

QUEEN IS CROWNED AT SWARTHMORE

Exercises Are Reproduction of Those in Time of Queen Elizabeth

FOUR CLASSES TAKE PART

Crowning of the queen of the May as it was done in the time of Queen Elizabeth or earlier was reproduced on the campus of Swarthmore College this afternoon by the girls of the four classes in their May Day celebration. The picturesque old custom took on a gala carnival air as hundreds of visitors arrived for the festival, which centered about the presentation of an old English masque depicting the choosing of a May queen in an old English village.

WOOD WILL ASK PENN FOR 6 MONTHS' EXTENSION

Cable From General is Expected From Manila

Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania expect to get a personal request from Major General Leonard Wood asking for an extension of his leave of absence from the provostship at the University. A dispatch from Manila yesterday said that General Wood would cable directly to the trustees. It is understood he will ask an extension of six months beyond September, the date that he was supposed to assume the provostship.

MORE WOE FOR ANASTASE

American Embassy at Paris Takes Up Claim of Alleged Wife No. 1

The American Embassy at Paris, according to a dispatch received today, has taken cognizance of a formal complaint filed there by Mlle. Louboff Mouroumsky, charging Anastase Andreitch Vonsiatsky with bigamy. A claim for non-support may follow, according to the report.

Vonsiatsky was married February 4 in the Russian Cathedral in New York to the former Mrs. Marion R. Stephens, of Chicago, who is worth many millions. They are living in Hyde Park, and the young husband works at the Baldwin plant, where he is a $24 a week apprentice.

The situation apparently hinges on whether the young woman in Paris is a Jewess. If it can be proved that she is the marriage which she alleges she entered into with Vonsiatsky at Yalta, the "Crimea," is automatically dissolved. Otherwise she is Vonsiatsky's wife by Russian law, and it is said the marriage performed in New York will be annulled. The complaint filed at Paris is accompanied by an affidavit stating that the girl is a Christian.

P. R. T. VETERAN DIES

Walter Shepherd Was "Hill Boy" on Old Manayunk Line

Walter Shepherd, a veteran employee of the P. R. T. Company, who died on Wednesday, was buried today from an undertaking establishment near Broad and Berks streets.

Shepherd was known to practically all riders on the Manayunk line for the last forty years. At first he was known as the "Hill Boy," who drove the extra team of horses from Nicetown lane to Mount Vernon street. Later as a driver he gained a reputation for being accommodating; that is, he would stop for prospective passengers who might be half a block away.

MARINER'S HOME BURNED

Fire Does $4000 Damage to West Collingswood House

Fire damaged the home of John C. Davis, a retired car tinner, at 2500 Eldridge avenue, West Collingswood, N. J., this morning.

The blaze started in the attic, presumably from an overheated chimney. The flames had made headway on the third floor when Mrs. Davis discovered them.

The loss is estimated at $4000.

Schley had apparently been asphyxiated three days ago. The man rented a room Monday, paid a week's board and had not been seen since.

and was in good shape to do justice to the feast which had been prepared.

As it was to be a full day's work of golf, Mr. Harding finished his coffee quickly and was back on the green again before many of the week-end visitors had reached dessert.

Tonight the President intends to spend the night at the club.

According to present plans, Mr. Harding and party expect to leave Atlantic City for Washington tomorrow afternoon.

Hits Sex Partisanship

"We want you women. We want your counsel, intuition, judgment, instinct and inspiration. You are restless in your service to your country if you do not meet your obligations in the fullest.

"That is the declaration of the President in speaking here last night before the convention of the New Jersey Women's Republican Club. It was the first time the President has spoken before an assemblage of women since they were given the vote. He remarked that he "liked very well" the way they participated in the presidential election of 1920.

"I believe with all my heart that women can only play their part in national affairs fully when they play it in connection with a recognized political organization," the President said. "I do not believe in personal, group or sex government. I would look with very great sorrow upon the day when we would have anything in America like party division along sex lines.

"Of course, I have a preference as to which party women should belong, but I would say with all sincerity to any women in America, if you cannot subscribe to the enunciated principles and policies of one party, choose another which comes more nearly expressing your views. And if you do not find one outstanding party which represents that which you believe to be right, then go into a party and make it believe what you think is right.

"Holds to Old Precepts

"Some one has said it is not a very thoughtful man who looks backward for his inspiration, but I like to hold fast to the things which made us what we are. One of these is a difficult problem to solve for this Government.

"I hope you think as well of them both as the Chief Executive does at Washington."

