YANKS AND GIANTS IN LEAD, AFTER CRUCIAL SERIES WITH ST. LOUIS

Three Out of Four for Huggins and Four Out of Five for McGraw Changes Complexion of Race—Athletics Continue Great Batting Streak as Phils Lose

THE crucial series between New York and St. Louis in the National and American Leagues is over and the Gothamites hold the ace. The Giants start a series this afternoon with the Pirates, three full games ahead. The Yanks swing over from the Mount City to Chicago, a half game in the lead. The series was a great success from the New York angle. The Yanks, after losing the first game to Shocker by the shutout route, turned the tables completely and captured all three of the remaining contests. The Giants started out like whirlwinds and continued the same until the second game of a double-header, the last of the series, which the Cards won. Four out of five games were placed on the right side of the ledger by John McGraw's hitlings.

A summary of the nine games played by the four teams proves the contention made previous to the series that the veteran pitchers on the staffs of the two New York clubs would turn the tide of victory. The Giants in four games slugged all kinds of Cardinal pitching for thirty-nine runs, while the Ricketys were making twenty-eight of the New York veterans.

The same story holds for the series between the Yanks and the Browns. After Shocker's great victory in the opening game the remaining members of the Phils' staff blew up completely, with the result that Babe Ruth and his pals counted twenty-four runs to fourteen. The veterans on the Yank pay sheet hurled better ball after the first game than any of the members of the Browns.

Four out of five in the series just closed failed to give the Giants the verdict over the Cards in the games played to date. In the first the teams split in four games, the Cards took both games of the second series and three out of four of the third. Including the series just closed the Giants have won seven of the fifteen games played.

The Yanks have had a greater degree of success against the Browns than their fellow townsmen against the Cards. Babe Ruth and his prima donna assistants have scored nine wins out of fifteen games played. The first series of the season was two and two, the second the same, the third two out of three for the Yanks and the recent one three out of four.

YESTERDAY'S defeat pushed the Browns out of the lead for the first time since June 16. Since that time the St. Louisians kept a comfortable margin away from the Yanks. The Cards, on the other hand, enjoyed the prosperity of first place only for a day in the last eight weeks of the campaign. When they started the series with the Giants they were one point back of the top rung of the ladder.

Ken Williams and Hornsby Hit Home
KEN WILLIAMS started the Browns off right in the first round by making his twenty-third home run of the season with George Sisler on the base paths. This brings the Browns' slugger, who led in home runs most of the season, to within one of Clarence Tiller Walker, our home-bred professional. Hornsby, who hurled a brilliant game here against the Athletics, was belted hard and often in the first and second rounds by the Yanks, forcing him to seek the solace of the showers. In all, five runs were made off his delivery. Bayne, who succeeded the American League pitching leader, twirled good ball, allowing but four hits in seven frames.

After the opening canto Sam Jones, who has been winning games every now and then, mostly then, showed the kind of form that made the Yankees desire him last year. Six runs were made off his delivery after the first inning and only one run. The slugging Browns proved helpless as the innings went on, particularly with men on bases.

Whitely Witt, the former Mackman, whose eagle eye detected something wrong with the ball Danforth was pitching on Thursday, should be given the hero label. He hit a home run in the second with two men on bases that gave the Yanks a trio of runs that helped considerably.

Joe Dugan went hitless and made his first error since joining the Yanks, which gave the big crowd of St. Louis fans much to gloat over. Josephus has been the butt of many unkind remarks out in the Mount City because his boss decided to sell him to the team he has always wanted to play with. Babe Ruth was impotent so far as home runs were concerned, but he made the only two-base blow of the game.

Rogers Hornsby hit his twenty-seventh home run of the season in the first game, but it proved insufficient to give his mates the verdict. The circuit swat ties the old major league record for home runs, made by William back in 1888. John Elder, president of the National League, and Commissioner Landis witnessed the twin bill.

JESS HAINES hurled a brilliant game in the second contest, while Doak and Stuart were hit hard in the first. Haines had a narrow escape. Up to the ninth he had the Giants whitewashed. Two were down when the New Yorkers staged a batting rally that netted three runs, one less than enough to tie.

