Columbia Avenue Jeweler Is Robbed by Bandits, Who Escape in Auto

SIXTH TIME FOR STORE

Automobile bandits drove up to the jewelry store of Charles Muth & Sons, 232 Columbia avenue, at 3:25 o'clock this morning, hurled a brick through the plate glass window and sped away after snatching three pearl necklaces.

In less than a minute after the car entered the block the bandits were on their way again with their loot. They were frightened away by two patrolmen who heard the crash of the glass at Fifteenth and Columbia avenue, Thomas Delaney, watchman at the store, heard a noise at the rear. As he reached the door he heard the crash in the front and ran back, but the robbers had disappeared.

This is the sixth attempt to rob the store in the last two years. It has not been determined what the value of the stolen goods is. In the window display was $30,000 worth of jewelry. Neighbors on Seventeenth street said a man running down that street after the crash. At the corner of Seventeenth street and Columbia avenue a nightgown, in which the brick had been wrapped, was found.

According to the store watchman he saw a taxicab drive round the block several times before he heard the noise at the rear. He believes a stone was thrown against the rear of the building. In the rear of the same store early on June 8, a robber suspect was shot and killed by Wilmer Schweinsberg, a reserve veteran, of 1637 North Seventeenth street.

On January 10, Charles Frederick Muth, the son, shot a bandit who tried to hold up the store. "Freddy" Muth was kidnapped in 1908.

Six men, working from an automobile, early yesterday, broke the large plate glass window of the Walter Becker store on South Penn square and the Mint Arcade, directly across from City Hall, and stole silk shirts and men's clothing valued at $115.

The same band, it is believed, smashed the display window of the Royal Dress Shop, at Twenty-second and Cambria streets. Clothing valued at $200 was carried away.

A lone snasher, a woman, the police say, robbed the display window of W. H. Steigerwald, at 1520 Chestnut street, of a pair of woman's slippers and stockings. The robber got away on a motorcycle.

A window in the store of Samuel Welsman, at 3600 Germantown avenue, also was smashed. A kodak was stolen.

PAUPER PRINCESS IN FUNDS

Russian Refugee Leaves Here for New York by Train

Princess Elizabeth Tehernitcheff, who walked here from Washington a few days ago, resumed her journey to New York today. The Princess was penniless upon her arrival in Philadelphia, but was supplied with money at the House of Industry, 716 Catharine street, where she stopped to rest.

The Princess left by the 7 o'clock train on the Pennsylvania Railroad. "When I get to New York," she said, "I will be able to carry out my plans, which I have had in mind for some time. I believe my son is in New York, and after I find him I will take steps to recover some of my rightful possessions."

Princess Tehernitcheff's husband owned valuable mines in Russia, prior to his assassination by the Bolsheviks, at which time the Princess fled to this country.

ALARM KILLS FIREMAN

Veteran of Camden Force Dies After False Call From Near Home

A false alarm of fire turned in from the neighborhood of his home so unnerved James McDade, sixty-five years old, of Engine Company No. 6, Camden, that he died in the engine house last night of heart failure.

McDade lived at 412 North Front street. The alarm came in shortly after 11 o'clock. Some one remarked that it was near McDade's home. He urged the men to get there with all possible speed.

On returning to the firehouse McDade complained of feeling ill. A few minutes later he died. He was one of the oldest firemen in Camden.

SHORE TRAINS BRING 225,000 BACK TO CITY

Post-Holiday Traffic Breaks Record. 80,000 Autos Return

A sunburned and weary—but happy—crowd of holiday merry-makers rushed back to the city last night, but far less aggressively than it had rushed away three or four days ago.

Each shore train that steamed into the terminals carried a throng of bench-tanned week-enders, just as eager to get inside their homes as they had been to get out of them last Saturday.

The post-holiday passenger traffic broke all records for numbers. The Pennsylvania and the Philadelphia and Reading railroad companies estimate that at least 225,000 men, women and children returned to the city. The Pennsylvania brought back 125,000 while the Reading carried 100,000.

Automobiles moved up to the ferries in a continuous line. The ferry companies kept no record of the traffic, but former employes say at least 50,000 automobiles returned across the Delaware.

BAND CONCERTS TONIGHT

The Municipal Band will play tonight at Manayunk schoolyard, Umbria and Hermitage streets.

The Fairmount Park Band will be at Belmont Mansion.

VISITS HER OWN TOMBSTONE

With preparations made for inevitable interment, Laura Jean Libbey, creator of a hundred heroines, is very much alive. Her apocryphal comment on the "Mystery" appears in the Magazine Section of the Sunday Public Ledger. "Make it a habit."—Ado.

Jacob Reed's Sons

Announce a Semi-Annual Repricing Sale

It affords us genuine pleasure to again announce one of our noteworthy Semi-Annual Repricing Sales.

We find that these sales are greatly appreciated by our regular patrons who are eager to save money on clothing of a quality with which they are thoroughly familiar, and which they fully appreciate. In addition to this, the sales are frequently the means of new customers first becoming acquainted with us—with the natural result that they, too, become staunch adherents of Jacob Reed's Sons.

This season's sale is unusually advantageous because our prices through the Spring have averaged 20% lower than last year—and with these substantial additional reductions, provide an exceptional opportunity to purchase the highest grade clothing at a moderate expenditure.

The Sale is composed entirely of clothing made on Reed's Standard of Quality, which signifies the best of fabrics—best of tailoring—and includes our regular lines of Spring and Summer weight worsted, unfinished worsted, tweed and cheviot Suits—the finest, shapeliest and most serviceable ready-to-wear clothing manufactured.

The reduced prices are as follows:—

- $30 Suits are repriced to $24
- $35 Suits are repriced to $28
- $40 Suits are repriced to $32
- $45 Suits are repriced to $36
- $50 Suits are repriced to $40
- $55 Suits are repriced to $44
- $60 Suits are repriced to $48
- $65 Suits are repriced to $52

We want a few more men at once

SEVERAL openings still exist in our Sales Department. We desire to fill them at once. They constitute an unusual opportunity for a few qualified men who can measure up to our requirements.

Ours is a large and successful corporation, backed by more than thirty of the best industrial and technical brains in America. Our Advisory Board includes such men as P. H. Duesenberg, President of Duesenberg Motors, Inc.; Dr. Charles P. Steinmetz, Chief Consulting Engineer of the General Electric Co.; A. Russell Bond, for 18 years Editor of the Scientific American.

We do not believe in transplanting "high-powered" executives from outside. We make promotions entirely from our own sales staff. Naturally we select new men with extreme care. And our personnel records show us how mutually satisfactory and profitable this care has proved. Every man here is building solidly for a permanent business future.

You may or may not be the exact type of man we are seeking. You may or may not have had selling experience. But three things you must have: courage, determination and that intangible something called "personality."

To arrange for a personal interview, write at once, giving a fairly complete outline of your work and yourself. All communications are held strictly confidential. Address DIRECTOR OF PERSONNEL,
