MRS. McCLORE MAY SUE EXECUTORS
Counsel Hints at Criminal Action Based on Alleged Entry and Kidnapping

POISON THEORY FLOUTED

Criminal proceedings are likely to grow out of the will contest being made in the Camden courts by Mrs. Thompson McClure, widow of the Philadelphia publisher, according to Thomas B. Hall, counsel for Mrs. McClure. He intimated this morning that two charges will be pressed against the administrators of the McClure estate—breaking and entering the McClure's Woodlynne home without the proper authority, and kidnapping. The latter charge is in relation to the spirited away of Mr. McClure to a Philadelphia hospital against the wishes of his wife. "I have the utmost confidence in our case," Mr. Hall said. "There is no question but that Mr. McClure was insane at the time he made the will in which Mrs. McClure is deprived of her just share of the estate."
Dr. Elmer Egan, of the Pennsylvania Hospital for Mental Diseases, testified that McClure was "in a confused state of mind" when he was admitted to the hospital in April. He was unable to transmit any business, the physician said, and had to be fastened to his bed at one time.
David McClure, brother of the dead man, denied previous testimony by the widow that he had gone to the McClure home at Woodlynne for charity. He said he worked for his brother and washed dishes, made fires and performed other services.
The witness continued that his brother suggested a trip to Atlantic City and that the late publisher remarked he wanted rest and quietness. He quoted his brother as saying he was being nagged constantly.

MIXED-UP ORDERS SEND FIREMEN ON WILD RUNS

Patrols and Engines Dart About City Trying to Find Flames

Two fire alarms, turned in almost simultaneously at 9:15 o'clock this morning, sent patrol wagons, fire patrols and engines dashing hither and yon until drivers almost lost their sense of direction. One alarm came from Fifty-second street and Lancaster avenue; the other from Thirtieth and Arch streets.
The police patrol from the Thirtieth street and Woodland avenue police station started for the fire at Fifty-second and Arch streets.
Insurance Patrol No. 1, at Tenth and Arch, drove to Fifty-second and Lancaster where, after receiving a telephone call, hurried back again to Thirtieth and Arch.
The patrol of the Thirtieth street and Lancaster avenue station took the longest course and went to the fire at Fifty-second and Lancaster. Fire engines hurried away amid shouts of conflicting orders, sections of the same companies going in different directions.
The fire at Lancaster avenue was in a gasoline pump, where for a time the lives of firemen and spectators were endangered by prospects of the explosion of the gasoline tank beneath the sidewalk. Firemen extinguished the blaze before it reached the tank.
The fire was started when small boys threw lighted matches in gasoline which had dripped into the street from the pump.
The fire at Thirtieth and Arch streets damaged the roof of the Vogt meat packing plant, said to have been ignited by sparks from a passing locomotive. The loss was about $200.

SLIP OF GIRL'S TONGUE POSTPONES HER WEDDING

Gives Age as 17 in Elkton and Is Denied License
Refused a marriage license in Elkton when by mistake she gave her age as seventeen, Miss Kathryn Madden, daughter of Dr. Thomas W. Madden, of Collingswood, N. J., went to Baltimore yesterday and obtained the necessary papers without delay.
A few minutes later she was the wife of Charles L. Hummel, twenty years old, the son of C. H. Hummel, president of the Poorless Kid Company, Camden. Both are active in the younger set and have a wide host of friends in Collingswood.
"It was in no sense an elopement," the bride's father said this morning. "The couple had been engaged for some time and simply took the notion to be married sooner than was anticipated."
The newweds returned to Collingswood this morning.
"Apparently she became nervous when she applied for the license in Elkton," Dr. Madden said, "and told the clerk she was seventeen. She is nineteen and, of course, of legal age."

LONG FOR SON, MISSING 32 YEARS, AT GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Jerden, 2025 E. Stella Street, Anxiously Await Word
About for thirty-two years from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Jerden, 2025 East Stella street, who will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary tomorrow, John Jerden, Jr., who has not been heard from since he left home, is anxiously expected by the aged couple to participate in the festivities that will be held at the home.
Jerden left his home in the spring of 1880 to find work in New York. Later his mother found that he left New York and was working in Richmond, Va. Jerden is of dark complexion and was about sixteen years old when he left. He was a deep scar on his right forehead as a result of being struck by the head by a horse when he was five years old.
Mr. and Mrs. Jerden are very anxious to see their long-missing son. The couple have thirty-four grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

FAIRVIEW CITIZENS ANGRY

Organize to Fight Violations of Building Restriction Code
Residents of Fairview, Camden, are indignant over the violation of the building restrictions, originally fixed by the Government when Fairview was a ship village.
Collings road, which was designed for a purely residential section, has been invaded by business places. To meet the situation, more than 100 residents last night held a meeting to organize a Civic Improvement Association, whose chief object will be the enforcement of the building restrictions. Permanent organization will be effected next Thursday evening.
The following temporary officers have been elected: F. O. Touzel, president; W. J. Dunn, secretary, and S. H. Weiss, treasurer.

RETURNS TO STAGE

Pauline Frederick Rehearsing "By Right of Conquest"
New York, July 14.—At last Miss Pauline Frederick is to come out of the shelter of the screen and return to the stage, toiling even during the hot weather. She is making good on her long heralded renascence in the theater by rehearsing "By Right of Conquest," a new drama in three acts by Michael Morton and Peter Traill.
Her appearance once more before the footlights after an absence of eight years will be under the direction of A. H. Woods. Her last performance in the spoken drama took place in 1914, when she appeared in "Innocent" at the Eltinge Theatre, also under the Woods management.

OPERA CONDUCTOR MISSING

Joseph A. Tressi Disappeared Week Ago From Minneapolis
Minneapolis, July 14.—(By A. P.)—Search was being made today for Joseph Andre Tressi, grand opera conductor, who had disappeared a week ago. He had been directing rehearsals for the local municipal summer opera season.
It was at first believed Mr. Tressi had left Minneapolis for a brief visit, but when he failed to return his friends became alarmed.

RIFLES FOR RUM RUNNERS

Enforcers Armed on Highways After Battle With Gang
Prohibition agents armed with rifles are patrolling the Lincoln Highway through this city after being fired upon by men alleged to have been engaged in the illegal transportation of liquor from this city to New York.
Orders that prohibition agents carry rifles while patrolling the highways were issued last night by John T. Davis, State prohibition director, after Lieutenant John E. Wright, head of the hold forces in this State, and G. Davidson, group head in charge of the local enforcement office, were fired upon by rum-runners, who escaped.
Six army rifles, with 250 rounds each of ammunition, were obtained by Director Davis yesterday from the authorities at the navy yard.

HOLD BOY FOR INJURY

Hits Another Lad on Head With Stick—Fractures Skull
George Pettit, seven years old, of Oakford street near Twenty-eighth, was injured while playing on the Hillmore and Ohio Railroad tracks near Peliz street and the Schuylkill River, when he was struck on the head with a stick by Stanley Groski, nineteen years old, East street near Thirty-sixth, according to police.
The boy is in the Polyclinic Hospital with a fractured skull. Groski was arrested.
