One of the police theories of young Lawrence's death was that of robbery. Not satisfied by the police supposition, the senior Lawrence sought diligently for his son's personal effects.

The finding of the boy's belongings strengthens the theory that he was murdered by some one whose enmity he incurred while trapping.

Two Philadelphia boys who lost their lives in the World War are among the list of fifty-seven American heroes whose memory will be honored by the erection of a memorial garden in Verdun.

dun.

Upon the fringe of this historic city the garden will in the near future be dedicated to the history of the Lafayaite Escadrille.

The two boys from this city who as members of that famous ging squadron paid the supreme sacrifice were Henry H. Houston Weedward, son of Senator and Mrs. George Woodward, of Germantown, and Julian C. Biddle, son of Mrs. Arthur Biddle, of Ambler.

Lieutenant Woodward was killed during a scouting expedition over German territory. His fate was in doubt for many weeks until Franklin S. Edmonds, a Philadelphia attorner, who was a Y. M. C. A. worker during the war, found both Lieutenant Woodward's wrecked machine and his grave.

Nineteen days after he had joined the lines.

Within the boundaries of the memorial garden will be laid, their parents consenting, the bodies of these fifty-seven members of the Escadrille. The task of establishing the memorial garden has been undertaken by the surviving members of the organization and their friends with the help of relatives of the men who fell and the full cooperation of the French Government.

Actual construction work is now under way under the supervision of Alexander Marcel, France's chief architect, who was directed by his Governtect, who was directed by his Govern-ment to proceed with the work. The project will cost $50,000, which has been subscribed.

MAN ENDS LIFE WITH GAS; WIDOW LOSES INSURANCE

MEDIER STREET ADDITION OF THE STREET

Note Left for Boarder Reveals Sulcide in a Bathtub Fred Baumeister, 2765 North Bonsall street, last week evolved a plan to commit suicide without depriving his widow of his insurance. Yesterday he was found dead in the bathroom of his home by William Loescher, a roomer.

Loescher found this note on a table:

"Bill:

"Don't light any matches. Don't take matches for your pipe to the bathroom or you will blow up. Take off the hose and they will think I drowned."

Loescher ran up the stairs, opened the bathroom door and found the body. After informing the police Loescher finished reading the note. It said:
"Now listen, Bill, don't go out and tell the neighbors. Open the bathroom first and take the hose off so they won't know what happened. Send a telegram to my wife, but don't tell her what happened. Do as I tell you, because she might not get the insurance if I-commit suicide. Keep this to yourself."

Mrs. Baumeister was with her sister, Mrs. Anna Stewart, who is spending the summer at 830 Charles place, Ocean City. Baumeister was forty-seven years old and a barber.
