TSN'T it interesting to hear that Alberta Reath and Harry Neilson are to be married in the fall? Really, all accounts, it seems as though from all accounts, it seems as though there would be almost as many weddings in the autumn as we've had this spring. Helen Sewell and Henry Coxe will be married on September 9, and Caroline Barclay and Muscoe Garnett on October 7, which is the same day as Cornelia Rankin and Alfred Hunter have chosen.

Continuing the Disposal of the M. J. Lewis Stock IN OUR STORE 1214 Chestnut Street

We have purchased the entire stock of M. J. Lewis, 1206 Chestnut Street, who is retiring from business in Philadelphia. Everything has been marked one-third to one-half off the original Lewis prices, and in some cases the reductions are even greater.

Most Philadelphians know that the store of M. J. Lewis has been the representative store of its kind in the city. Not only is the merchandise all of extremely high grade, but the stocks are extraordinarily complete and show exquisite taste in the selection. All the goods described below are of the very finest materials and workmanship. The Art Needlework department was undoubtedly the best known in Philadelphia. We are confident that the new prices will prove irresistible. This is a rare opportunity that is not likely to reoccur.

INFANTS' WEAR. There are irresistible hand-made babies' dresses, wrappers and sacques of soft flannels; some beautifully em-Among the knit goods for infants are tiny sweaters, bootees and caps, all hand knit and some daintily embroider-ed. Some of the carriage robes are knit, others are of soft silk. The line of infants' wear is, in fact, complete, and every item is of the finest grade.

STAMPED GOODS. Every line of stamped wear is here represented. There are centerpieces, bureau scarfs, bedspreads, table covers, dresses and rompers for children-everything, indeed, that one could wish for or imagine.

EMBROIDERED PIECES. These are the models to goods should be finished. There is an almost endless assortment in dupli-cation of the stamped patterns. As these are done as samples to set off the stamped pieces to the best advantage, the workmanship is exquisite. Some of these embroidered pieces are combined with patchwork, and there are some tapestry novelties as
