SENT TO PRISON 24 TIMES

on Jail Door

Apocial Cable Dispatch. Copyright, 1928 Berlin, July 6. - Karl Grossman, Germany's Jack-the-Ripper-in fact. be is the only criminal in the history of the world to be compared to Jackthe-Ripper, according to his attorneyhanged himself with his necktie on a small nail in the door of his prison cell yesterday, a few minutes before he was to be taken before the Judge of the Criminal Court. The motive of suicide

Criminal Court. The motive of suicide in all probability was fear of the gallows. Dr. Frey, his attorney, said that for some time the prisoner had been complaining of the severe observation he was subjected to. At noon he made use of a few minutes when unguarded during the change of keepers to carry out his plan.

His trial opened three days ago. Though the police firmly believe he killed at least twenty women since he was, released from jail in 1917, the parts of only eight bodies were found, three of which were identified. The charge against him, therefore, was the murder of three women. murder of three women.

Tortured Women in Bed

Grossman was often compared with enri Landru, the French Blue-ard, Herr Frey said, but while Landru attracted women by his smart appearance and good manners and utilized their affection finally to murder them to obtain money. Grossman was an insignificant little man torn clothes, dirty beyond description. Forty-two witnesses who appeared revealed an as thing brutality of mind of the prisone. To the witnesses it seemed the most natural thing in the world to Grossmann to tie women to a bed and torture them. When asked why she consented to such treatment one witness answered: 'For money I'll do anything.

Grossman proceeded to relate with atmost calmness the details of his atrocious actions, which the pen hesitates to put on paper. He told how he carved to put on paper. He told how he carved the corpses of women according to rules learned as a batcher. On the Judge's table lay a piece of velvet once part of a mkirt of one of his victims. When asked what he wanted to do with it. Grossman replied calmly: "I said to myself just now. 'Look at that nice piece of velvet. It's a shame to throw it away, for it would do splendidly for a waisteoat, which I could wear as a souvenir of the girl."

"Was Let Loose on the Public" The trial did not lack exciting scenes. One witness threw her bunch of keys at Grossman and barely missed his attorney. Another flew at him in full rage because he said she and all the others lied. Grossman was fifty-six years old and had been in prison twenty-four times. The last time he was sentenced to fifthen years in jail for assault, and in the words of the prosecuting attorney. "was let loose on the public again in

He lured women to his house by offering coffee, bread and lard, all delicacies among this class of the population during the war. The fact that his deeds remained undiscovered was bedeeds remained undiscovered was because the girls were never missed. He dealt with the scum of the street from the darkest part of Berlin. His crimes never would have been discovered had not the last victim ground, so I ad the neighbors got suspicious and called police, who arrived too late to save the girl, but arrested the villain.

Personally Grossman was a quite congenial man. His last act was a letter of gratitude written to his attorney.

Navy Perfects Device for Sounding Depth of Ocean

Washington, July 6 .- Successful tests of a device for "sounding" the sea by sound without a ship slackening speed foreshadow a revolution of piloting and navigation. Theodore Roosevelt, Acting Secretary of the Navy, anounced vesterday.

The device, designed by Dr. Harvey C. Hayes, physician of the naval en-gineering experiment station at An-napolis, was tested at a recent cruise of the U. S. destroyer Stewart from Newport, R. I., to Gibraltar.

Accurate measurements of the depths of water, without "heaving the lead," are obtained by a machine, attached under water at the stern of the vessel, which sounds a high-pitched note that carries for miles. The echo is picked up by an ear-shaped instrument in the how, the death being measured by bow, the depth being measured by the time required for the return of the

Employers May Be Restrained From

Violating Agreements, Decree Holds Cleveland, July 6.—Employers may be enjoined from reducing wages in violation of union agreements, the Common Pleas Court of Cuyahoga County rules in a decision announced yesterday in a case involving about forty stationary fremen employed in Cleveland breweries.

The decision, it is believed, is the first of its import ever handed down in this country. It cites the decision of the country. It cites the decision of the New York Supreme Court last spring which enjoined the garment manufacturers from conspiring to violate an agreement with the union, but the Cleveland case now goes a step farther in actually forbidding individual manufacturers to reduce the pay of union
