R. T. Removes Shack Used as Bootblack Stand From Main Street

HEATHEN' GATHERED THERE

All is again well in Darby ! That sturdy hamlet has weathered mother crisis, and now is peace and a quiet that is broken only by the restess clumping of the feet of the Chronicler, as he scurries from place to

The Chronicler has ordered a new nib for his pen, the old one having gone fame and useless in the recording of the battle between the Christian folk of Darby and the great city corporation afled the Rapid Transit Company. The pesult is retreat by the corporation and great triumph for the citizens.

It seems that the point where the green cars from the city decide they bave gone far enough into Darby, and so turn themselves about, is only a few wards distant from Mt. Zion Church and on the same side of Main street. It seems also that the Rapid Transit

Company had built on the rear of the hop a frame shack which for a time was used as a machine shop. The maarrested yesterday for "picketing" chines, however, were moved eisewhere, clothing factory at Eleventh and Wood chines, however, were moved eisewhere, and there the shack stood, empty. One day the company sent a gang of men to move it to the front of the loop, that is to say, on the very brim of Main street, and let it to one Con-stantinus Apostolosus, who put a boot-black stand/ inside and divers insignia here a heating barrow were taken to City black stand/ inside and divers insignia the start here treachers were taken to City black stand/ inside and divers insignia
