A Canadian Pacific Hotel—Atop of Old Quebec

Roads Open—To New France

POINT HER for Quebec this spring. Inviting motor roads to the St. Lawrence. A ferry. And twisting, you are in a new world—the old world. . . . Twisting, tiny streets. Quaint Normandy houses. Avenues are "rues". Garages advertise "Huile et gazoline". Townspeople talking in voluble French. . . . A few more steep streets, and—Chateau Frontenac. Towered and turreted like a baronial castle. Bathrooomed and serviced as a Canadian Pacific hostelry. . . . What a place! What a picture! Below—the St. Lawrence. Back country—gold, and a primitive peasantry which still hitches dogs to its milk carts. All the life of 20th Century America,—amidst the peace of 17th Century France. Make reservations now. Canadian Pacific Office, 629 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, or Chateau Frontenac, Quebec, Can.
