YARRISON'S HURLING REDEEMING FEATURE OF A'S CELLAR TRIP

Rookie Shows Skill During Four Innings Against Red Sox-Maynard Gives Promise as Good Shortstop. Phils Make It Unanimous by Also Going to Bottom

THE Phillies and the Athlet'es cannot stand prosperity. After brief respites during the last few days in seventh place, both of the local hopes are now pojourning in the climes they know best, last place. The Mackmen had two days of looking up from seventh place during the last week, but could not sustain their attack long enough to remain on the seventh rung more than one day. Yesterday Hughie Duffy gave his line-up a shake-up and the Red Sox up and smote the Mackmen just where it hurt and tumbled them down to the depths again. So it was with the Phils.

The Giants made it three straight by handing Jimmy Ring a sound thrashing. The Braves refused to lose again, defeating the Brooklyn Dodgers and forcing the Phillies back into the cellar they know so well.

Bill Piercy, a Yankee cast-off, proved the Athletics' Waterloo. He allowed them six hits and kept them scattered well enough to prevent the scoring of more than one run. Bill used a mean outcurve on the sluggers of the Athletics and kept them hitting puny grounders or flies all afternoon,

Bing Miller and Walker particularly looked had several times on that mean outcurve that would force the big hitters to take a vicious swing that never met the ball full on. Whenever he needed something in a pinch Plercy was there with his little curve that caused no end of trouble. Miller went hitless during the afternoon and Walker managed to snare a one-base blow when he reached out and poked a single into center. Joe Hauser, Connie's find from Milwaukee, was the only member of the local cast to turn in a decent batting log. He made two singles, one an infield scratch. The youth also fielded his position faultlessly, making a couple of good pick-ups of bad throws.

BUT the star of the whole fray from the Shibe Park standpoint was Rube Yarrison, the former Rocky Mount harler. Rube had a world of stuff and exhibited it in a manner befitting a veteran.

Yarrison Had Plenty of Stuff

HAD Yarrison started on the hill the result of the game might have been different. Any time a rookie goes to the hill and stems the tide of base hits a team is making, when that team happens to be on the long end of the score, he has lots of possibilities.

Rube took the pitching tee in the sixth, and from then on the Red Sox bats were silenced. Twelve men faced the youngster in the four frames he worked, only one reaching base, Liebold, on a frank. The lead-off man was cut down trying to steal on a perfect throw by Cy Perkins. Yarrison showed a change of pace that would do credit to many a veteran. Ably assisted by Perkins, the Rube used a slow, tantalizing curve, a high fast ball, a low fast-breaking drop and a mean inshoot that had the Only three balls were hit to the outfield during his tenure on the mound.

He had worlds of stuff and gives promise of being a kid hurler upon whom Connie can place some dependence before the season is over. Certainly he warrants every opportunity to make good. He has a cool head and can field his position with the best.

Another youngster, this time a visitor, attracted the attention of the fans. He was none other than Chick Maynard, erstwhile shortstop of the Dartmouth College team. Chick started his first game yesterday and showed the mettle. He made a number of good stops and throws, kept his head in the pinches and took a mean cut at the horsehide when it was tossed up

The fielding feature of the contest belonged to the collegian. In the third the Athletics had the bases densely populated, with two down. Bing Miller was at the bat. After taking two and two, the former Senator reached out and cracked one of Piercy's outshoots on the nose. The ball started on a line for the bag at second, took a hop just back of the sack and seemed destined to center field. Maynard dashed over, made a lunge and came up with the horschide.

While bent almost to the ground he flipped the ball over his head to Pratt, who stepped on second an eyelash before Perkins slid into it. It was the kind of play seen only once in a while on any diamond. It cut off at

COMING fresh out of college up to the fast play of the big leagues.

Maynard stamped himself yesterday as being an excellent prospect.

He has a strong arm, fields well and looks like a real batter. With Jimmy Burke and Hughic Duffy to train him, the collegian should develop into an excellent ball player before many moons.

