

Woman's Life and Love

June Weddings
WHAT kind of a wedding are you going to have? It is to be a thing of pomp and show and ceremonial, like the Durbar of India, where the elephants have embroidered cushions and gold trappings; or some Ziegfeld's Midnight Frolics, where costumes are gorgeous and girls are displayed in all their pulchritude?

friends, the moment she contemplates a wedding, her mind harks back to the old, primitive savagery of brass rings, the beating of tomtoms, warpaint and feathers. Superstitions and symbols that have lost their meaning still are utilized. In Oriental countries, the bride and bridegroom jump a fire, to signify the new domestic hearth, while in Scotland it's a broomstick. Gypsy customs concern the campfire.

Does your heart's desire consist in having the traditional six bridesmaids, marching down a long church aisle, and an awkward, uncomfortable bridegroom waiting at the altar, frightened into perspiration lest he drop the ring at the crucial moment? Do you suppose your beloved wants the show?

LET the bells peal forth, if you really wish to blazon your joy to the world, but do not agonize over the hard work of a big, formal wedding just because you follow a blind custom. Think it over intelligently, and choose what seems appropriate and beautiful, as an expression of your own personalities and situation.

Let the bells peal forth, if you really wish to blazon your joy to the world, but do not agonize over the hard work of a big, formal wedding just because you follow a blind custom.

LET the bells peal forth, if you really wish to blazon your joy to the world, but do not agonize over the hard work of a big, formal wedding just because you follow a blind custom.

Adventures With a Purse

The era of white shoes is here, and that means that people will step on our feet in the trolley cars. While picking a path through the busy crowds at noon, we are bound to bump or be bumped, and an unsightly mark is the inevitable result.

The Unconscious Sinner

Cleo Ridgefield is the type of girl who unconsciously tempts me to make love to her. When she refuses Dick Wheeler, he tries to commit suicide, and is saved by his guardian, Carey Phelps.

If you are one of those who like everything to "match," you'll be glad to know about the hat and dress which can be bought in any combination of colors. The one set was brown and white checkered. The dress slips over the head and has a giraffe of the gingham. Collars and cuffs are made of a heavier white material.

"I'm Going Away"
CLEO'S piteous query, "Why did you marry me?" forced Carey to look into his heart searching for the answer.

Read Your Character

Those Who Dare
The tendency to take a chance, to dare, is of big value in leaders of enterprises, particularly in enterprises where the object is to build up rather than merely to conserve.

Can You Tell?

With a single stride he spanned the distance between them, and seizing her by the shoulders forced her to look at him.

More and More of Draped Effects

The game of dropping the handkerchief (drapery) is often limited to one shoulder. Thus we find in some of the latest of Paris evening gowns a cascading handkerchief draped over a self-manipulating which falls from one shoulder to the other side of the gown, balanced on the same side by a rather wide panel.

Things You'll Love to Make

Tied-at-Sides Pinaflore
For the summer playtime here is a TIED-AT-SIDES PINAFLORE that is darling for the little one.

Trimmings

Organdy is an excellent choice now as ever for the small belle's party dress, and it is particularly lovely when hand embroidered.

The Spanish shawl is enjoying a vogue as a wrap for evening.

The Fear of Being Considered Old-Fashioned in Any Little Way

Makes Some People Go to Extremes in Wildness, While Others Make Themselves Appear Foolish

"IF I WERE a man I should murder some of the girls I see downtown. They get into a man's way so that I don't see how he is able to get any work done."

Please Tell Me What to Do

IT'S "LITTLE D."
Ask your father to invite the young man to dinner some time when he is in town. As you get to know him better you will find out whether or not you really love or merely infatuate that you feel for him.

Wife Left Him Without Explanations

Dear Cynthia—Six months ago my wife went to her home for a vacation with our boy after we had lived happily for six years.

Another With a Crush

Dear Cynthia—I have read the letter of "Reader" and can readily sympathize with her for I am in the same position myself.

"A Saleslady" Writes to "B-2"

Dear Cynthia—First allow me to criticize your column; there is only one fault with it, it is too long.

WHAT'S WHAT

By Helen Decie
The eighteenth century "beau" or "dandy" with his lace cravat, his snuff-box, his curled wig, his powdered hair, other now-outdated fashion in that he considered it an elegant accomplishment to be able to pay flattering speeches to a woman.

Paul and Virginia

How to Keep Young
PAUL, what do you think Emily Starr calls her husband?

"Well, now, honest, that's a question. What does Emily Starr call her lord and master?"

"I don't know," Emily dropped in this afternoon, and in the course of conversation she spoke of Harry as 'Old Buzz-fuzz' and she only seemed surprised when I laughed.

"Paul smiled absently. 'In a way that name does fit Harry pretty well, at that. He's an awfully cross fellow for a young man, and he does take things so infernally seriously.'"

"But think of Emily calling him that awful nickname habitually. What would you think of me calling you something silly like that—and in public, too, the way Emily does?"

