

Cards Crawl Up on Giants, While Browns Gain Half Game on Yanks in Big League Races

ALEX SEES MANY CHANGES IN PHILS

Not One Member of Present Aggregation Worked With Great Hurler Seven Years Ago

MACKMEN DROP ANOTHER

By JOSEPH T. LARRUM

THE LIFE of a big league player is a short one at best. While the rain was transforming the Phillies' park from a smooth, dry field to a quagmire yesterday afternoon, the scribbles talked about the subject concerned the rapidly with which the make-up of teams change.

Seven years ago Pat Moran guided the Phillies to their first and only National League pennant. Of that great team of fence wreckers and brilliant pitchers and fielders, only one remains today—Grover Cleveland Alexander, whose pitching was the main instrument in bringing the title to this city in 1915, sat on the bench yesterday afternoon and a couple of benches from the Phils' bench and failed to see a single face that swapped stories with him in the halcyon days.

Alexander, who has been in the line of the pennant along with his battery mate, Killer, now the manager of the Cubs, was said to have started the disintegration of the team in this city, used to last-place teams.

The remainder of the team is scattered to the four corners. Gabby Gray, who pitched for the Phils, is now in the line of the pennant along with his battery mate, Killer, now the manager of the Cubs, was said to have started the disintegration of the team in this city, used to last-place teams.

At point of service, Cy Williams is the oldest member of the Phils. He came to Philadelphia in 1911 from the Cubs, and that time has been the real star of the team. Leslie came only a year ago. So did Rapp, Walker and Terry. Meadows and a couple of seasons ago, with the Phils. Art Fletcher is now on the payroll for three years, though he was out of the game a year ago. He pitched for the Phils in 1915, but was not in the team.

Mokan arrived at the club yesterday afternoon and was met by the manager, J. H. McGowan, who had had but two years of service with the team. The same story is true of the Cubs. The entire present team has been changed since 1917 until Alexander, Killer and Hoover are considered old-timers on the club. Hoover came up from the bushes and the manager star pitcher were purchased.

The remainder of the team counts not a veteran in its make-up. So it goes all over the two circuits. The Giants and Yanks are no exception. The number of teams, the others have new men and old ones purchased from other clubs. The life of a big league player is a short one.

The retirement of Lee Meadows from the game yesterday at the start of the third inning because of a sore arm caused an end of comment in the press stand. Meadows was the star pitcher of the last year for several weeks Meadows was not in the game because of the pain that crept into his arm whenever he raised it to fling the horseshoe.

When the rain came down yesterday the Phils and the Cards were dealt a double-header late in September on the next trip East of Killefer and his band.
