No Joy for Mrs. Brunen as Cheery Cellmate Goes

Mrs. Davis declared when arrested that she would stick to her affinity but today she had no parting word for the former squire, who still has four months to serve. According to Ellis Parker, Burlington According to Ellis Parker, Burlington County detective, Mrs. Brunen is "losing her nerve." But he says she will be held in jail until he presents his case to the Grand Jury after cleaning up some loose ends of the case. In conversation with a keeper of the Mount Holly jail yesterday, Mrs. Brunen expressed her tears for the safety of her daughter.

"Like myself and my brother, Harry Mohr," she said, "my girl knows absolutely nothing about the sacoting of my husband. I want her to come out and see me, but I guess the poor child is afraid to for fear she may be put in jail.

No Intention of Arresting Girl

"Mr. Parker assures me that he has no intention of arresting her, but you never can tell what he is going to do. "I have learned that i cannot talk to my lawyers until after the meeting of the Grand Jury. That is unfair to me. All I want now is an early trial so that I can prove my innocence."

The arrest of Mrs. Brunen was decided upon when Charles M. Powell, who admitted killing the shownan, in claborating his alleged confession, made several months ago, involved her. It is believed that Mrs. Elizabeth Jaeschke, sister of the slain man, who Jaeschke, sister of the slain man, who has endeavored to gain possession of Hazel Brunen, who is the daughter of his first wife, will return East and further her fight for the girl's guardianship. Mrs. Brunen Writes Daughter This morning a letter written by Mrs.

The mother cautioned her child to care for her aged grandmother and to assure her that everything would come out all right. She made no complaint about being detained on the charge of murder, except that she had to buy new bed linen and also had to have her meals brought in. She asked Hazel to arrange to have a change of clothing sent to the jail.

Approves Synchronized Semaphore Tower System for Central Section

DRIVERS MUST CO-OPERATE

Traffic control by semaphore towers in the central part of the city is commented on favorably in this week's issue of "Citizen's Business," published by the Bureau of Municipal Research.

The publication points out that "in the district bounded by Eighth, Sixteenth, Locust and 'Arch streets there are some seventy points of intersection all directions. Verily, to the birds of the air, the street traffic in such a district must present a kaleidoscopic picture of greatly conflicting currents of travel."

This city, the publication says, had the reputation of having done pioneer work in handling street traffic, having introduced the semaphore system and the large of the large WILL CONFER HERE cuss Ways of Financing Campaign introduced the semaphore system and the "one way street." But Philadel-phia has not kept pace with New York, which introduced the signal tower sys-

"Based on this accomplishment," says the burenu. "the co-ordinated semaphore system has commended itself to those who have been studying Philadelphia's traffic problem. Mr. Pinchot said that the visit of General and Mrs. Asher Miner here was purely personal and did not pertain to politics at all.

Problem Different Here "It is generally recognized that the Fifth avenue system cannot be imitated in all details in Broad stret, mainly because the east and west traffic in Philadelphia is relatively much greater than that in New York. Initial modifications, however, already have been worked out by the local traffic authorities to adapt the system to local conditions, and the modified plan awaits only the sanction of Council.

'If and when the new signal towers are erected in Philadelphia, and the synchronized signals begin to flash up and down Broad street, the plans of the Bureau of Police can have a fair trial and reach their many first trial and reach their most effective develop-ment only with the co-operation of those for whose greater safety and con-venience the system is intended—those who make up the vehicular and pedestrian traffic on congested streets.
