Both critics of the law are conserva-

Neither Frazier nor Beveridge nor Brookhart have any program that can be called radical.

There has been a lack of anything definite in the recent primaries that can be called a large issue. An insurgency against the machine is every-where visible. The discontent of which we hear so much in easily frightened Washington does not seem to go deep. It extends rather to pertouch the system under which we live. If you are in danger of being swept

In place of the regular and dependable McCumber will come, unless a Democrat defeats him, the irregular and incalculable Frazier. In place of the good machine man New will come the lively individualist, Beveridge, and Iowa will send a new and daring ex-ponent of the lows idea to take the seat of the well-disciplined Rawson. Michigan will upset Townsend.

This means an addition of four to the men like Borah, Johnson and Norris who have made party discipline im-possible and the end is not yet. The victories of the anti-machine element will give encouragement to the u-controllables already in Washington. This element — it is absurd to call them radicals and equally so to call
