of work for boys. A dozen high-school boys who had won athletic competitions

the general welfare, particularly that of young men.

Nations which have such organizawere guests of the club, and while they busily stowed away a very good dinner, one of the speakers congratulated them one of the speakers congratulated them on their success in the competitions, and FIGHE "boost" spirit is always helpsaid a few words, not enough to bore them, about doing as well with their brains at the school books as they did begins to play an important part in the building up of a real civilization.

With their muscles on the track and Copyright, 1922, by Public Ledger Company

The speaker of the evening told of a farewell by General Booth to a Salvation Army party which was leaving him for work in another country. The old general was too far away from his hearers to make a speech, so he merely waved his hands at them and shouted, "Others! Others!"

CUCH of the talk at the meeting as was not of boys was of doing something for the town—something for others—always others. It was heeding the admonition of General Booth, though none of the members had ever heard of it before that evening.

It was because of this talk that the writer began to understand why there are rotary clube all over the world, and why they are all flourishing and grow-

For their work seems to be work for others—the effort of strong, successful and prosperous men to make others strong and prosperous and successful. Such organizations are bound to grow. Every community needs one of them. because it needs one, it welcome encourages the one that is formed
