

WORKERS FILL BRYN MAWR HALLS

Fresh From Factories and Mills,
They Revel in Classic
Shades of Noted School

GREETED BY DR. THOMAS

One hundred women industrial workers stood in the chapel at Bryn Mawr College this morning to greet Dr. M. Carey Thomas, who made the address at the opening of the summer school for women workers, as her last official act of the college of which she has been president for many years.

After Miss Thomas' address of welcome, one of the girls marched up the steps across the platform and presented to Miss Thomas a bouquet of roses. After the applause had quieted, Miss Thomas said:

"Do you not think that it is significant that a woman industrial worker should be presenting a pioneer in education, a president of a college with these roses?"

The girl was Sadie Dressner, of Baltimore, a garment worker.

Miss Thomas made a short speech expressing her appreciation to Dr. Thomas and stating the opinion of the girls that the far-reaching effect of this new educational movement will have.

"It will help those of us who are working," said Miss Dressner.

The exercises were concluded by singing the American and the Battle Hymn of the Republic after a prayer by Miss Hilda Smith, director of the school. Miss Smith introduced Dr. Thomas.

After the exercises the girls met with the instructors to talk over the courses and make out their schedules for the classes which begin tomorrow morning.

"Most Wonderful Place"

Mary G. Hill, who lives in Nashville, Tenn., was the first girl to arrive to attend the summer school.

"It's the most wonderful place in the world," she declared in her soft Southern voice. "I never dreamed there was a place like this. I haven't seen it all yet, but I surely do like what I have seen."

Mary is twenty-four years old and has been working for three years as a blinder in a printing shop.

"I haven't ever done any college work before. I didn't get to high school over in the Dutch grammar school. The family I live with adopted me, and I haven't been with my two brothers for twelve years. Of course, I use them sometimes, but we aren't together all the time."

In the general group of 87, 12 girls come from the Boston district, 20 from the New York, 17 from the Philadelphia, 10 from the Washington, 7 from the Cleveland, 10 from the Chicago, 5 from the St. Louis, 2 from the San Francisco and 5 from the Northwest district.

There are also thirteen girls, leaders in their trades, who constitute a leadership group.

The school has girls of all trades and nationalities, many of whom have nothing in common but their desire for knowledge. Sixty-seven were born in America, 2 in Russia, 2 in England, 2 in Hungary and 1 in each of the following countries: Poland, Germany, Holland, Austria, Lithuania, Rumania and Sweden.

Many Courses Offered

The courses include elementary and advanced economics, which includes study of trade unions and labor legislation, elementary, intermediate and advanced composition and public speaking, hygiene, courses in literature and history, which is the only required course; psychology, government, history of the labor movement, science, music and physical education.

There is a variety of activities which the students may elect to fill their leisure time. There are nature study groups, excursions, swimming, hikes, basketball, tennis and other activities.

The students include the following from Philadelphia: Christine Doyle, 228 North 17th street; E. J. Thompson, 248 Rorer street; Stephanie Fronz, 244 Roxborough avenue; Kathryn Hill, 278 Cresson street; Bertha Kipnis, 208 West Clifford street; Elizabeth Rudolph, 1045 North Broad street; Sara Fridgant, 4222 Stiles street; and Elmira Wilkins, 2021 South 13th street.

Brookhart Opponent Spent $3837

Des Moines, June 14.—Charles E. Pickett, Waterloo, spent $3837.02 in his campaign for the Republican senatorial nomination, according to his list of campaign expenses filed with the Secretary of State. Colonel Smith W. Brookhart, the successful candidate, expended approximately $450.

A CIVIL WAR FLAG

This flag was taken into Libby Prison by a Northern soldier who was taken prisoner. The Northern kept the flag concealed until he was able to gain his release. It was then brought to Philadelphia. Forty-two years ago Joseph A. Roesechen (in etching), of 6187 Master street, came into possession of the valuable flag and will have it out in the breeze at his home today as a part of his Flag Day decorations.

R. R.'S FIND AUTO COMPETITION KEEN

W. J. Tollerton Admits Inroads
in Addressing Railway Association Convention

SPEAKS AT ATLANTIC CITY

Atlantic City, June 14.—The inroads that the automobile has made into the railroad business were discussed today at the opening of the convention of the American Railway Association and its affiliated organizations. Nearly 1000 delegates are here for the sessions, which will continue for a week.

