

LINKING MEANS LONG, CHEAP RIDE

Passengers Can Use Market and Frankford Lines, Fifteen Miles, for Seven Cents

BUILDING BOOM SEEN

More than two miles for a cent—such will be the rate of transportation on the P. R. T. when the Frankford Line is linked with the Market Street Elevated.

With the completion of plans today for joining the two L structures, it was pointed out that the united lines will give one of the longest street railway rides in the country.

A rider will be able to travel approximately fifteen miles southwesterly across the city for seven cents; should he buy strip tickets the fare will be six and one-quarter cents for this long ride.

In taking this cut across the city he may ride on two surface lines and the Frankford-Market street L for the one fare.

One may board a surface car at Torredale avenue and Cottman street, ride to Arrott street station, transfer to the Frankford L, ride to Sixtieth and Market, transfer to Sixtieth and ride to Fifty-eighth street and Woodland avenue.

The rider will have the choice of other destinations for the same fare. He may continue out Market street to Sixty-ninth and connect with Main Line points or drop off at Sixtieth street and ride to Baltimore avenue and connect with Media and other Delaware County points.

It will be the only long ride on which transfers will be given for a single fare. In some outlying sections two transfers are given where the entire distance covered is comparatively short.

Incidentally, as hundreds of new houses are going up in Frankford, it is highly probable that more riders will use the complete service than the city's transit promoters ever dreamed of.
