

She Gives a Delicious Spanish Dish and Other Methods That Range From Fritters to Salad

By MRS. M. A. WILSON

THE tomato is so generally used today that it needs no description. It is of Spanish origin, and has for centuries played a very important part in the cookery of that nation. From Spain to sunny Italy this succulent fruit soon found its way, and centuries before America was discovered the Italian love apple, the tomato, was a well-known fruit and was used as a real part of the Italian cookery.

Mr. Henry Thompson, an English authority on foods, declares that this fruit is half fruit and half vegetable, and makes the prince of all the salads; and that the tomato lends itself to both the very plain as well as the fanciest of cooking.

Grilled Tomatoes
Select firm, ripe tomatoes. Wash and dry. Cut in half, dip very lightly in flour and place in hot broiler, and cook so that the tomato is well browned on top. Lift to thin slice of well-buttered toast and garnish with thin slice of bacon, and serve with hollandaise sauce.

Baked Tomato Spanish
Rub a deep baking dish well with either bacon drippings or salad oil. Now place a layer of thin-sliced tomatoes in bottom of the dish, having the water about one inch thick. Now sprinkle with finely chopped parsley, onions and tiny bit of garlic. Then cover with one-quarter cup of grated cheese. Cover the cheese with finely chopped cold-boiled macaroni, and repeat until the dish is full, having the top layer of the tomatoes. Sprinkle with grated cheese, bake in slow oven for thirty minutes and serve from dish. The salt and pepper, and tiny pinch of thyme in seasoning each layer.

Tomato Surprise
Cut thin slice from the stem end of the tomato, and with spoon remove the center. Now dip carefully with finely pointed knife to loosen the skin and peel. Chill by placing on ice at once.

To prepare the centers open a small can of nice sardines and drain free from oil. Mash fine and add:
Two tablespoons of finely chopped onion.
Three tablespoons of finely chopped parsley.
One-half cup of chopped capers.
One tablespoon of mayonnaise.
One teaspoon of salt.
One-half teaspoon of pepper.
One-quarter teaspoon of mustard.

Mix well and fill into the tomato, replace the top slice, or lid, and serve in crisp nest of lettuce, with mayonnaise.

Tomato Fritters
Place in mixing bowl:
Two cups of steamed tomatoes.
One small onion, grated.
Three tablespoons of finely chopped parsley.
Two cups of flour.
Four level teaspoons of baking powder.

One teaspoon of salt.
One-half teaspoon of pepper.
Pinch of thyme.
Two well-beaten eggs.
Two tablespoons of melted butter.
Beat well to blend and then fry in fritter manner in smoking-hot fat; lift to soft paper napkin to drain a moment before serving and garnish with either nicely browned strips of bacon or grilled ham.

Tomato Pinks
Place in shallow baking dish:
Three and one-half cups of steamed tomatoes.
Three tablespoons of finely chopped parsley.
Two onions chopped fine.
One teaspoon of salt.
One-half teaspoon of pepper.
One-quarter teaspoon of thyme.
One teaspoon of sugar.
Three tablespoons of melted butter.

Stir well to blend; now place in a mixing bowl:
Two cups of flour.
One teaspoon of salt.
Two tablespoons of parsley chopped fine.
Three tablespoons of grated onion.
Mix well and then rub in five tablespoons of shortening and use two-thirds cup of milk to form a dough; drop by the spoonful on the tomato mixture into the baking dish, sprinkle the top over with grated cheese, and then with fine bread crumbs and bake in hot oven for twenty-five minutes. Serve in place of potatoes with the dinner.

You can add about three-quarters cup of any left-over vegetable or finely chopped meats to the tomatoes before adding the dumplings. This is a splendid way to use up small bits of steak, pot roast or chicken that may be left over.

WOMEN BREAK PRECEDENT

Balliff Amazed at Request for Lunch in Jury Room
San Francisco, May 13. (By A. P.)—Women jurors here yesterday acting on a damage case tried in Superior Court smashed the old precedent of women going out to banquet and supping all day long when the clock approached a meal hour.

After several hours' deliberation, call came from the jury room. They wanted a few sandwiches and some coffee. The balliff almost fainted, but the request was granted and luncheon was served in the jury room.

After-Dinner Tricks

No. 161—Penell From Purse

A lead pencil is drawn from a pocket-book or purse, although the purse is scarcely half as long as the pencil, and is really held in the hand (Fig. 1). The purse has a small hole cut in the bottom, through which the pencil is held. The pencil is pushed into the hole in the left hand with the thumb, and the right hand opens the pocket-book, the pencil is mysteriously drawn out of it.

DREAMLAND ADVENTURES

Blue Heron's Bride
By DADDY

Jack and Janet seek a bride for loneamome Blue Heron. Mrs. Screech Owl answers their call, but Blue Heron doesn't want to marry her. A beautiful Lady Heron arrives on the scene.

CHAPTER VI
Blue Heron's Trick

Blue Heron with love in his eyes. "You are the mate I have dreamed of all my life and never found," he murmured. "That is why I have stayed a bachelor until now." Lady Heron returned his look of admiration. "And I have dreamed of a mate like you," she whispered softly. "That is why I, too, have waited hoping that some day I might find you." "You are too late," snapped Mrs. Screech Owl. "I found him first."

Jack and Janet were sorry for Blue Heron. They were sorry they had found such a mate for him as shrewish Mrs. Screech Owl.

Janet tried what pleading might do. "Please," Mrs. Screech Owl, let poor Blue Heron off. He doesn't want to marry you."

"Want to or not, marry me he shall," shrieked Mrs. Screech Owl disagreeably. "I've been made over to suit him and now I'll tear him to pieces before I let him go."

Blue Heron groaned. "Oh, why didn't you come sooner," he whispered to Lady Heron.

"Perhaps it is not yet too late," she whispered back, a sly look in her eye. "Be brave and trust me."

Lady Heron waded to Mrs. Screech Owl's side. "What a wonderful bride you are!" she said.

Mrs. Screech Owl didn't know what to think of that. She was puzzled, yet flattered.

"You have just as long a beak as a heron," went on Lady Heron. "And you have just as slender legs. You ought to be able to wade splendidly with such fine legs."

Mrs. Screech Owl looked doubtfully at the river. She didn't fancy wading. "A heron's beak always wades into the shallows to his side," went on Lady Heron softly. "She catches a minnow and tosses it to him. If he catches it and eats it, they are half-wedded. Then he catches a minnow and throws it to her. When she catches it and eats it they are wholly wedded. Come! Wade out into the shallows. I'll help you."

Mrs. Screech Owl didn't trust her stills, but helped by Lady Heron she stepped out very carefully, keeping her balance with her wings. She flattered and fussed. Jack and Janet thought Lady Heron was very kind to help her. They didn't know then what Lady Heron was up to.
