

RED WANTS NEW CHANCE AT CROWN

Proposes Contest With Baltimore Boy With All Girls Kept From Scene

'NEW YORK NICKIE' EASY

'Red' Stoddart, marble-shooting champion of Philadelphia, who was defeated by Frankie McQuade, the Baltimore wizard, in a close contest for the national title on City Hall plaza Saturday, still thinks he is the better man and will challenge the Southerner to a return match on neutral ground.

'Red' readily admitted he lost only by the margin of two marbles, 57 to 55, and says the national champion was enabled to beat him out in the last few minutes of play through the sudden blimp of 'Blake' Ruth, the feminine star from Newark, N. J., who went all to pieces and let Frankie garner most of the booty in the concluding round.

It is also the contention of the local phenom that he lost much ground in attempting to dislodge a marble which became half buried in the ground when somebody stepped on it. He mentions no names, but he knows he didn't step on it himself, and the only other person in the ring was Nickie Markoff, the New York entrant.

For these and numerous other reasons 'Red' feels himself entitled to another chance at the national championship, and he is preparing therefore to throw down the gauntlet of battle in the near future. He would like to take Frankie on the fourth of July on any ground and at any hour, his sole reservation being that there be no women in the affair.

Comparisons, while odious, often are interesting, and 'Red' has his own ideas of the relative abilities of his late opponents. Next to himself he thinks Frankie the best shot in the contest, with the Newark girl third.

'She's a pretty good shot,' he admitted, 'but this guy from New York, Huh! He was a real worth shooting against. He couldn't shoot at all. He was fierce. I wouldn't want to play him again.'

Boy Week came to a suitable conclusion yesterday with 'The Boys in the Church' Day, in which ministers made boys and their problems the subject of their discourses in virtually all the churches of this city.

WARNER WILL PROBATED

Two bequests of $10,000 each to institutions in Reading, Pa., were disclosed today when the will of Richard Warner was probated. Mr. Warner died suddenly at the Manufacturers' Club, March 8. A gift of $5000 was made to the Home for Friendless Children in this city, the residue of the estate going to a nephew and a niece, Joseph N. Warner and Elizabeth A. Brase.

The $80,000 estate of Jane Craig Biddle was set in trust for her sister, Meta Craig Biddle, to revert at the death of the latter to two nieces, Meta Craig Robinson, and Emily Butler Biddle, churchwomen.

Four bequests of $1000 each were made in the will of Rebecca Loehlein, they are to the Jewish Hospital, the Jewish Foster Home and the Young Women's Union. TAXI DRIVER ROBBED

Youths Get $16 at Point of Gun and Then Flee

Thomas Brady, 2144 Dugger street, chauffeur for the Quaker City Taxicab Company, was held up shortly after 3 o'clock Sunday morning by three young men, and robbed of $16, his night's receipts.

Brady was about to turn his cab in for the night and had stopped at Eleventh street and Spruce avenue, under an arc lamp, to make up his report. The three young men came along, saw him counting his money and approached quietly. One of them drew a gun and ordered him to hand over the money. The men ran away when he had complied.

BOOM COLONEL BIRCH

Friends Urge Him to Run for New Jersey Governor

Colonel Thomas H. Birch, of Burlington, N. J., formerly American Minister to Portugal, has been suggested as a Democratic candidate for Governor of New Jersey.

The suggestion was made in the Burlington Gazette, a weekly newspaper, which stated Colonel Birch could command the support of many Republicans also. The former diplomat and his wife have been considering an extended visit to Portugal, but friends are trying to persuade Colonel Birch to enter the gubernatorial race.
