr. Muschamp; two Negro spirituals, the "Kashmiri Song," for chorus, with violin obbligato, also arranged by Mr. Muschamp, and an operatic group by the chorus, with Miss Farley, Miss Phillips and Messrs. Sheehan and Corog as soloists.

The visiting soloists were Miss May Farley, soprano, and Meyer Simkin, violin, both of whom did excellent solo work and were well received. Miss Farley sang songs by Mrs. Horner, Kruger, Rossini, Stanley Muschamp and Montague Phillips, and Mr. Simkin played compositions of Kreisler, Tartini-Kreisler, Dreda and Briga-Auer.

The Cadet Corps gave a fancy drill at the close of the musical part of the program and this was followed by a dance.

SCREAMS TRAPPED SCHOOL ROBBER

Police Catch Man on Fire-Escape of Immaculate Conception Parish

FIND LOOT IN POCKETS

Screams of the sisters in the parish school of the Immaculate Conception Church at Front and Allen streets, early today, resulted in the capture of a man on the fire escape. When taken to the Front and Master streets station and searched, the suspect, Joseph Wallace, had his pockets filled with rosary beads and other articles belonging to the sisters, which had been stolen from their rooms while they slept.

It was shortly after 4 o'clock when one of the sisters, arising early, went to shut the window in her bedroom. On the fire escape just outside she saw the dim form of a man crouching in the corner. As she gazed in astonishment the man attempted to flee, but the sister slammed down the window and her shrieks aroused the other occupants of the dormitories, who also began screaming.

So piercing were the cries of the sisters that Policeman Lee, who was patrolling his beat a square distant, heard them. Rapping on a trolley pole for assistance he ran to the school and was in time to catch Wallace, who virtually tumbled into his arms from the fire escape.

Wallace was hustled to the station house, where he stood with arms outstretched while the police turned out his pockets. Wallace, the police say, gained entrance by means of the fire escape. He refused to talk, other than to say that he was sixty-two years old and had no home. He was held under $1000 bail for court by Magistrate Scullin, on charges of forcible entry and larceny.

DRY CHIEF NAMES AIDE

George S. Hampton Becomes Assistant Director to Chief

The appointment of George S. Hampton, of 234 West Tabor road, as Assistant State Prohibition Director, has been announced by Director Davis. Mr. Hampton has entered upon his new duties. Mr. Hampton is the first assistant director to be named in Pennsylvania since prohibition became effective.

The new assistant director was born in this city and educated in the public schools and high school. For thirteen years he was connected with Clark Brothers' Coal Mining Company, with offices in the Commercial Trust Building, three years of which he was treasurer of the concern. The company is headed by State Senator Joseph O. Clark, of Indiana County.

Mr. Hampton was recently identified as a member of John C. ... & Co., dealers in coal, with offices Ninth and Master streets.

Art Club Exhibit Closes Tomorrow

The exhibition at the Art Club of eight women artists will close at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The pictures are the work of Eleanor Abrate, Cora S. Brooks, Isabel Franson Coe, Wright, Constance Cochrane, Fern Coppedge, Lucile Howard, Ellen McCarthy and M. Elizabeth Price.