"Well, I don't know as it would be so bad," I remember I answered, but I was the chief's wife on the wire, and she fancied for a minute she was talking to him, and I remember she called him some sort of a foolish thing like 'Daddelums' or something like that."

"Sure, it's silly. But in a way it is a constant reminder to the man that that nickname business. I know that Arthur Stearns calls Elinor Little 'Fuss-budget,' and I've heard Aunt Mary Arnold call Uncle Joe 'Nimpy'—although I can't for the life of me tell why."

"I've thought of a lot of nice little pet names for you, Virginia, but somehow I never quite dared to repeat them."

"Dared! As if I were some old she-demon!"

"Well, you know—"

"Tell me some of them," commanded Virginia.

He shook a reluctant head.

"Oh, I can't, starting off cold, have to have inspiration. Some silly, mental moment, you know. That's when one thinks of foolish pet names."

"I shall call you old Buzzpuffs if you don't stop being so silly," warned Virginia, provocatively.

"All right, honey; I don't care. So long as you think up a lot of pet names, I'll know you still love me."

"Chow puppy," he replied, brazenly.

"What a name!" cried Virginia, delightedly.

"Aw, I've got a lot more—better than that," he chuckled. "Wait and see."

Tomorrow—"The Point of View"

TO DRESS IT UP

If your bathing suit is a plain T-ray and you would like something a bit more fanciful, do what this girl did. She took pieces of brightly-colored fabric, cut them into interesting circles and ovals and sewed them on her bathing suit with wide stitches in yarn. The result was an effective spray of appliqued flowers which gave her plain suit a distinctive touch.

The Woman's Exchange

Storing Fur Coat
Dear Madam—I have a Russian marmot coat I put in a good moth bag for the summer in a large closet. Do you think it will be all right when you store this way in a closet. The heat won't harm it, either.

About Cards
Dear Madam—Various occasions, such as Easter and Christmas, I have sent my engraved card to a man friend and he has been very kind to send me with a seasonal card on which is engraved the name of the man's mother. The question I want answered is this: When the next occasion arises to send this man a card, should I also send one to his mother, whom I have never met? He is in the service and does not live at present at home, but his name and address by her and mailed from her home.

Curious

If a man addresses flattering remarks to a girl, she must learn to laugh them away with some trivial comment of "rose-colored spectacles" or "blarney" or a reference to the Indian who was called "Chief Sugar." This is a subject in which she may choose to be unamiable.

Curious

If a man addresses flattering remarks to a girl, she must learn to laugh them away with some trivial comment of "rose-colored spectacles" or "blarney" or a reference to the Indian who was called "Chief Sugar." This is a subject in which she may choose to be unamiable.

Curious

If a man addresses flattering remarks to a girl, she must learn to laugh them away with some trivial comment of "rose-colored spectacles" or "blarney" or a reference to the Indian who was called "Chief Sugar." This is a subject in which she may choose to be unamiable.

Curious

If a man addresses flattering remarks to a girl, she must learn to laugh them away with some trivial comment of "rose-colored spectacles" or "blarney" or a reference to the Indian who was called "Chief Sugar." This is a subject in which she may choose to be unamiable.

Curious

If a man addresses flattering remarks to a girl, she must learn to laugh them away with some trivial comment of "rose-colored spectacles" or "blarney" or a reference to the Indian who was called "Chief Sugar." This is a subject in which she may choose to be unamiable.

Curious

If a man addresses flattering remarks to a girl, she must learn to laugh them away with some trivial comment of "rose-colored spectacles" or "blarney" or a reference to the Indian who was called "Chief Sugar." This is a subject in which she may choose to be unamiable.

Curious

If a man addresses flattering remarks to a girl, she must learn to laugh them away with some trivial comment of "rose-colored spectacles" or "blarney" or a reference to the Indian who was called "Chief Sugar." This is a subject in which she may choose to be unamiable.

yet she shrank from it as if it had been a crime. BUT there's no great crime in having ideas of your own which happen to be different from those of modern times and the same as those of an earlier generation. It is rather original, just like a sleeve that is brought out by a designer as the latest thing. Entirely different from anything that is being worn at the time—but one like one that came over in the flower, or waved a farewell to the meted knight going out to slay a dragon or a giant or something. In these days of expressing your personality it is rather out of the picture to be afraid to admit your old-fashioned likes and preferences. If you happen to have an old-fashioned personality it would make you so much more interesting.

MILLARDS The Shops of Sensible Prices The Last Word in Frocks for Summer Organdie—Tissue Gingham—Voile Linen—Printed Satin and Tub Silk

Boned CHICKEN IN THE HOME, IN CAMP OR ON THE HIKE R & R Boned Chicken is more than a convenience; many have long regarded it as a necessity. A standard product for fifty years It makes for economy of time and economy of purse.

ASCO One Price One Blend One Grade The best cup you ever drank ASCO Coffee lb 29c "You'll taste the difference!" We have been coffee merchants for more than thirty years, and in that time we have learned that our customers want nothing but the best coffee, and are not satisfied with anything else.