Charles M. Schwab, W. W. Atterbury, A. H. Smith, president of the New York Central, and S. M. Vauclain, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, are among the expected speakers.

"The railroads are confronted with a field of competition in the form of automobiles and autotricks, which is having a serious effect on local traffic, both passenger and freight," declared W. J. Tollerton, of Chicago, president of the association, in his annual address. "This is understood to be the first official recognition of the competition with autotricks."

"In so far as autotricks are concerned, they are in a position to operate at a very low cost, virtually on a Government subsidy, having no other expenses than a small tax for investment in or maintenance of roadway, terminal and other station requirements, so they can establish rates and short-time deliveries which make the most keen competition," Mr. Tollerton continued.

"We have been through the war period, the reconstruction period and at the present time a Government regulation period which, I am glad to say, appears to me as one which is based on an earnest endeavor of our statesmen to rise above persecutions, which, it must be admitted, characterized some of the earlier policies of regulation, particularly in individual States.

"There is no doubt that the general public has been brought to a sharp realization of the fact that in the transportation system the public itself is the real sufferer."

CHILDREN TAKE PART

Today in Flag Day.

Old Glory was flung to the winds from housetop, flagpole and window in all sections of the city, upon the 145th anniversary of the making of our national emblem in a tiny house still standing at 239 Arch street.

Business houses, homes, public buildings and schools displayed the Stars and Stripes in memory of the occasion in keeping with the request of the Mayor that every person who had an American flag fly it today in this, the most truly American city.

The chief observance of the day will be held at the Elks Club House. Following a flag raising and the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" by foreign-born schoolchildren of the city, Mayor Moore will make the chief address. He will be followed by Edwin E. Bach, director of the Americanization Bureau of the Department of Public Instruction of Pennsylvania.

At the same ceremony a presentation of a memorial tablet by Mrs. Blanche A. Bellak, president of the Philadelphia Chapter of War Mothers, will take place. During the presentation of the tablet, Mrs. Bellak will sing "America." Colonel Samuel P. Towne, Adjutant General of the Department of Pennsylvania, G. A. R., will also deliver an address. The presentation of the tablet will be a place of honor on the speakers' stand during the afternoon.

Judge Patterson, president of the society, will make the presentation, and Mayor Moore will accept on behalf of the city. Michael J. Ryan will also speak.

The fourth annual celebration of Flag Day by the Patriotic Order of Sons of America will be held in the evening, a parade with 2000 marchers featuring the program, which will come to a close at the Betsy Ross House. # PREPARES REPORT ON R. R. DEATH TRAP

Chief of N. J. Grade Crossing
Division of Utility Body
Goes to Absecon

INQUEST TOMORROW

James Mayberry, chief of the grade-crossing division of the Public Utility Commission of New Jersey, has gone to Atlantic County to prepare a report, following the crash between a train and an auto at Absecon crossing Saturday, which wiped out a family of six.

The coroner's inquest will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Public Utility Commissioner Bacharach announced that he would make a personal study of the grade crossings in the county together with the protection afforded to motorists.

Mrs. Mary E. Stratton, of East Pennsauken, yesterday afternoon attended the funeral of her nephew, John Stratton, and his wife and four children, all victims of the crossing tragedy, and died of grief after the services.

She accompanied the six victims to the cemetery at Pleasantville and wept continuously and at the conclusion returned with other members of the family to Atlantic City.

After her husband for an hour she and her husband left on their return trip. When in Absecon she expressed a desire to see the scene where her nephew had been killed. As her husband was driving along the road Mrs. Stratton suddenly climbed her left side and fell unaccountably to the floor of the car. The husband turned about and sought a physician after first aid remedies had

FIND CROESUS' COINS

Gold Money, First Minted, May Come to United States

New York, June 14.—Thirty gold coins belonging to the first series of gold coins ever minted have been unearthed by American archeologists who are working on the buried ruins of Sardis, the ancient Lydian capital in Asia Minor. Fifteen of them may come to the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

The news of this discovery was brought to the United States by Dr. T. Leslie Shear, an archeologist of Columbia University, who was present at the excavation, who was present at the discovery.

The coins are those of Croesus, the last king of Lydia and the first great international banker, whose name has been a symbol for wealth for thousands of years. The coins were minted some time between 601 B. C. when Croesus ascended the throne of Lydia and 546, when he was captured by Cyrus, the Persian King. Some of them are as bright as new-minted pieces of the Metropolitan Museum of Art. They are lighter in hue, as they are of pure gold.