Decorative Embroideries

Made in India

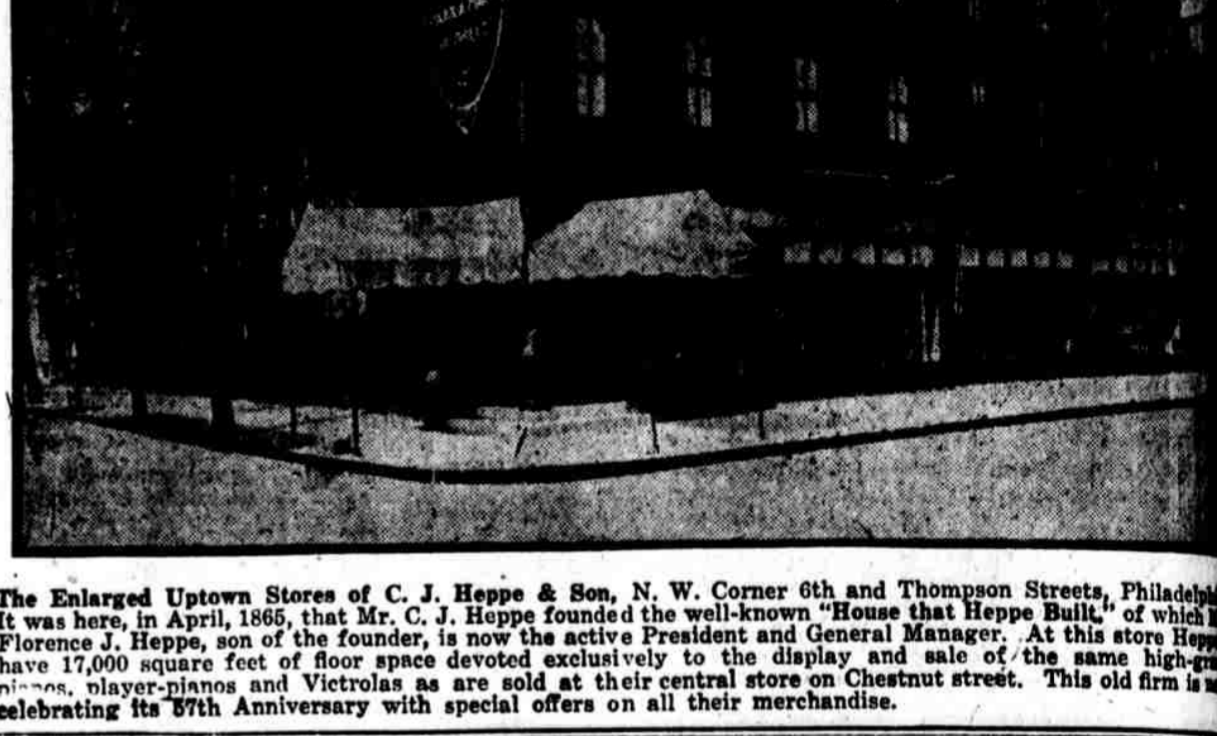

First Showing in America

Reproductions of Elizabethan and Indian Needlework, Embroidered on Heavy Twill in Colored Wool.

Suitable for English and Colonial Rooms.

Curtains, 4x10 ft., $70.00 pair up
Bedspreeds, 6x9 ft., $45.00 up
Pillow Cases, 23 ins. sq., $6.00 each

The Rosenbach Galleries
 1320 Walnut Street
 Exclusive Importers for This District

The Enlarged Uptown Stores of C. J. Heppé & Son, N. W. Corner 6th and Thompson Streets, Philadelphia, was here, in April, 1865, that Mr. C. J. Heppé founded the well-known "House that Heppé Built," of which Florence J. Heppé, son of the founder, is now the active President and General Manager. At this store Heppé have 17,000 square feet of floor space devoted exclusively to the display and sale of the same high-quality pianos, player-pianos and Victrolas as are sold at their central store on Chestnut street. This old firm is celebrating its 57th Anniversary with special offers on all their merchandise.

Furs

"America's Foremost Specialists"

OPPENHEIM, COLLINS & CO

Chestnut and 12th Sts.

Our Most Stupendous Fur Sale

Continued for Tomorrow, Saturday

Offering the Entire Stock of Fur Coats, Wraps and Scarfs

Before storing Our Furs for the Summer we offer this final purchasing opportunity at

The Most Drastic Reductions Ever Made

Fur Coats and Wraps

175.00 to 195.00 Fur Coats.....	85.00
275.00 to 295.00 Fur Coats.....	135.00
350.00 to 375.00 Fur Coats.....	150.00
395.00 to 425.00 Fur Coats.....	185.00
450.00 to 550.00 Fur Coats.....	215.00
650.00 to 775.00 Fur Coats.....	325.00
825.00 to 895.00 Fur Coats & Wraps	395.00
1200.00 to 1500.00 Mink Wraps...	650.00

Proportionate Reductions on all Higher Priced Garments

Fashionable Fur Scarfs

In Every Desirable Fur Including Fox in Popular Shades

Suitable for Present Wear

At Most Extraordinary Reductions

All Sales Must Be Final.

Deferred Payments If Desired

Luxurious Kolinsky Wrap of perfectly matched skins.
 Formerly 1975.00
 950.00