To Go back to the show last night,

I it was charming and very well done.
You know "Iolanthe" is a fairy play and there is a large chorus of fairies in it. They made a pretty picture in flowing dresses of pastel shades with allver crowns and wands. The "head fairies," Fanny Wister, Deborah Seal and Sara Bailey, looked lovely. Anne Guyer was a stately queen of the fairies and Mrs. George Millington, as lolanthe, another fairy and the mother of the hero, was sweet. Frank Ward was a clever and amusing Lord Chancellor (did you know that he had the same part before when Savoy gave the same opera) and his skipping was perfect. The little page and his trainbearer was too cute skipping in unison with him. The chorus of Dukes, Marquises, Earles, Viscounts and Barons were most impressive as they strolled around in the first act in their long cloaks and crowns. Marie Zara was fascinating as the heroine Phyllis and of course Nelson Eddy made a hit as the bandsome hero. Jack Simms was a dashing Grenadier Guardsman. The theatre was crowded, among the people I saw there were Mr. and Mrs. George Millam D. Oxley Post, No. 133, American Legion, will silve a cart party of the will sam D. Oxley Post, No. 133, American Legion, will silve a cart party. MO GO back to the show last night, bandsome hero. Jack Simms was a dashing Grenadier Guardsman. The theatre was crowded, among the people I saw there were Mr. and Mrs. George Willcox McIver—Mrs. McIlver was Jane Maule and you remember how well she sang in the "Marriage Tax" last winter; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Claghorn and Mary Boyd, whose cousin Sara Bailey, was one of the leading characters, and Mrs. Isaac R. Davis and one of her sons, I think it was Edward.

THE Devon Horse Show began yesterday and there was a big crowd terday and there was a big crowd out there. The dancing, in charge of Mrs. Charles C. Harrison, Jr., was very popular. Mrs. Harrison looked very well in a light blue dress of soft silk with a large pink hat trimmed with with a large pink hat trimmed with the season along those whom I saw Chew, to Mr. Richard Phillips Mills. well in a light blue dress of soft silk with a large pink hat trimmed with pink roses. Among those whom I saw selping her were her daughters, Augusta, who came out the year before this, and Ellen, who will make her debut next fall. Ruth Packard, Mary Fshnestock, Dorothy Rodgers and Ellen McMichael. It was funny to see Marquerite Boyle and Florence Kane pulling a donkey and cart about. They were selling cut flowers and at times the poor donkey would get exhausted and refuse to move another step, and you know what a donkey is like when he refuses to move. Marguerite and Florence looked most attractive dressed alike in frocks of corn-colored linen with aprons and sun bonnets of the same material. I saw Marie Hepburn, too, she was one of Mrs. Harry Thayer's aides at the cigar and cigarette stand.
