

Wynne Speaks of the Savoy Company—She Tells of New Homes of Various Brides

Virginia Smith a few nights ago. You know she is the daughter of the Arthur Smiths of Spring Valley, Pennwoods, and a debutante of this season. She was wearing the best-looking dress she had; it was simply made with a round neck and short sleeves, and a girl of black velvet. She wore with it a set necklace and hoop earrings. Virginia is lovely at any time, but that dress was so becoming to her very dark brown hair and brown eyes that she was unusually striking.

She is going to be one of the "tripping brides" in the chorus of Savoy this year. They're giving "Lullaby, you know, and it's to be on May 25 and 26 at Sarah Bally, Libby Morgan, who is coming out next winter, by the way; Florence Kane, Fanny and Marina Water, and lots of other girls are going to be in it, too. Walter Fleming will probably take one of the principal parts. Marie Zare will be the leading lady. Phyllis, and Mrs. George Millington, will be Iolanthe. Nelson Eddy, who has such a bit in the "Marriage of Figaro," will be the part of Strophon, and Leslie Joy will also be prominent.

Wasn't it nice to hear that Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Harrison Taylor have a small son, Merritt Harrison Taylor, Jr. He was born last Friday. Mrs. Taylor was Hester Sears Walker, of Boston, and is very sweet and attractive. Her husband is the son of Mrs. Harrison Taylor, of 237 South Eleventh street. He has one brother, Joe, who is at Penn now. If I am not mistaken, several years ago, I lived in a pretty house on the hill near the Charles Williams. Mrs. Taylor is a niece of the late Mr. S. Davis Page.

It's interesting to hear where all the "newlyweds" are planning to live after they are married. Sarah Harrison and Phil Price expect to go to Chestnut Hill; Mr. and Mrs. Barclay McLean, who are abroad on their wedding trip, are going to live on the Main Line somewhere; I believe at Rosemont. She was Virginia Heck, who you know. Dot Ely and Herbert have taken a house at Haverford, I hear, and the Stanley Rogers (she was Mary de Ghequer) are building near the Merion Golf Club.

People are funny, aren't they? The other day a girl I know and you know too, we'll call her Sally, told me that she had gone on a Sunday afternoon ride with another girl and the other girl pretended to drive very fast and recklessly, for the benefit of the girl in back. Polly we'll call her, but before she explained carefully to Sally that what he was about to do was perfectly safe.

Of course, Polly screamed and acted scared in the approved fashion. Afterward when the two girls got home and Sally was talking things over with Polly, "You know, I really wasn't a bit scared when he drove fast, I just yelled because I knew he expected me to."
