

WIND AND CURRENT HURT PENN VARSITY

Princeton's Sculling Stroke Was Better Than Sweeps of Red and Blue and Columbia

JAY VEES SPRINTED LATE

PRINCETON has a smooth rowing combination that is hard to beat on Lake Carnegie. I don't mean by that to detract from their wonderful performance Saturday, when they won all three races from Pennsylvania and Columbia. Thus spoke Harry Penn Burke, one of Philadelphia's foremost rowing experts this morning, commenting on the Child's Cup regatta races at Princeton Saturday.

Dr. Spenth, the Princeton coach, speaks his charges a sculling stroke, which is just right for the smooth water on Lake Carnegie," continued Mr. Burke. "By that I mean that such a man is more like a single sculler than a sweep oarsman. Both Columbia and Pennsylvania have the sweep style made necessary by the courses on which they do their practicing.

"The sculling stroke is not good for choppy, rough water, and that probably accounts for the defeat of the Tigers by such a big margin on the Charles River last Saturday.

"It will be remembered that the Tigers gave the Navy eight its only setback last year on Lake Carnegie, and the Middies had one of the best crews of the year."

Mr. Burke, who witnessed the Penn-Yale and Penn-Harvard races, thinks that the Tiger varsity eight is superior to the Eli and Crimson eights. He also gave as his opinion that the distance for the 150-pound eight, considering the current and the head wind, proved too much for them.

Runners Ready AT PHOENIXVILLE

Five-Day Meeting Starts Tuesday, With Six Events Each Day

Big-Line Horses Entered

The barrier was sprung, they were on their toes!

"They tore around the first turn like a shot from a gun. Society folk and humble farmers slapped each other on the back and yelled like a house was afire. That in a nutshell describes what took place at the second of the spring meetings of the Phoenixville Hunt Racing Association Saturday afternoon.

You can talk about your Kentucky Derbies, Preaknesses and others. But when it comes to hair-raising finishes, the kind that makes you swallow your heart, cough up your chewing gum and smooth back your hair, they had 'em at Phoenixville Saturday. Every race was a rip roaring, slam bang affair, with the jocks "riding their heads off" to win.

The meeting Saturday and the one a week previous were preludes to five days of racing starting Tuesday over the same track and under the auspices of Joseph I. Murphy, prominent turfman and sportsman. On each of these days there will be five races on the flat and one steeplechase.

There are 200 horses at the track now ready for the word "go."

A carload of twenty-eight from Baltimore, all of which made the dirt fly at Pimlico, arrived yesterday. The races each day will start at 2:30 o'clock. And if there is any one that cannot get a thrill out of each and

A carload of twenty-eight from Baltimore, all of which made the dirt fly at Pimlico, arrived yesterday. The races each day will start at 2:30 o'clock. And if there is any one that cannot get a thrill out of each and every one, then tiddledewinks are respectfully suggested.

Of the events that were run off Saturday, it is doubtful if there was any that furnished more excitement than the Hunter's Steeplechase over a course of about three and a half miles. Huntington McGee apparently had it all sewed up until the last jump was reached. Here the jumper upset the apple-cart all over the premises, and in so doing sent Waddy, its rider, into a spinning nose dive.

It was then that that pair of thirteen-year-old timber-toppers, Dooley and River Breeze, grabbed the limelight and hung right on to it. The journey into the stretch between these veterans was a whale of a race. Dooley stuck his tongue out at the finish and won.

The final race of the afternoon brought out a field of nine bangtalls. The race was between Mary Williams and Trober all the way to the head of the stretch, where Favor came through under a terrific drive and won.

Speed when you want it Power when you need it

Only a properly balanced gasoline can meet both the requirements for Speed and the requirements for Power.

It is the finely determined combination of quick-acting volatility and power-producing stability that gives Atlantic its extraordinary range of efficiency and makes it the superior motor gasoline of the day.

A charge of Atlantic ignites and burns in an inconceivable fraction of a second. It functions perfectly in motors doing two to three thousand revolutions a minute (which in a four-cycle motor means 1000 to 1500 explosions per cylinder).

And power! Note, especially on hard pulls at slow speeds, the determined, measured punch behind a set of Atlantic-driven pistons. Due to Atlantic's high expansive force and the uniform "chain of boiling points" that makes combustion sure and complete.

When you buy Atlantic you get more than just "good" gasoline. You get RIGHT gasoline—fuel that is correct for present-day motors and efficient under every speed, load, temperature or other operating condition.
