Man Mulcted of $30 Hesitates at Paying Additional Expenses

Joseph Stein, 2223 North Front street, can bring Harry Batzel, of Audubon, N. J., back to Philadelphia and prosecute him for giving him a pair of worthless checks for a total of $30—but it will cost him much more than $30 to do so. He doesn't know what to do to do.

Stein swore out a warrant for Batzel and the latter fled from Audubon, leaving a wife and child. Batzel has just been arrested in Boston and Stein was told he would have to pay the expenses of bringing Batzel back if he wished to prosecute.

TURNKEY'S SNOOZE SPOILED BY GALLOPING DOMINOES

Lonesome Prisoners Are "Faded" by Order of Magistrate

Everything was peaceful at the Twelfth and Pine streets police station this morning. Sam Mason, veteran turnkey, had selected a chair and But the snapping of fingers interrupted his repose, followed by ejaculations of "Sweet patootie" and "Come you seven."

Sam walked down the line of cells he had waited long enough and set out and there squatted two figures rolling to find his father. For two hours he dice.

"We got lonesome, judge," was the excuse of Nathaniel Nelson, 827 North enth street, and Edward Prattis, 2047 Kater street, both Negroes. They are accused of breaking into the furnishing store of Harry Kates, Twentieth and South streets, June 11, and stealing ilk shirts valued at $100.

"Sorry to stop your game," said Magistrate O'Brien, "but you'll have to continue somewhere else. Five hunred dollars bail for the Grand Jury.

Bartenders in Raided Saloons Carry

Three saloons in the central section were raided yesterday by prohibition agents and a small quantity of liquor infiscated in each place. In the first confiscated in each place. In the first two saloons the bartenders are said to have been doing a "hip-pocket" business. In place of storing whisky behind the bar they carried small flasks their pockets and served from the hip.

The places raided were those of Louis Temponi, 31 South Sixth street; S. J. Conway, 12 South Fifth street, and Charles Statler, 10 North Fifth where seventy-five gallons of aleged whisky were confiscated.

The life of an error in building

It lives as long as the building itself—perhaps a century. And the way to prevent it is to have the right architect-and a builder who gives him full co-operation.
