Show yesterday? It was very interesting and I saw many people I knew, though the crowd was small. Dickie Newbold Colhoun and her sister, Anna Newbold, who came out this winter, were both there. Mrs. Colhoun was wearing a pearl gray sports suit, a small gray felt hat and a scarf of gray fox fur. Anna Newbold was looking very well in a one-piece frock of lavender tweed and a gray straw hat turned up off the face. Gray and light violet were quite the predominating colors of the opening day. Marion Button, who was one of the nides, wore a gray sweater, with figures on it of gray sweater, with figures on it of French blue, black and orange, with a gray felt hat and a gray woolen skirt. Verner Peterson, who will be one of next year's debs by the way, was another aide. She looked attractive in a deep rose-colored sweater, with a tweed skirt and hat to match. I saw Kitty Knight sad hat to match. I saw Kitty Knight Seith and Gertrude Dougherty aiding and hat to match. I saw Kitty Knight
