Giants Secure Hugh McQuillan, of Braves, for Fred Toney and Two Rookies, Benton and Houlihan

LATEST TRADE MAKES CHARLEY DOELD IS GIANTS STRONG FOR DASH DOWN STRETCH

Hugh McQuillan, Star of Braves' Staff, Should Prove Winner With Champions-Fred Toney on Down Grade—Both New York Teams Lose Ground

NEW YORK and Boston, the only trading marts in major league baseball worth while, turned in another swap that should be of great benefit to the Giants in their quest for another National League pennant. All they did was to trade a pitcher who has reached the apex of his career and is sliding down, a pair of youngsters untried in the majors, for the best hurler on the Boston Braves. Fred Toney has been nitching for fourteen years. Benton had a brief trial with the Giants and has been summering at Memphis. Ike Houliban, the third pitcher thrown in for good measure, is a prospect who toiled for Middleburg College last spring.

For this trio, McGraw, always shrewd in trading, secures Hugh McQuillan, the star of the Boston Braves harling staff, and one of the most promising pitchers in the National League. According to reports, and they are said to have been verified by George Washington Grant, the owner of the Braves. money amounting to six figures also figured in the transaction.

What a how! will go up from the fans in St. Louis after this tere! trade. The Dugan affair was bad enough, but this should provoke a lot more eriticism for many reasons from this far East. McQuillan is only twenty four years old, and according to the life of a pitcher has at least six or seven more years to turn in for his new owners. In addition he is said to be possessed of one of the best curve balls in the National League, and to be an exceptional fielder, McQuillan's record this season isn't the kind the average fan would gloat over, but there is something significant in the trade, or McGraw would not be taking chances and parting with all kinds of money. To date, McQuillan is credited with five victories and nine defeats.

However, he is hurling for a last place team, several notches worse than the Phillies, which has something to do with his apparently impoverished average. Another reason for Medican's action may be due to the fact that McQuillan is a sort of Glant killer. In the eight games he has burled against the world's champions in three years he has been returned the victor six times

MeQUILLAN is a Xea York hop, and started his professional races with Toronto, of the International League, in 1916. After losing eight straight games, he was sent to Bridgeport, where he toiled part of the season. The next year found him with Worcester. In 1918. he was acquired by the Braves, and has been with them ever since. In 1920 he won eleven and lost ritteen, and during 1921, thirteen and

Toney One of Real Veterans of Game

TARED TONEY is one of the real veterans of the game. His professional debut was made in 1908, with the Winchester Club, of the Blue Grass In 1911 he was given a chance with the Cubs, remaining in the Windy City until 1912, when he was shipped to Louisville.

He returned to Chicago in 1913, only to be sent back again, this time for two years. In 1915, Brooklyn gave the big fellow a chance, but he was traded to Cincinnati during the season. He remained in Redland until 1915. when he was sold, on July 25, to the Giants. Toney was the star of the Gothamites, in 1920. He won twenty games and lost but eleven in a heated campaign. Last year he was instrumented in giving the Giants the championship with eighteen victories and eleven reverses. His work in the World's Series wasn't up to the standard expected of him. During the spring he was late in reporting because of injuries and a desire for more money. During the senson rumors have been current in baseball circles that the big fellow would be sold or traded. At one time. shortly after the opening of the campaign, McGraw aunounced that Toney and a couple of other Giants pinyers would go to the highest bidders. The offers were evidently withdrawn, for nothing more was said until the trade news yesterday. Toney is one of the biggest players in baseball. He stands 6 feet 1 inch and weighs close to 200 pounds. He is thirty-three years old, and has pitched in but ten games this year, after a late start. winning five and losing the same number.

With McQuillan on the team, ready to hurl every third or fourth day, and backed up by such a slugging combination as the Giants, McGraw will be greatly strengthened for the drive down the stretch. Toney has been also to work only infrequently, which has added a big burden to the shoulders of Art Nehf. Jess Barnes, and Phil Donglas, and has forced McGraw to use a youngster, Ryan, more frequently than is usual.

