Dora Gemmon, 2540 North Front

Dora Gemmon. 2540 North Front street, was drowned when a rowboat containing four persons was capsized by cross currents at the mouth of Wis-sinoming Creek in the Delaware River. Her brother William, who cannot swim, was saved by his companions, but Miss Gemmon did not come to the sur-face until after death. Her body was recovered by the crew of the police boat Ashbridge. At the Frankford Hospital a pulmotor was used for more than an hour in an effort to revive her. Her father, Thomas Gemmon, witnessed the capsizing of the boat from the shore. Roosevelt Jackson, fifteen years old, a Negro, was drowned at Callowhill street in the Schuylkill River.

You buy new cars: why not a new boiler?

VOU discard your old car, even though it still has several thousand miles of service in it; the upkeep is too high.

The upkeep on an old fashioned heating plantmeasured in coal consumption-is so much higher than the upkeep on an Ideal Boiler, that you will make money by taking the old plant out.
