

WHITNEY SUITS TO BE RUSHED

Many of "400" Expected to Be Dragged Into Legal Battle Over Child

MISS FONTAINE CONFIDENT

New York, July 27.—The suits to establish the paternity of her child and her right to the enjoyment of a fraction of the Whitney millions will be brought against Cornelius Vanderbilt (Sonny) Whitney by Evan Burrow Fontaine immediately. This decision was made yesterday following a protracted telephone conversation with Evan in Los Angeles by Charles Firestone, her attorney. Within a short period, therefore, New York will witness a parade of such witnesses as have not been seen in a courtroom since Harry K. Thaw dragged with him into disastrous prominence half the social register.

Any who attended the famous ball given by Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt in March, 1910, at the Ritz Hotel may be properly summoned to relate the circumstances under which "Sonny" and Evan first met. According to Firestone, one fascinating legal problem involved is the determination of exactly what Evan misdeed when fate and two stern parents decided that she could not be boosted by marriage into the pedigreed classes.

And he intends to solve by summoning impartially a crowd of high-living bachelors and benefactors of the town and another crowd of girls of the theatre to whom the bachelors and benefactors have extended the courtesies of their jabs and their bankrolls, but always with the left hand. Evan will tell of the yacht and the bankrolls she met in the company of "Sonny" and Firestone will ask the owners: "Why can't the kind of man you are marry the kind of girl the plaintiff is?"

Firestone is confident that young Whitney will be best witness. "He is a gentleman and will not lie," he said. "Though he once faced Miss Fontaine with the statement that he believed that the child was not his, I do not think that he will stick to the denial of paternity under cross-examination. When he goes on the stand the Whitney defense will collapse."

The suits will be one for affiliation and one for breach of promise fought in the order named. Suit for affiliation is a legal rarity. Its object is proof that an illegitimate child has no certainty of care and support and further proof that the defendant should be made its legal provider. As it involves the most question of Baby Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney's paternity, it will be the most bitterly contested of the two. Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney's ultimatum to her husband and son has been that she will not stand for any settlement which gives the baby the legal right to the portentous name it carries.