Williams Hits His Twelfth

CYRUS "NOTRE DAME" WILLIAMS made his twelfth home run of the U season, but the Phillies succumbed in spite of it to the New York Giants. m and his hirelings had a 4-to-3 lead at the end of the seventh, when the Giants rallied and turned in three runs, enough to win the contest,

Jimmy Ring was found for eleven hits in the six and one-third innings he worked, and Wilbur Hubbell one during his brief stay on the tee. The Phils hit Art Nehf, the expensive southpaw, hard in spots, but after his teammates gave him a comfortable lead the former Brave hurled strong ball and kept the invaders from digging their cleats into the scoring station. In the last three rounds the Phils went out in one, two, three order.

The defeat cast the Phillies back into last place, the Braves scoring their second straight victory in one of the fastest games of the year. Just one hour and eleven minutes were consumed in the playing of the contest, smart, speedy fielding retiring the batters without much time being wasted. Neither Fillingim, the Braves' star spit-baller, nor Cadore fanned a man during the fracas. The Beantown aggregation made nine hits to seven for the Dodgers. Ford, the slippery little shortstop who showed lots of fielding grace during the series here, had a perfect day at bat, getting a double and

THE biggest news of the day was the announcement that Gibson. manager of the Pirates, had resigned. "Gibby" went to the players after the game and told them that he was through. His resignation was accepted and Bill McKechine named as the new manager.

Rumors Have Been Rampant

GIBSON left the managership like a hero. He thanked the players, said that he had no personal animus and wished them all the success in the world. What more could any one do? Rumblings have been heard for some time that Gibson was about to step down. The fans in Pirateville have been howling at the poor playing of the team of late. It wasn't Gibson's fault. The hurlers upon whom he had placed his greatest reliance failed him miserably, which accounts for the team being down in fifth position when it ought to be up fighting for first place. Sherdel hurled brilliant ball and gave the Cards a 6-to-0 win over the Pirates. Five hits was the total damage done to his delivery, while the Cards made fourteen off Morrison and Yellowhorse.

Eppa Jeptha Rixey had a lucky day. He was batted hard and often, his teammates, just to show that they were entirely with him, made four ome runs. In addition the Reds made five double plays, which kept the Cubs away from the scoring platter when they had visions of getting there,

MARPER, the young outfielder; Duncan, Cavenay and Burns con-HARPER, the young outpetaer; transcan, lateraly and tributed the four-ply shots. Miller, Killefer's husky outfielder, also had a round tripper. Stucland and Kauffmann were the losing

Browns Batter the Indians

THE Browns returned to winning form and handed Tris Speaker's Cleveland Indians a lacing. The victory gave the St. Louisans a half game in the battle for first place, the Yanks, White Sox and Tigers being idle, "Stanny" Covaleskie started on the mound for the Indians, but he proved helpless before the dynamic batting attack of the Browns, who clubbed his delivery freely, driving him from the mound in the seventh with a fiverun rally in which the side batted around. Chick Shorten took Tobin's place when the latter injured his leg, and on the first ball pitched to him in the eighth crashed out a home run.

TOE WOOD, the former speed ball pitcher, who converted himself into an outfielder when his arm lost its cunning, showed as much skill with his hat as he formerly did with his arm. Wood had a perfect day at the bat, getting a home run, a double and two singles.

Lively Ball Complaint Is Heard in Tennis Circles

Too lively a ball is a complaint frequently heard in baseball circles, but it is something new in the tennis world. Tennis players of the country are being asked their opinions regarding the balls now in use by Walter L. Pate, chairman of of the United States Lawn Tennis Association's Committee on Balls and Supplies. If a sufficient number of American players register their opinion by September 1 that a lower bounding ball would be better for a hard court, a change will undoubtedly be recommended at the next annual meeting of the National Association.

keepsie is being sounded. The objection comes from New York and naturally so. Columbia is the only university favored by conditions at Poughkeepsie. The Blue and White has the best quarters on the river. The conches have been growling about Poughkeepsie for many years, but there has not been enough concentrated effort to take the classic elsewhere. Poughkeepsie has tradition.