Mrs. Harding was presented to the audience, following which the presidential party motored to the Chelsea Hotel, where the President spoke to the business in convening lives.

The President, who apparently was tired after his most strenuous day, only spoke ten minutes. He imprompted the bankers to work together for one common cause that being the restoration to normalcy. He told of the need of organizations and admonished them to work elbow to elbow with the laborers, doctors and business men in general.

The President plans a visit to the Chelsea Baptist Church tomorrow. He is under a promise to the pastor. It seems that when the President attended services in this church during his last visit here, the Rev. Thomas J. Cross was vacationing. He wrote to President Harding expressing sorrow at his absence on such an auspicious occasion and the President assured Dr. Cross that he would attend services on this trip.

Secretary and Mrs. Weeks and Attorney General Daugherty have arrived and completed the official party, to which Senator Edge is host.

COMMISSION FOR THE REORGANIZATION OF THE STATE GOVERNMENT

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA HARRISBURG

To The Republican Voters

of the 21st, 22d, 38th and 42d Wards

I ASK your votes at the election, for ONE REASON.

I had the honor of proposing in the legislature the joint resolution for a commission to reorganize the state government in the interests of economy. The commission elected me its chairman. I have attended every meeting since January 4th. To save the taxpayers money is the first object of this Commission. To do this requires the passage of bills through the legislature.

I am not asking you as a personal favor to vote for me next Tuesday. I am asking you to vote for me as the Chairman of a commission that is working to save your money.

Yours faithfully,
GEORGE WOODWARD,
Senator, 4th District.

HER SAD TALE FINDS "JUDGE" ADAMANT

Pretty Woman Has Troubles Galore, but Bad-Cheek Charge Isn't Quashed

MUST PUT UP $600 BAIL

A story involving desertion, conspiracy and other unpleasant things, was unfolded today by Miss Blanche S. Garrison, an attractive young woman, when she faced Magistrate Coward charged with passing worthless checks.

With an attitude indicating surprise more than fear, she listened as detectives asserted she had passed bad checks at the Hotel Rittenhouse here and at other hotels in New York and Washington. It was also testified that Miss Garrison, before going to the Rittenhouse, had stopped at the Ritz-Carlton, where she was registered as May Anna Gray.

The young woman said that she lived in Connecticut avenue, in the fashionable section of Washington.

"My mother died last November," she said, "and left me considerable money. My sister wanted to get possession of it so she had me placed in an institution near Washington. I was under observation for a week, but I convinced the physicians of my sanity and was discharged. I went to New York with the idea of going on the stage. Later I changed my mind and came here."

She paused to straighten the skirt of her gray sport suit and arrange her big black hat. Then she surveyed her Russian gray shoes she added.

"These check charges are a great surprise. I was informed by my bank in Washington that I had a balance there."

Miss Garrison stroked her black bobbed hair as she waited the advice of the magistrate.

"Are you married?" he asked.

"Yes, but my husband deserted me."

The magistrate was not visibly touched by the recital. He gave her a sweeping glance.

"Six hundred bail for a further hearing," he yawned.

"TAME" HAIR AND EARRING IS ORDER TO OFFICE GIRL

Head of American Railway Express Company Force Here Says "Something Had to Be Done"

Bobbed hair is all right—but keep it in captivity. Long earrings may be all right for ballrooms or boardwalk strolls—but they have no place in an office, dangling ominously over an inkwell.

And so Henry W. Freeman, of the American Railway Express Company's office, where several hundred girls toil daily, decided that something had to be done.

Daily before his eyes there bobbed more than four scores of closely cropped feminine heads. There were brunettes, blondes, decided and undecided blondes, titans and various other hues. And drooping from nearly one hundred pairs of ears were long earrings.

"Yes, something had to be done," said Mr. Freeman with a sigh. He is business-like looking and doesn't claim to be an authority on frills or fashions.

"If a girl enters an office in a ballroom gown," he added, "why shouldn't we permit the men to come to work with rings in their noses? It's just a pure business proposition. If it takes one girl about fifteen minutes of the firm's time to primp up, imagine the loss when a hundred girls do it."

"I have no objection to bobbed hair or short skirts, but their hair must be kept in control. We issued an order telling the girls they must refrain from wearing long earrings and other superfluous jewelry, also that they must wear nets on their hair if it's bobbed and dress in a manner befitting their stations as employees. We believe it's only a sensible thing to do. I haven't heard any complaints about it."

Miss Nellie Denman, superintendent of welfare at the office, said she had no objection to bobbed hair, but nevertheless "urges the order."
