

A FEARLESS BOOK PAGE

—which tells you about the books to read and those to avoid is the kind of page which is published every Saturday morning by the

PUBLIC LEDGER

A great deal is being written nowadays, but very little is being recorded or digested.

W. Orton Tewson, assisted by an able staff of collaborators, separates “the tares from the wheat” in this weekly book review.

What to read and what not to read is always a question of deep moment to parents of children and to busy parents themselves.

The Book Page of the Public Ledger each Saturday morning, under the guidance of men of keen and appreciative intellects, assists its tens of thousands of readers in saving their time in reading dross or, as a famous publisher frequently puts it, “merely a mess of words.”

These critics tell you of the worth-while books that bring you infinite diversion and entertainment in the quiet of your own home—that educate and enthrall your interest—the good books of Romance, Adventure, Travel, Mystery.

What book to read?

Consult The Book Page of the Public Ledger every Saturday morning.

“Make it a habit.”