CONNIE MACK stacted his trading entirely too easily when he broke up his world's champions. Based on the figures being received today. Mack would be richer by several millions. On past preform auces, Bush and Shawkey are calinitely more caluable than McQuillan. though the last named has many more years to harl than the former

Pirates Again Humble Giants

GIANT fans will welcome McQuillan after the second straight settings at the hands of the Pirates. Phil Douglas, another veteran, proved easy for the Buccaneers before a big Sunday crowd and the Giants lost a full game in the race, the Cards handing the Dodgers a hairline reverse.

Jess Barnes, who hurled the only tramph over the Giants, was in tare form, holding the Brooklyn team scoreless until the ninth, when a home run by High, with a man on base, gave the home club a pair of run-,

While the Giants were losing and the Cards gaining, the same situation existed in the American, where the Browns handed the Red Sox a job and the Yanks were tripped by the White Sox.

MAXWELL SHOOTS A RECORD

Charley Doelp, the burly golf champion of Lu Lu Temple, won the St. Martin's Cup at the Philadelphia Cricker Club. To come through with a victory "Smilln' Charley" had to whip two youngsters who were looked upon as having more than an even chance to beat him.

In the morning he showed his heets to L. L. Vennel, of Tavistock, 3 up and 2 to play, and in the afternoon gave H. C. Pusey, the youthful wisard from Spring Haven, an even worse trimming to the tune of 5 and 4.

The St. Martins Cup tournament is a classic at the Cricket Club, and though the entry list this year was small it was crammed with class, and Doelp deserves all the credit in the world for coming through with a triumph. Charley played consistent golf in each of the three days. His cards in the semifinal and final rounds, though not record brakers, showed conclusively that the Lu Lu Temple star must be reck-oned with in future competition. In the morning round against Ven-

THE OBSERVER

THE huge gobs of legal tender turned over to Lew Tendler for his bout with Benny Leonard have made thousands envious of the Philadelphia southpaw Tendler failed in his effort to rule the lightweight class, but he's "sitting on top of the world" financially.

Twenty-four per cent of the purse, or $66,281, was presented to Tendler. A neat sum for some rainy day.

But it hasn't always come so easy. Not so many years ago he sold news.

later Harris offered to take over Tendler, and this time Glassman refused.

HARRY ERTLE, referee, stated in a signed story in the New York World that he believed Leonard the winner. Wherein is the difference between a decision in this manner and one given in the ring?

Scutiment Always a Factor in Fans' Decisions

THERE was scarcely a Leonard rooter within Boyle's Thirty Acres who wasn't sure in his mind after the bout that their favorite had won, A few Tendler supporters believe the Philadelphian won, many more feel that a draw was a good decision and some concede the honors to Leonard. Two fans near the ringside were as extreme in their views as they were partisan. The Tendler rooter gave Lew seven rounds and the champion five. The Leonard backer conceded "Lefty Looie" the first and the eighth rounds. Sentiment always plays a part in the fans' decision. It takes considerable power to be non-partisan when you know either or both of the principals. If you want the Observer's decision here it is: Tex Rickard won hands

The promoter cleaned up more than $100,000 after paying all expenses. This is more than Leonard cleared after paying training expenses and then cutting 30 per cent for Gibson. It's ten times what Glassman made. He cuts Greb, Willard, Carpentier and in for 25 per cent of Tendler's share and then has to pay the training bills out of his own pocket. Rickard won, but he didn't win easily. His blood went thin and be may

Home-Run Hitting Phils and A's

TF HOME cans meant ball games Philadelphia would be baseball wild, for the Phils and A's would be leading their respective leagues. When it comes to circuit clouting, the laurel wreath must be presented to Sixty-four homers have been driven by Phillie bats and that's enough to lead the league. Cy Williams leads the parade with sixteen, but Cliff Lee is only two behind him. The Athletics have whaled four-ply blows sixty-three times. Tilly Walker out in front with twenty-four. The A's receive dual honors here, for Walker's twenty-four is second in the individual list and the team total leads the Miller is the only other Mackman with double figures. Earlier in the season he was pressing Ken Williams for the lead, but suddenly he dropped off. He has thirteen, which undoubtedly is unlucky.