Three Out of Five for Macken
WHILE the New York teams were giving solace to their army of followers the Athletics were fanning the flame of hope of local fandom by winning their third game of the series from St. Speaker's Indians.

PUSEY IN FINAL OF ST. MARTIN'S GOLF

Defeats O'Hanlon, 4 and 3, in Tourney on Philadelphia Cricket Club Links

H. C. Pusey, Sprinze Haven, continued his sensational play in the golf tournament at the Philadelphia Cricket Club for the St. Martin's Golf Club for the St. Martin's Golf Club, when he eliminated Eddie O'Hanlon, White Marsh, in the semi-final round, 4 and 3.

Pusey is a youngster who has made great strides recently. He played consistent golf today, going out in 42 and returning in 30 for an 81.

His card follows:
Holes 18
In 42
Out 30
Total 72
Par 72
Score 81

The other semi-final match was played between L. L. Vennel, of Tavistock, and C. H. Doelp, of Philadelphia. The winner will meet Pusey this afternoon.

Uppers were the usual order of business yesterday. Norman H. Maxwell, of White Marsh Valley, finished the day with a big surprise. Even though the little Chestnut Hill star is notoriously unable to stand up under the grind of thirty-six holes in a day over such terrain as Newton and Maxwell is further that any cooler might be proud to wear in his cap. It makes Vennel something of a favorite to have his name inscribed on the St. Martin's Cup for the season of 1922.

Maxwell Beaten
In the morning Norman defeated John King, of North Hills, with a fair amount of ease. He has played the Cricket Club course so often that it was expected that though it might slip a bit from its initial form he would be good enough to come through with a victory over Vennel. But he did not do it.

Vennel's morning task was the difficult one of erasing Herb Newton, another White Marsh crack, which he did to the tune of 4 and 3. Two victories in a day over such terrain as Newton and Maxwell is further that any cooler might be proud to wear in his cap. It makes Vennel something of a favorite to have his name inscribed on the St. Martin's Cup for the season of 1922.

Doelp Survives
A surprise second only to Maxwell's crushing defeat was the victory of C. H. Doelp over William McIntyre, Jr., of Sprinze Haven, who had the second low medal in the qualifying round on Tuesday. The burly Lu Temple champion had eased himself into a favorable position by defeating P. J. De Long in the A. M. round, 4 up and 3 to play. In the afternoon he carried McIntyre all square to the eighth hole, where he won by a margin of one stroke.

John Arthur Brown, the club champion, who holds the record for the Club, withdrew from the tournament. He was rated with Maxwell as one of the favorites, and his withdrawal added the little touch to the uncertainty of the situation. The winners of the tournament sympathize for the long-shot in a tournament, and with four long-shots entering the semifinal round that sympathy might be neatly well distributed.

The Committee's Work
In all the matches and tournaments that are staged here, the committee is always a match on the brows of the players. There are few who recognize the fact that the committee in charge of the tournament should be handled them—and should be. All arrangements for the comfort of the competing players are arranged in the most thorough and smooth style; all the minor details that are noticed only when they are lacking are handled by the indefatigable men of the committee. Yet no one rushes to congratulate them. They are taken more or less for granted; not only by the club members, who have become used to seeing them work, but by the players themselves.

It seems about time that the hard-working committee men whose efforts have made golf so successful in Philadelphia should be recognized. For instance, at the Philadelphia Cricket Club, Colonel Kurtz, who has had the handling of this tournament of the St. Martin's Cup, the Man Friday of the club. Whenever it comes to handling a golf or tennis tournament the colonel is on the job, working to make it a success.

At the breakfast table he asked his neighbor alongside of him: "Well, what do you think about the match?" "Just as I expected," was the quick answer. "Was just reading about it in the club paper. The news was relayed by radio last night. Leonard won."

"Quit your kidding," answered Leonard, "I'm actually grabbing for the paper. And Leon read the report of the contest."

"Can you beat it?" asked the Philadelphia promoter here today. "After I get to the trouble to make my trip for the main purpose of seeing the big battle, I get back the morning after, just in time to be too late."

"Oh, well," added Leon, consulting himself. "I'm back in plenty of time to see their return go, anyway."

