

BIGGEST FIGHT YET IS FACED BY MAJOR

Holds Court-Martial Verdict a Victory, but Fears Board of Examiners

HITS CLASSIFICATION PLAN

Although he scored what is generally admitted throughout army circles as a victory when he was exonerated on two charges—absence without leave—and making false official statements—and found guilty, with the penalty of losing fifty merits on the promotion list of officers for the writing of his famous "Prussianism" letter to President Harding, Major Malcolm Wheeler-Nicholson now has even a more bitter battle on his hands.

His court-martial trial at Camp Dix which attracted wide attention because of his attacks on the present regular army system, concluded last night. The further struggle on his part to keep from being ousted from the service was revealed this morning when he was asked for his statement concerning the outcome of his trial.

"The verdict of the board was entirely to my satisfaction," he said. "I have no complaint whatever to make. It was a fairly conducted trial. In my judgment I have been vindicated for writing to the President."

"But my hardest fight is yet to come, when I am called to Boston to appear before the Board of Examiners who placed me in Class B. It is this very thing which I am trying to have abolished because it is nothing more than a convenient device for getting rid of those who have incurred their displeasure."

Class System Perverted

"The system of classes was adopted during the war as a means of weeding out the mentally and morally unfit officers. Its original intent cannot be criticized. But officers who compose the board are now using it to keep their friends in the service and throw out the undesirables, even though the latter are, in numerous instances, more capable and efficient."

The varied career of Major Nicholson is attested to by a glance at his service record. Recognized as an unusually intelligent officer and an authority on cavalry and army tactics, he has seen service all over the world since his appointment as a lieutenant in 1912. He was in the Philippine campaigns and along the Mexican border, where he was commended for his work in training troops.

Following the collapse of the Russian Army he was recommended to handle Russian affairs here, but received orders to sail for France instead. During the war he served in Siberia with the Japanese General Staff and following the armistice was sent to Paris, where he superintended the disbursement of millions of francs for the War Reparations Commission. Later he was in command of a detachment which salvaged the torpedoed Tuscania off the coast of Scotland, an undertaking which nearly cost the lives of the party.

Author of Textbooks

He has written several books on cavalry methods and manuals, one of which is now being used by the British army as a textbook.

The court-martial board was headed by Colonel Orrin R. Wolfe, of the First Division, survivor of some of the thickest fighting overseas. Lieutenant Colonel John L. Bond, of Governors Island, who was connected with the Bergdoll trial, was the law member of the board, while Lieutenant Colonel Allan J. Greer, of the Sixth Field Artillery, was the judge advocate.

SHOPKEEPER HELD UP

Israel Marmot, 3105 W. York st., Says Bandit Got $650

Israel Marmot reported to the police that a bandit entered his store, 3105 West York street, shortly before last midnight, held him up at the point of a gun and took $650 from his cash register. Marmot conducts a delicatessen store and was standing behind the counter, he said, when the bandit came in. There were no customers in the store at the time and none of the neighbors heard the alarm given after the robbery.

Mr. and Mrs. Hews came to see pop and ma last night, and they was talking about things in general such as how much different things cost, and how good O by the way. I made some remarkable home brew the other nite from a wonderful recipe, so in case you people care to indulge I'll be glad to supply the wet material.

My Willyum you dont mean to say you'd offer Mr. and Mrs. Hews any of that terrible stuff, ma sed, and pop sed, Well, I admit it wasent any thing to rave about wen you tried it, but it had several days to age sints then, and thats probably all it needed, a little age. Well, its 2 days old, if you think shats old enuf to be introduced in public, ma sed, and Mrs. Hews sed, Heby Mr. Potts, dont trouble on our account.

Its no trouble at all, I assure you, on the contrary, Im really anxious to have your opinion, pop sed. And he went downstairs and came back with a bottle of his wine and some glasses, ma saying, My goodness, its changed color, its much darker than it was, is it opposed to do that?

Wat, certeny, pop sed, looking at it as if he wasent sure. And he pored some out in 4 glasses and everybody looked at everybody as if they didnt want to be the first to taste it and then they all tasted it together. Mrs. Hews twisling her mouth up and her nose down and cawling in her handkerchief and Mr. Hews looking as if he was swallowing the last half of his teat against his will, pop saying, Now I really want your honest and candid opinion, of course, it probably needs a bit more aging, but wat do you think of it?

Grate, Mr. Hews sed putting his glass down and leaving it down, and Mrs. Hews put hers down saying, Very nice Im sure, of course Im no judge. And pop put his glass down and ma put hers down and nobody took another teat and the Hewses kept cawling as if they was sorry they took their first teat, wih after they went home I took a taste and didnt blame them.
