you about these velis, but when I went to see about them I discovered that the shop had no more and thought that when they came in again they would be fifty cents a yard. But I found that the stock has been replenished, and that the stock has been replenished, and that they are still selling for twenty-five cents a yard—vells with small dots. They are what is known. I believe, as complexion vells. You can get them in white with black dots, blue with blue dots, and henns dotted, as well as in several other colors. They wear quite well.