THAT SUPREME MOMENT

TY COBB INCREASES HITTING ADVANTAGE

Leads Sisler by Eighteen Points—Tigers First in Team Batting

The veteran Ty Cobb, Tiger pilot, is out in front of all American League contenders for 1922 hitting honors. Ty is showing his men how to hit, and this has carried him past George Sisler, St. Louis star, for the batting honors, which he lost to Speaker and Sisler in the last two seasons.

Cobb, in his last six games, cracked out thirteen hits, better than two a game, and boosted his mark from 406 a week ago to 418, while Sisler, who topped the batters with 418 a week ago, dropped to 402. Cobb, who has won 100 hits in 100 games, is showing his averages include games of Wednesday.

The Georgia peach has instilled a fighting spirit into the Tigers, with the result that they are topping all the clubs in team batting with a mark of .307, while the St. Louis Browns are next with .301.

Sisler continues to lead in total bases with 225, his 155 hits including twenty-seven doubles, eleven triples and seven homers. He failed to increase his stolen base record, but is showing the way with thirteen in 100 games.

Clayton "Tiller" Walker, the slugging outfielder of the Athletics, bagged another homer and is leading the circuit clouters with twenty-four. Ken Williams of the Browns, being the runner-up with twenty-three, with Babe Ruth tagging along with seventeen.

Other leading batters for sixty or more games: Schanz, New York, .357; Speaker, Cleveland, .356; Hillmann, Detroit, .348; Tobin, St. Louis, .347; Haasler, Detroit, .347; Ed Miller, Philadelphia, .347; Mousal, New York, .346; Blue, Detroit, .333; Witt, New York, .333.

There was practically no change in the relative standing of the batters in the National League. Rogers Hornsby, of the Cardinals, who has been setting the pace, added one point to his mark of a week ago, and tops the list with an average of .308.

Ray Grimes, the slugging first baseman of the Chicago Cubs, maintained his mark of a week ago, .303, and moved up to second place, displacing the veteran Jack Dauterive, of the Reds, who dropped eleven points but is holding third place with an average of .300.

Hornsby bagged two more homers and is leading all major leaguers with twenty-seven. He also crossed the plate five times in his last six games, and has taken the lead from Max Carey, of the Cardinals, as the best runner. The St. Louis star crossed the plate eighty times, while Carey scored seventy-nine runs. Carey, however, increased his lead for the stolen base honors by three, bringing his total to twenty-seven.

Other leading batters for fifty or more games: Hollocher, Chicago, .353; J. Johnston, Brooklyn, .357; Bigbee, Pittsburgh, .354; Duncan, Cincinnati, .347; L. Miller, Chicago, .340; Schultz, St. Louis, .341; Carey, Pittsburgh, .338.

HODGE QUALIFIES FOR NET CLASSIC

Becomes Eligible for National Junior Tourney by Winning Phila. Center Competition

Hanson Hodge has won the right to play in the national junior lawn tennis championships at the Longwood Club, Brookline, Mass., next month. Hodge had his name inscribed on the list of eligibles after winning the Philadelphia center tourney at the Cynwyd Club yesterday.

The center tournament was what might be called a "house" affair. A flock of youthful net stars were on the entry list, but almost all defaulted. As a consequence only four players were on hand for the tourney.

Despite the fact he played in only two matches, Hodge was forced to play the best he knew how before he won the right to enter the junior classic.

In his first match Hodge was paired with Al Maguire, Jr. Maguire played a wonderful brand of tennis and had Hodge in danger at all times. The score, 6-4, 6-1, falls to show the closeness of the match. Hodge then was paired against William H. Kraft, Jr., who previously had defeated J. N. Purviance, Jr.

Kraft played brilliantly throughout and forced Hodge to play five sets before winning. The Lower Merion youth did not weaken until after he had won the first two out of three games in the fifth set and then Hodge ran out.

Although he lost, Kraft is eligible to play in the tournament at Longwood. He holds the junior championship of New Jersey State, which he won recently at Beach Haven, so he already has qualified for the tourney.

