Life Has Lost All Its Interest for a Girl Who Is Nervously Tired

But This Is Not an Incurable Disease—She Will Feel Better When She Gets a Rest and Some Recreation

JEANNE wants to know what to do for a chronic case of the blues. Nothing seems worth while to her.

She is tired of her friends, and even her family is growing wearisome to her. Books have no appeal, nothing rouses her—except a trip to the city near which she lives.

That has the effect of waking her up and making her see that life has some joys after all. She writes to ask what she can do to recover from this.

And then she says that she and her brother are largely responsible for the support of the family of six.

Well, there's her trouble right away—she's tired. There's nothing like mid-summer in a hard year to make you feel thoroughly weary of life.

When you've been working, working, working, under a load of responsibility which you cannot possibly drop or even lighten you get so tired that you feel as if you couldn't go another day.

LIFE doesn't stop to let you rest for a while. It pushes right ahead, and it seems to go harder and faster when you're as exhausted as that.

And then you begin to get like Jeanne, you're just like the broad-backed horse in the center ring at the circus, you go round and round your regular daily tasks, never performing any better or any worse, keeping up just because it has become a habit and you haven't anything else to do.

It seems as if you would never get out of this dull, hopeless rut. Before you know that the time has gone, though, your vacation comes. It hasn't given you any thrill to look forward to it because you couldn't see that it had anything in store for you at all.

However, it arrives and you wonder what you will do with it, if you cannot afford to go away anywhere.

GRADUALLY the feeling of peace and interest in life that you have given up for lost begins to steal over you.

Some one asks you to go somewhere, perhaps just to the theatre or out for a ride.

It doesn't last long, but it takes you away from yourself, away from the environment in which you have grown so tiresome. It rests you.

By the end of that vacation time you feel all new again. You don't realize it until you resume work, but then the effect begins to show.

You have more strength, more courage, more pep, and more, oh, much more desire to live.

IT ISN'T incurable, Jeanne, it's just a temporary ilt. You're tired, that's all, tired of work, tired of responsibility, tired of the lan-

Adventures With a Purse IF YOU are going away for the week-end you will want to take a box of candy with you, and chocolates do not pack just so well in the summertime.

But you can get maple-dipped caramels, creamy, rich ones with walnuts in them, and the maple is quite thick. You've no idea how perfectly delicious they are until you have tried them, and they are but fifty cents a pound.

Have you seen the Shell rings? I want to tell you about them because they are so exceedingly unusual and distinctive. They are made of dull metal, giving the idea of dull gold.

The stones are of various kinds. There is one of the head of the Sphinx with a snake coiled about it; another, two small eyes that look as if they might be the eyes of a peacock, emerald green and sapphire blue. The rings are large, and if you want one for yourself or for the man of the family the shells rings are different, thereby worth buying, and certainly so when you find that they are but 51.

For names of shops address Woman's Page Editor or phone Walnut 2001 or Main 1661 between the hours of 9 and 5.

Hair Often Ruined By Careless Washing

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and pre-shampoo contain too much alkali...

The best thing for steady use is Mulified coconut oil shampoo, which is pure and greaseless...

Two or three teaspoons of Mulified in a cup of glass of a little warm water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly...

August is a difficult month for those who have to endure it in the city. Everything seems to stop, then, except the locusts and the crickets and the noise of traffic...

BUT keep your chin up, Jeanne, keep on plodding and keep on hoping. Even if you have lost all interest in enthusiasm you haven't lost it for keeps.

Why not adopt for breakfast or lunch, Grape-Nuts with cream or milk and a little fresh fruit—and turn off the internal heat?

Grape-Nuts contains all the nourishment of whole wheat flour and malted barley, including the vital mineral elements and bran "roughage," and it is partially pre-digested in the long baking process by which it is made.

There's a wonderful charm for the appetite in the crisp, sweet goodness of this ready-to-eat food, and fitness and lightness afterward, which meet summer's heat with a smile.

Your grocer will supply you with Grape-Nuts!
