Nancy Wynne Talks of the Debut of Miss Margaret Newlin and Miss Elizabeth Siter—The John McFaddens Have Returned From Wedding Trip

WONDER just how many girls are coming out next season? Every other day or so I hear of another, till I believe there will be at least a hundred. Margaret Newlin is one of the latest. I had not realized she was to debut as a debutante. It seems enough to the other day I heard of her birth, and now she is to "come out."

Margaret is the third daughter of the Richard Newlins, who live in Whitford. Her sister Edith married Maxford Hobbs, of Boston, nearly two years ago. She was one of the first girls of her year to be engaged. Her elder sister, Alice, graduated from college a year ago, but I am not certain. And you remember her brother, Jack Newlin, who went over to France before our entry into the war and was killed while driving ambulances. A younger brother, Dick, graduated from Princeton this year.

The Newlins have a beautiful place called Indian Run Farm at Whitford, which is on the Mt. Airy road beyond Philadelphia. Margaret will be introduced as well as Elizabeth Siter, Mrs. Hollingsworth Siter's daughter, who is a cousin, though the relationship is not very close. They are related through the Harrison family. Mrs. Newlin, who was Miss Edith Eisenberg, is related to the Harrisons through her mother's side. Mrs. Siter was Miss Barry, a sister of Eben Barr, and if I am not mistaken her mother was a Harrison, also. Maude Harrison, who is coming out, too, next winter, is another cousin.

I remember when Edith Newlin came out it was ten together with Sarah Harrison, now Mrs. Phil Price, and it was given by their cousin, Mrs. William A. Lieber, who was also connected through the Harrisons.

And it is that Harrison family which gave its name to the row of houses on Locust street from Eighteenth to Seventeenth street, headed by the Harrison house itself, now the headquarters of the Philadelphia Aid and Comfort Society. The tea for Margaret and Elizabeth is to be given on November 21, but I have not heard where it will be, though probably in town, as the trip to Whitford is too long.

I HEAR the Jack McFaddens have returned from their honeymoon, and Mrs. McFadden's parents, the Duncan Rimmer Ellsworths, are planning a dinner in their honor at Southampton next Saturday night. They have apartments at 2123 Spruce street, but have not moved into them, as they will spend most of the remaining summer days in Southampton and the Ellsworths.

I understand there are a number of entertainments on foot for next winter in their honor. Mrs. McFadden is certainly a beauty and will be an addition to our already exceptional number of home-bred winners. You know I always maintain Philadelphia has some of the most beautiful women in the country (or world for that matter). Best looks, they give such an air and so much style. Nothing like being pleased with our own femininity, but when a great truth is evident, why not be the first to acknowledge it?

I WAS glad to hear that Marie Louise I Munn had found her bracelet again. Goodness, but it must be a shock to lose such a valuable thing! I have not been able to make out whether it was a bracelet or brooch. However, whatever it was, it was a "Oh, Mother," she called, "it's going to rain again." "Why, darling, I do not think so," responded Mother, "the sky is clear and the air is light." "Yes, Mother," said Edith, "but a mill was blown just went by with its rain coat on."