Earl Bartlett, Neil Sullivan and Jack Brammal are other star Philadelphia players who will compete at Longwood. The Pennsylvania State junior qualified by winning other tournaments.

This quintet will give Philadelphia a wonderful chance to bring back the national crown. All the youths are of the highest caliber and each knows the court game thoroughly.

There is one southpaw in the group. He is none other than Earl Bartlett, who won the Pennsylvania State junior singles title, and who, paired with Thomas McGillin, also copped the doubles crown. Earl, at the top of his game, is almost unbeatable, and in a hardy forward smash, and is being depended on heavily by this city.

Then there is Neil Sullivan, the Germantown Academy star. Sullivan always puts up a stiff battle, and in a hard play to strokes. He has a varied assortment of strokes, and is steady.

Brammal is Star
Jack Brammal is not so steady as Sullivan, but can play the game. He is a crack at the net, and has a great forehand. His play on the baseline also is par excellence.

How Does It Strike You?

Rickard, the Promoter
Revival of Racing
Fairness of Fans

ONCE again the cap of the sportsman is raised in respect to the executive ability of Tex Rickard. It's one thing to bring two boxers, who have wrangled for years over terms and conditions, to an agreement and so protect that agreement that nothing interferes with the ultimate staging of the contest. It's quite another thing to please not only the boxers, but the fans, the press and all those connected with and interested in the bout. And that is just what Tex Rickard did. The handling of the crowd was masterful and it must be remembered that 60,000 persons, more than the total population of a city like Wilmington, Del., were within Boyle's Thirty Acres. The policing was so thoroughly efficient that every one was guided to his right seat without confusion, delirious haste or jostling. Here's another point: The police were polite. They hearkened to questions and gave exact directions courteously. Jersey City, the butt-end of New York's slapstick comedy, can teach the great metropolis something about policing.

AND Tex Rickard could qualify as head master in the school of promotion.

Revival of Racing in Chicago Assured
Revering with it the revival of the American Derby, to have a value, according to the promoters, of $100,000. But this, which means the business men of Chicago, is squarely behind the racing movement, sponsored by the Illinois Jockey Club.

When racing was in its glory in Chicago, and the American Derby was easily the leading turf event in the United States, the business men helped put down the sport, aided by the baseball interests of the Windy City. Professional baseball conceived the idea that racing was detrimental to the diamond game, detracting from the attendance at the ball parks when the dates were in conflict. So the feet of the turf crashed the sport.

Chicago has seen the great carnival event of the spring fade and disappear. No more the ante-Deby day fashion show on Michigan Boulevard, rivaling that of Longchamps or Ascot, the color and gayety gone, the annual festival occasion dimmed. But Chicago cannot hope to regain its place in a season which it voluntarily let go. The mere fact of offering $100,000 Derby prize will not immediately restore to the turf the great American Derby.

The historic Kentucky Derby has supplanted the American Derby as the early big trial for three-year-olds, with a value of more than $60,000, and the Preakness in Maryland has become the other great prize for three-year-olds, worth in excess of $50,000. It is needless to say that the Kentucky Jockey Club is prepared and able to match any purse offered in the world as a Derby prize.

But this does not prevent Chicago from gaining a prominent place in the turf upon the renewal of racing. The public has been clamoring for its revival. The Illinois Jockey Club, which already has leased on the old Hawthorne track, proposes to build a concrete grandstand to accommodate 50,000. A mile and a half track is proposed. One thousand Chicago business men have raised millions to make racing go there. The racing plant is to include a stadium for football to accommodate 100,000.

THE legal end of the sport is being handled by a committee of lawyers, and there is little doubt felt that there will be no difficulty on that score. The only handicap is the lack of a pari-mutuel law under State control. The prospects for revival of racing in St. Louis and San Francisco also are said to be bright.

St. Louis Fans All Hit Up
THE St. Louis fans were all hit up over the series between the Browns and the Yankees in the Missouri city. The Yankees in the Missouri city. The Yankees in the Missouri city.

UNDERNEATH the outward indignation is the American spirit which loves a successful athlete. Unusual feats performed by the unpopular Dugan or the fan-ridden Ruth were applauded as heartily as if they had been accomplished by members of the Browns.
