

JUST GOSSIP ABOUT PEOPLE

Nancy Wynne Talks of Present Fad of Wearing Ribbon Bandeaux Instead of Hats by Younger Set. Activities on New England Coast

ABSOLUTELY the latest thing for the debutante-to-be is not to wear a hat in the country. No, you wear a bandeau now across your forehead, and fasten it over your left ear with a rosette of the ribbon. Is it not wonderful what fads will do?

Suppose some four or five years ago "mother" had suggested that her daughter wear a band of ribbon in her hair and a rosette or bow at the side. Can you hear the uproar? Why, only habes wear hair ribbons! But now it's the thing. Why all the girls are wearing their hair that way, and, fortunately, it's becoming, for becoming or not, so long as "it's being done," done it will be.

I saw about eight of the younger girls sitting in a row at one of the out-of-door parties lately all decorated across the forehead and hair with ribbons and rosettes to match their sweaters or belts.

The bandeau part is arranged much on the style of a gypsy headdress, but for the fact that the entire head is not covered, only the upper forehead and part of the hair. I often wonder who starts these fashions. Of course, the bandeau has been worn off and on of late with evening frocks. I remember as many entries to the Newport and the Long Beach as to the Newport and the Long Beach as to the Newport and the Long Beach.

I HEAR the horse show in Newport is to be held the last week in August, and that it is to be larger than usual, for never before have there been so many entries. There is, and plenty of it, of course, be one of the judges, and so will R. Penn Smith. The Penn Smiths are at Narragansett Pier for the summer.

A great many Philadelphians prefer the Pier to the Port, and, personally, I do not blame them. You get so little oceanfront in Newport if you do not happen to own one of the show places, and, after all, it is nice to get away from entertaining and gaily once in a while and be able to watch the sea. Not that there is anything entertaining at Narragansett. There is, and plenty of it. It's quite as gay as Newport; but, too, you can get away off on the rocks and leave the gawds behind, while you gaze into the natural aquariums formed in the great rocks and watch the mighty waves dash up high from the sea and the bay.

Out at Point Judith, where the clubhouse is, it's particularly wonderful, for it's one of the roughest points on the coast. I always love to motor out that way and never tire of the waves. And another wonderful place is Beavertail Lighthouse at the end of Jamestown. You remember Jamestown is on Conanicut Island, in the center of Narragansett Bay, between Newport and Narragansett, and it's just marvelous to see the waves at the foot of the rocks of Beavertail.

Jamestown is crowded with Philadelphians this year as usual. I hear the Bertie Lippincott went up there last week to stay with Elsie's father and mother, Dr. and Mrs. Barton Hirst, and later to visit Bertie's father and mother, the J. Barton Lippincotts, who have a cottage high up on the rocks there. Helen Ellison is in Jamestown, and the George Rowlands and Arthur Baugh both have large cottages there. The Lovings, who have a cottage there and ever so many others.

JANE is very independent. She likes to stand on her own feet, as it were, and objects very much to having her hand taken when walking. The other day mother brought her in town for a little shopping, and as the streets were new and strange to Jane, her hand had to be held most of the time. When they reached the country once more and started up the road to their

To Free Your Arms of Hair or Fuzz

(Boudoir Secrets)

No toilet table is complete without a small package of delatone, for with it hair or fuzz can be quickly banished from the skin. To remove hairs you merely mix into a paste enough of the powder and water to cover the objectionable hairs. This should be left on the skin about two minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed, when it will be found free from hair or bluish. Be sure you get genuine delatone.—Adv.
