

BOLSHEVIST PLOT SEEN IN ROBBERY

Papers Are Taken From Paris Offices of Russian Constituent Assembly

DOUBLE MURDER REVEALED

By Associated Press

Paris, July 11.—Many sensational stories are being printed in the Paris newspapers regarding the mysterious affair growing out of the burglary of papers from the headquarters here of the Russian Constituent Assembly. The police are continuing their investigation, but are most reticent.

According to Le Journal, a Bolshevik plot has been discovered, the investigation having shown that Bolshevik agents arrived in France lately with carefully defined missions, the most important of which was to turn the attention of two eminent French political figures, distinguished for their anti-Soviet sentiments.

The investigation has further shown, this authority adds, that the Soviet Government proposed to Germany a surprise attack on Poland. After Poland was crushed they were to turn their attention on France. The German monarchists, however, are declared to have demanded postponement of action, as the preparations were not complete.

Suspicion in connection with the appearance of the Constituent Assembly papers fell on Korotenko, a young Russian, who was employed as night watchman in the offices. He disappeared simultaneously with his friend, Kotelnikoff, who was secretary to Miss Maklakoff, sister of Basile Maklakoff, the Russian Ambassador. The men are suspected of being Bolshevik agents.

Papers found in the hotel where Zander, a young student, lived, are said to have revealed a double execution by Bolshevik spies.

The two victims, condemned by a secret court, were invited to visit the man who had been charged with their execution. They went without suspicion, and were given poison in a drink. They died after returning to their homes, their deaths being attributed to suicide until the documents revealed the secret.

Korotenko, who is believed to have fled to Berlin, was unable to take all the documents with him, as they weighed some 200 pounds, and some have been discovered in the establishment of a furrier, where Zander was employed. Zander is said to be a son of a former general under Baron Wrangel.

We believe the Gimbel Stores in Philadelphia, New York and Milwaukee, combined, are the largest retailers of furniture.

To have won this position in little more than twenty years (twelve years in New York) seems to conclusively prove that—

Gimbels Serve Best

—as the Gimbel Stores serve best in quite a good many lines.

There is a realness in Gimbel furniture that makes it endure and a goodness of style—a true sense to "periods"—that makes the users of the furniture glad to have it endure.

Just the great volume of our business is enough to make safe savings possible.

Sale of Women's Specialty Dresses at $23.75 —But Values Run Up to $59.50

Fifteen ultra styles—half of them sports models; half of them afternoon styles—the most telling collection of artistic dresses that any sale has yet produced, because they so adequately, correctly garb a woman for her summer life!

Four of the styles are "Ukrainian models"—the fashion-novelty of the summer.

Most of the Dresses are of wonderful-quality flat crepe—soft, silvery grays, white, or navy, with the Ukrainian colors in the embroidery. Or monotone-models—all-white or all-blue or all-black or all-color.

And three of the models are printed crepes—not the flimsy stuff you see about town, but "specialty-fine" quality, in the very loveliest "patterns."
