Nancy Wynne Sees Many New Frocks With Really Long Skirts—She Chats About the Debut of Miss Frances Bicknell, of Chestnut Hill

HAVE you seen them? The long dresses, I mean. They really are long, not six or eight inches above the ground, but down to the ankle or perhaps a half-inch above that. And they are being worn more and more. Yesterday I met Mrs. William C. Rhoads, who returned from Paris a few weeks ago, and she was wearing a long black frock of crepe de chine. The skirt was narrow and the girle wide, but somehow the frock was extremely chic.

Mrs. Rhoads, who, you remember, was Nora Ward, and is a sister of Frank Ward of this city, came up from Cape May, where she and her daughter have been since they came back from Europe. She was in the motor with Mr. Rhoads, and they were on their way to their house at 2223 Locust street, which they rented last year to Harry Platt and their darling, the white Scotty. Have you ever seen him? He plays with feather dusters and everything.

Mrs. Rhoads' hat was very smart. It was a rather high-rolled turban of straw, and had a long paradise at the side. I have seldom seen her look so well.

Miss Frances Bicknell, of Chestnut Hill, will give a fancy dance on Friday, December 8, at the Bellevue-Stratford in honor of their niece, Margaretta, of the Fox Boy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Boyle, of Keswick House, Rydal, who will make her debut at a tea to be given by her parents on Thursday, November 16. Mr. and Mrs. Boyle and Miss Boyle, who have been spending several days at Cape May as the guests of Mr. George G. Meade Large, have returned to their home.

Mr. C. Morris Wood, of Green Hill Farm, a two-block, will give a fancy dance on Tuesday, October 31, in honor of Miss Sarah Franklin Duane, daughter of Harry Platt and their darling, the white Scotty. Have you ever seen him? He plays with feather dusters and everything.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Riker, of this city and New York, entertained at dinner this evening at Miramar, their villa at Newport, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Pratt, of New York and the Brads, Glen Cove, L. I. There will be forty guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Stroud, of this city, arrived yesterday at the Hill Top Inn, Newport, R. I.

Uncommon Sense : The Man Who Wears Out

A BRILLIANT British editor wore himself into a serious illness at sixty. He was asked to hard. He men always at work. He never rested. He wore himself out.

It was not work, it was worry which broke down this man's health. He possessed of an enormous ambition. He possessed of the affairs of the British Empire. When he found this impossible, he became embittered with disappointment. He fretted and worried, and at last his health broke down.

IN THE United States are a number of men, including John D. Rockefeller and Thomas A. Edison, who have reached a very great age, despite the fact that all their lives they worked as hard as did this British editor.

Mr. Edison is still at his desk. Mr. Rockefeller has retired from active participation in the great industry he created, but he still works harder at his business than does the average business man at his job.

It is hard work could wear men out Edison and Rockefeller would long ago have had the world gone by them. They never suffered breakdowns because they never occurred to them that gigantic tasks they performed were work in the sense of being something laborious.
