

oth Hope books, 'Zenda' and 'Rupert Hentzau'?' Who plays the part of Hentzau?' Who plays the part of Rupert? Who plays Black Michael? Have yen seen this production yet and is Alice Terry good? I have never seen her, but I imagine I shall like her as Princess Flavia. When will Scott's Tranhoe' be released and who plays the part of Ivanhoe? Didn't you enjoy Hentzau?" those two books very much? Do you those two books very much? Do you think all of the following who are my favorites are very good?—Wallace Reid, Doug'as Fairbanks, in 'The Three Musketeers'; Milton Sills, especially in Musketeers': Milton Sills, especially in 'The Great Moment': Richard Barthchness in 'Way Down East' and 'Tol-'able David': Therefore Roberts and Gareth Hughes in 'Sentimental Tom-my': actresses, Norma and Constance Talmadge, Gloria Swanson, in 'The Great Moment,' and 'Beyond the Great Moment, and Black Beauty's Rocks': Jean Paige in 'Black Beauty's May McAvoy, Dorothy Dalton, Mar-jorie Daw, Mae Murray, Marguerite Clark and Pauline Frederick.

this scribble, you are certainly in for double praise and thanks for adding my first venture to your column. P. S. Forgot to put Jackie Coogan, Harold L'oyd and Charlie Chaplin among my favorites.

(No, "The Prisoner of Zenda" follows only Anthony Hope's novel of I that name. "Rupert of Hentzau" is to be screened by an entirely different in company later. A newcomer, said to be " a "find." Ramon Samanyogos (the in "find," Ramon Samanyogos (the rnelling is different in every mention of the gentleman) plays Rupert, and Stunrt Holmes plays Black Michael "Tvanhoe" has not yet been start-i. ns to the star. Yes, those are favor-ies of mine. I'm sorry you didn't i es of mine. I'm sorry you dont like the space given to "Kitty Clover, but I thought it was interesting-eve though she gave me a vigorous call-down. We agree pretty thoroughly on down. everything except Gloria and Gareth Hughes.)

W. R. E. writes: "Hector certainly stumbling in the right direction. J voiced a similar protest some time ago but my letter was ignored-probably because I didn't guess you had blue eyes, or say you wrote funny answers, or any of the like pish-posh which introduces the average fan letter.

it is utterly worthless. And the hope-less monotony of their reactions-ye rods! In comparison even your alleged ability as a commentator is an exbilaration: you at least produce some original and interesting thoughts regarding the present, future and deion on the adaptability of some Persian tales read to me from the original. They are so striking, so different. 1 think them great movie fodder. heink them great movie todder, but heaitated to interrupt 'Lizzie Jane' or 'B. Y. X.' and their prototypes from giving us such interesting infor-mation as 'Dot Dalton's a peach.' 'Rudy is divine.' and so on ad nau-seam. Let's reform the letter box.'
